GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND
DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

PUBLISHED BY THE AUTHORITY OF HER MAJESTY'S TREASURY, UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

ON the 26th of January 1857, the Master of the Rolls submitted to the Treasury a proposal for the publication of materials for the History of this Country from the Invasion of the Romans to the reign of Henry VIII.

The Master of the Rolls suggested that these materials should be selected for publication under competent editors without reference to periodical or chronological arrangement, without mutilation or abridgment, preference being given, in the first instance, to such materials as were most scarce and valuable.

He proposed that each chronicle or historical document to be edited should be treated in the same way as if the editor were engaged on an Editio Princeps; and for this purpose the most correct text should be formed from an accurate collation of the best MSS.

To render the work more generally useful, the Master of the Rolls suggested that the editor should give an account of the MSS. employed by him, of their age and their peculiarities; that he should add to the work a brief account of the life and times of the author, and any remarks necessary to explain the chronology; but no other note or comment was to be allowed, except what might be necessary to establish the correctness of the text.

The works to be published in octavo, separately, as they were finished; the whole responsibility of the task resting upon the editors, who were to be chosen by the Master of the Rolls with the sanction of the Treasury.

The Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury, after a careful consideration of the subject, expressed their opinion in a Treasury Minute, dated February 9, 1857, that the plan recommended by the Master of the Rolls "was well calculated for the accomplishment of this important national object, in an effectual and satisfactory manner, within a reasonable time, and provided proper attention be paid to economy, in making the detailed arrangements, without unnecessary expense."

They expressed their approbation of the proposal that each Chronicle and historical document should be edited in such a manner as to represent with all possible correctness the text of each writer, derived from a collation of the best MSS., and that no notes should be added, except such as were illustrative of the various readings. They suggested, however, that the preface to each work should contain, in addition to the particulars proposed by the Master of the Rolls, a biographical account of the author, so far as authentic materials existed for that purpose, and an estimate of his historical credibility and value.

THE history of English affairs from the Conquest to A.D. 1198, written by William, canon of the Augustine Priory of St. Mary at Newburgh in Yorkshire, is the work of a man of unusual moral elevation, mental power, and eloquence, and though the treatise has taken a high place among mediaeval histories rather on account of the valuable contemporary judgments on men and events which it contains than by reason of the absolute amount of original information it imparts, there is still much in it which is not to be found elsewhere, and all facts, so far as known to the author, are recorded with unswerving faithfulness. These points have commended and will still continue to commend it to those who desire to understand fully the life and ideas of the twelfth century.

The peculiar quality of the book, which is to a great degree a commentary, fits it to play the part of a collateral narrative running parallel with and completing the minor chronicles of the twelfth century. The work will thus, it is believed, be found at the same time to illustrate and form a complement to the shorter treatises which it is proposed to append in the succeeding volumes of this edition. These are the "Draco Normannicus" of Etienne de Rouen, which has never before been printed in England, the "Gesta Stephani," the short chronicle of Richard of Hexham, the account of the Battle of the Standard by St. Ailred of Rievaulx, the metrical chronicle of the wars of 1173-4 by Jordan Fantosme, and the chronicle of Richard of Devizes. All these fall reasonably well within the chronological limits of the Historia Rerum Anglicarum, but it is further designed to add the interesting continuation of Newburgh's work which is contained in the Cottonian MS., Cleopatra A. 1. This has never yet been printed.

Such remarks as the present editor desires to offer as to the composition and merits of the "Historia Rerum Anglicarum" will be found in the preface which follows, but as the matter must in many places be treated in a technical and uninviting manner, it may be well to summarise for general purposes the points to which especial attention is directed, adding references to the particular pages of the preface in which they are treated at length.

The author's name is stated by Leland<sup>1</sup> to have been William Petit or Parvus, but there is some, though slight reason for thinking that it may have been William of Rufforth<sup>2</sup> and that "Parvus" was merely a soubriquet. He was born at Bridlington in 1136, was brought up from boyhood in Newburgh Priory, and died probably in 1198, not in 1208 as is usually asserted.<sup>3</sup>

The priory to which he belonged was an offshoot of the Augustinian house at Bridlington. It was first located at Hode and was afterwards moved to Newburgh, Hode remaining as a cell to the later foundation.<sup>4</sup>

The history was probably begun about the year 1196, the author being at the time in feeble health, and it was dedicated to Ernald abbot of Rievaulx. It is a composite work, the author having derived matter from other chroniclers to an extent which, it is believed, has not hitherto been recognised; his style of writing and his habit of recasting borrowed passages rendering it exceedingly difficult to detect his mode of building up his history.<sup>1</sup> In the first three chapters of his book Newburgh leans upon Symeon of Durham;<sup>2</sup> for the whole of Stephen's reign he closely follows and occasionally falls into the actual words of Henry of Huntingdon.<sup>3</sup> The account of the rebellion of the younger Henry comes principally from Jordan Fantosme;<sup>4</sup> the history of the events leading up to the third crusade, and the facts of the crusade itself are largely taken from the Itinerarium of Richard the Canon.<sup>5</sup> Lastly there is reason to believe, from verbal and other coincidences between this chronicle and those of Ralph of Coggeshall and Roger Hoveden,<sup>6</sup> that the account of Richard's captivity, and of French and German affairs intimately connected with it, is derived from the work of Anselm the king's chaplain, who is known not only to have narrated the facts of this episode to Coggeshall, but also to have penned an account of it which is now lost.<sup>7</sup>

Added to these unacknowledged sources of information are others of a minor character, such as the letters of Terrie the Templar, and those of the Genoese to Pope Urban, which are not openly quoted, but are worked into the general fabric of the book.<sup>8</sup>

It has been necessary to point out some errors of date and fact, but it has been of course no part of the editor's design to supply omissions.<sup>9</sup>

The history is to be found in four previous editions.

The present is founded on the Stowe manuscript [S.]<sup>10</sup> which belonged to Newburgh Priory, and was written, to judge from the handwriting, not later than the year 1200. The Lambeth [L.], Cottonian [C.],<sup>11</sup> and [B.] Bodleian (Rawlinson) MSS. have also been fully collated as far as the end of book iv.,<sup>1</sup> and a fragment in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, containing the fourth and fifth books has been similarly used. This fragment has a special interest from the circumstance that it is linked by a spurious chapter to a hitherto unnoticed MS. of the early part of the Itinerarium Regis Ricardi.<sup>2</sup>

Four other MSS. of less account have also been consulted in places.

Various readings.

The result of this extended collation has been an inundation of various readings, often of a trivial character.<sup>3</sup> Many of these are from the Lambeth MS., the bulk of which had been collated before the Stowe MS. became available.<sup>4</sup> The heavy task of shifting the basis of the edition from one MS. to the other had to be faced, and when the work had been done it was thought better on the whole not to expunge the readings of the Lambeth copy, especially as there are lacunæ of many pages in extent in the Stowe copy which it has been necessary to supply from the Lambeth volume.

The state of Yorkshire after
A.D. 1069.

When in Domesday Book the population was noted down in a dry business-like way, it was never intended to tell or to conceal the fact that fifteen years after the harrying of the shires in 1069 there were over four hundred Yorkshire manors so wasted that but forty-three human beings remained on the whole wide surface of them.<sup>5</sup> Some of the wretched survivors, we are told, were driven to cannibalism, and William of Malmesbury, writing about the year 1130, says that the land lay waste round York for a breadth of sixty miles “usque ad hoc etiam tempus.”

Though martyrs in no ecclesiastical sense, the blood of these miserable peasant victims proved in very truth to be the seed of the church. Their desolate lands must in such a stretch of years have become for the most part absolutely lost to the service of man. The paved roads by which ancient Rome had opened Britain to light and civilization, then doubtless once more played a part, allowing the stream of life to return to the deserted shire. Foremost in this peaceful warfare against desola- Monastic founda- tions lead the return of popula- tion to the wasted lands.

tion were communities of monks. Their modest buildings and clearings, succeeded by stately edifices and broader culture, formed outposts round which the peasantry could gather once more, and whence they could obtain that benevolent direction which is so true a boon to simple, half civilised men.

Newburgh tells us (p. 53) that under Stephen’s short reign more monasteries were founded than during the hundred preceding years, and indeed, if we analyse a list of English monasteries we shall find that out of a total of about 698<sup>1</sup> dated foundations, 247 were built before Stephen, 115 during Stephen’s nineteen years of turbulence, 113 during the 35 years of Henry, and 223 in later times. Descending in our analysis to counties<sup>2</sup> it is seen that one shire, which, if its semi-mountainous districts are subtracted, ceases perhaps to be the largest, heads the list with the surprising total of 68 houses. The next is the large fen county of Lincoln with 50, and passing only to the fourth of the series we at once reach totals that are less than half of the Yorkshire figures.

<sup>1</sup> This is only a rough total of dated foundations. I have preferred to found my calculations on an old list. The one used was published by James Moore, in 1798. It was based on the works of Tanner and Keith, and was revised by John Caley, and its sufficiency as a source of a rough comparative statement can therefore scarcely be in question.

I have added a few dates to Moore’s list, and have struck out all establishments remaining undated.

Looking closer still we must attribute 20 Yorkshire monasteries to early times, 20 to Stephen, 11 to the reign of Henry the Second, and 18 to the succeeding centuries. For Lincolnshire the same distribution would give the numbers 8, 19, 14 and 9. Thus it is a noteworthy fact, that monks joined if they did not lead the army which was to conquer waste, moorland, and fen, and that it was to desolate regions rather than to luxury and cultivation that these pioneers directed their steps.<sup>1</sup> Even in the case of Norfolk, then perhaps the richest of our counties,<sup>2</sup> we find St. Benedict's, the greatest monastery of the county, in the heart of the dreary district of the Broads.

It seems probable then that following the direction in which the struggle for existence was least severe these communities tended to go where nature had left the land waste, or where Norman ravagers had left it bare, and it is with no intent to cast a slur upon the beneficence of founders that we also remark a tendency to make grants of waste and forest on a liberal scale. Our present interest centres on one particular group of these convents. A line scarcely six miles long, drawn in a south-easterly direction, passes through the great abbeys of Rievaulx and Byland, and its southern point touches the priory of Newburgh. The two northern belonged to the great Cistercian order, the third, and perhaps humbler establishment was an Augustinian priory, but there is much to show that notwithstanding the difference of order these houses were drawn together by common bonds of esteem and brotherhood. We have but to turn to the pages of the chronicle which follows in this volume to find that the work was undertaken at the request of Ermald Abbot of Rievaulx,<sup>1</sup> and that when Roger Abbot of Byland is mentioned as the authority for a statement, he is referred to in terms of the deepest respect and affection.<sup>2</sup> A circumstance too, which will be mentioned below, shows that Newburgh Priory received incidental benefit from the association.

The account of this house in the Monasticon<sup>3</sup> is bare and unsatisfactory, and though in the body of the charters presented by that vast work there is incidental information to be gleaned which throws light on the origin of the priory, the facts are not indexed or brought together under the head of Newburgh, but are to be found among the documents appended to the history of Byland.<sup>4</sup>

The monasteries of that date frequently sent forth swarms to find and furnish new hives. Parties, usually of thirteen, went forth from some great house, and it was thus, or in some similar way, that Furness Abbey became the mother house of Byland, and also, as it now appears, that Bridlington Priory became the parent of Newburgh. Newburgh.

The proof of this is to be found in the account of the foundation of Byland written by Philip, third abbot of that house.<sup>5</sup> The passage is as follows:—

“ Postea autem manentibus apud Bellamlandam abbate Rogero et monachis, idem abbas ad petitionem et instantiam domini Rogeri de Molbray et Sampsonis de Albaneio dedit locum de Hode, ubi prius habitare incepérant, quibusdam

Hode, a cell to Newburgh
Priory.

From a passage a little further on it appears that Sampson de Albany, a relation of Roger Mowbray, became himself a canon of Hode. The canons then apparently migrated to Newburgh, leaving behind a small community in what thus became their cell at Hode.<sup>1</sup>

It was after the conscientious refusal of the abbot of Byland to accept the jus patronatus over the churches of Thirsk, Honingham, and Kirby Moorhead, together with other possessions, that Mowbray transferred his generosity to the canons of Hode or Newburgh.

Position of Newburgh
Priory.

The change from Hode to the final site near the village of Coxwold took place in 1145, the convent thus obtaining a pleasant abode under the shelter of the Hambleton Hills, among woods and close to a running stream. More than all this the house was on one of the ancient routes from York to the mouth of the Tees, the trackway which, running past Crayke Castle and thence close to Newburgh Priory and Coxwold, climbs the Hambleton Hills and proceeds at a considerable elevation and with a directness which perhaps tells of Roman origin<sup>2</sup> right onward to the mouth of Tees.

This position must have caused Newburgh Priory to be a frequent halting-place for travellers of all grades. It has frequently been said that the monasteries were day. Newburgh cannot be identified with any certainty, but Easingwold, which is but four and a half miles distant, was reduced from a value of 32*l.* to 20*s.*

the hostleries of early times, and Newburgh must by its position have played a considerable part in this way on the northern road. Much later than the times of which we write Margaret, daughter of Henry VII., travelling northwards to her marriage with James IV. of Scotland, rode from York to Newburgh, where she passed one night and thence set forth again for Edinburgh.

The house, though respectably endowed, was never perhaps a wealthy one. Henry VIII.'s commissioners set down its revenue at about  $367l.$ , which of course would compare favourably with  $238l.$  for Byland and  $278l.$  for Rievaulx if we could place the least reliance on the truth and honesty of the assessors, but the facts may very well have been, and probably were, wholly the Priors of other way, for the abbot of Rievaulx was head of the Newburgh. Cistercian Order in England.

Scarcely anything seems to be known about the early occupants of the priory. Even the list of priors in the Monasticon begins so late as 1269, while Gill ("Vallis "Eboracensis," p. 170), quoting from Torri's MSS., gives a list which is on the face of it incorrect. The earliest reliable information is given by Benedict of Peterborough, who says (i. 352) that in 1186 Bernard prior of Newburgh was one of those nominated for the King's selection with a view to filling the northern archiepiscopal see. Henry, who intended the position for Geoffrey, of course rejected all of the nominees, but the personal standing of the prior of Newburgh is for us sufficiently indicated by his being one of the number.

Little beyond the spacious kitchen of the present mansion remains of the ancient priory. Much is built up in the modern structure, but all architectural glory has disappeared, and all interest about the spot centres in the old Austin canon, whose celebrated history of his own times follows in the present volume.

Leland, on the authority of some words added to Personal a MS. of Newburgh's Commentary on the Song of history of William of Solomon,<sup>1</sup> formerly in the library of Queens' College Newburgh.<sup>2</sup> Cambridge, tells us that William of Newburgh was born at Bridlington, and our author himself, when describing the phenomenal appearance of intermittent springs for which the neighbourhood of Wold Newton is noted even at the present day, speaks of them as being “in propria vicia . . . Deirorum, hand procul a loco nativitatis meae,”<sup>3</sup> and proceeds to say that they were called in English “Gipse.”<sup>4</sup> We have but to turn to a map of Yorkshire to see that a stream now called the “Gipsey” “Race” runs from Wold Newton into the sea close to Bridlington; and placing this circumstance by the side of the facts above noted as to the connexion between the Austin priories of Bridlington, Hode, and Newburgh, a reasonably good confirmation of Leland's information results. The date of our author's birth we know with some exactness, for he says that he was born in the first year of Stephen's reign,<sup>5</sup> and since, as we shall show, he everywhere follows Huntingdon's chronology for that reign, we may fix the date as 1136.

The author's name.

As to our author's name there has been some difference of opinion. Sometimes he appears to have been confused with the William of Rievaulx who, as John of Hexham asserts, died in 1146;<sup>6</sup> but if we turn to the history itself there seems reason for thinking that the name usually assigned to him is the right one. The occurrence of such expressions as “meae parvitudi,” “ego servorum Christi minimus,”<sup>7</sup> in the work of an

<sup>6</sup> Of course these expressions of humility are common, e.g., the “minores minimis sumus” of the Franciscans, but when Newburgh speaks on p. 313 of the Jew Benedictus becoming Maledictus, and on p. 362 cannot resist a recurrence to S. Gregory's pun, we may suspect a deeper meaning.

author who shows some inclination to play on words seems, though the evidence is but slender, to point to the correctness of tradition in calling him Parvus or Petit; this was probably, however, only a nickname.

Vossius<sup>1</sup> says that William, a Cistercian monk of Rusheford, wrote a history and dedicated it to St. Ailred of Rievaulx. This, as Oudin (ii. 1123) shows, is the present history, but there is a point which makes the statement important.

The Bodleian MS. Rawl. B. 192 begins with the rubric "Liber Sanctæ Mariae Fratris Willelmi"<sup>2</sup> and "nachi de Rufforth," and this ascription in a manuscript certainly written before the year 1300, coinciding with what Vossius tells us from some unknown source, cannot be passed over lightly.

The rubricator of this manuscript [B.] was singularly careless, and never scrupled to alter or mutilate the heading of a chapter, and we may therefore at least amend his title thus:—

Now Rufford was a well known abbey in Nottinghamshire, while our author tells us that he lived at Newburgh from boyhood. Also he was not monachus but canonicus.

In the worst blundering there is often a grain of truth. Does not our grain possibly lie here in the word Rufforth? There is a village called Rufforth some five miles west of York. If our author's grandparents flying in 1069 before the Norman ravagers had migrated to Bridlington, their descendant, William of Rufforth, entering Newburgh Priory, might become known either as William of Newburgh or by his soubriquet of Petit, and our blundering rubricator, not knowing Rufforth, but like Vossius being well acquainted with Rufford Abbey, would readily be misled by the similarity of the names, and would imagine that William of Rufforth meant William, monk of Rufforth.

He tells us that he was brought up from boyhood in Newburgh Priory. Probably starting as one of the children of the choir, and attracting notice by an early exhibition of the solid abilities and sober good sense which he certainly showed in later life, he won his way upwards and was admitted to full brotherhood through the recognition of his personal merits.

The only further personal fact as to our author which comes or professes to come from an external source is contained in a passage in Dr. David Powel's preface to his edition of Pontieus Virunnius :—

“ Quoniam in annalibus nostris ante annos trecentos con“ scriptis, literis proditum invenio, istum Gulielmum (qui ibi “ Gwilym bâch, i.e. Gulielmus Parvus, dicitur) post mortem “ prædicti Galfridi Arthuri episcopi Elguensis, eum episcopa-
“ tum ambivisse circa annum Domini 1165 atque repulsam
“ passum, et a Davide principis Oeni filio male tractatum, “ inde causam maledicendi arripuisse, et postea malitia sue “ virus nuiversum in gentem Britannicam evomuisse, quod pru-
“ denti etiam lectori ex ejns scripti acermonia et acerbitate

This was written in 1585, but Dr. Powel gives no clue to his 13th century authority, and he has so worded his scurrilous remarks as to leave some doubt as to whether the error apparent on the surface of the passage does not go deeper. Indeed Bishop Nicolson<sup>2</sup> has utterly misunderstood him. Taking, however, the meaning most favourable to Powel's reputation for accuracy, it appears from other sources that Geoffrey of Monmouth died in 1154 (when Newburgh was eighteen), that his successor, Bishop Riehard, died in 1155, and that Bishop

“ in coquina quam in antiquorum historiis versati.” I do not remember any similar rancour against Giraldus de Barri, who joins Newburgh in speaking contemptuously of Geoffrey of Monmouth's legends.

Assertion that he was once a candidate for the bishopric
of S.
Asaph.

Godfrey held the see from that date to 1175. Newburgh cannot therefore have been a candidate for the bishopric in 1165. Dr. Powel may have meant 1175, but why then does he merely say, "after the death of 'the aforesaid Geoffrey,'" when he means on the second succeeding vacancy in the see? In the next place, if Newburgh had been ill-treated by David, son of Owen Prince of Wales, the ill-usage must have occurred in or before 1169. After that date he would have dealt with David Prince of Wales, son of Owen. On such blundering testimony as this we cannot believe the story against a man whose modesty, sober judgment, and deep religious feeling are apparent on every page of his book.

What little remains to be known of Newburgh's personal history must be derived from his writings, and but scant details can there be found. One circumstance, which will be useful in considering a point to be brought forward later, may here be stated. He has not written a single sentence or given a single local fact or description which would lend support to the idea that he had ever travelled beyond the limits of Yorkshire and Durham.<sup>1</sup> All information clearly floated to him on the tide; he went to seek nothing. A negative statement of this kind of course cannot be proved by pointing out passages; the reference must be to the whole work, and to the conviction resulting in at least one mind which has considered that work attentively and with a view to the point in question.

The persons from whom he derived information are sometimes named, sometimes only vaguely referred to, as witnesses worthy of credit. Some aged person related to Newburgh, then no doubt a youth, the incident at the Conqueror's burial, thus confirming, if confirmation were needed, the accounts of Eadmer and Ordericus Vitalis. The blinded monk of Byland, once Bishop Wimund of the Isles, detailed a story of rebellion and deeds of blood by sea and land on the coasts of Western Scotland which reads like a romance, but which, as it was confirmed by one of the strange adventurer's own followers, and is supported by the chroniclers of the day, may be regarded as reliable information as to a very dark passage in the annals of the North. A similar service is done by the chapter as to Raymond Trencavel, though the narrative, also derived from accounts brought to the author, is marred by such errors as a wrong name and a wrong location of the chief event.<sup>1</sup> Roger Abbot of Byland brings information as to Henry's penance at Canterbury ; an Irish bishop contributes facts as to his own island ; a canon of York, a personal friend of Archbishop William, refutes by word of mouth the horrible story of poisoning by the sacred chalice ; and Symphorianus, the prelate's chaplain, adds his own verbal testimony in the same direction.<sup>2</sup> Crusaders and pilgrims brought their tales to the northern abbeys, and were, it is evident, eagerly questioned by at least one man who loved to ponder philosophically over the great events of the world outside his convent walls.

The author's entire life appears to have been passed within the limits of Yorkshire and Durham.

Two results may be expected from this mode of gathering : the first, vagueness ; the second, error of date and detail. If the listener, moreover, be not inordinately sceptical, we must ultimately get from his pen a record of the half-conscious exaggerations of men who have told and retold their tales until they are exposed to the temptation of giving fresh point to them. Such apparently is the case as regards the narrative of the fall of Edessa, such and much more must assuredly be the case with the ghastly stories of corpses emerging from their graves by night and hunting down living men, which we find in the fifth book of this otherwise sober history.

These matters however belong rather to the section in which it is proposed to deal with Newburgh's writings. Here it only remains for us to see what evidence as to the date of his death can be gathered. Cave asserts,<sup>1</sup> but gives no authority for his assertion, that William of Newburgh died in 1208 at the age of 72.

Probable
the composition of the work and of the author's death.

All the internal evidence of the "Historia Rerum Anglicarum" opposes this date, and certain points in the MSS. are strongly against it.

It will be necessary, at the risk of being tedious, to go closely into this matter, and at the same time into the question, intimately bound up with it, of the date at which the history was begun.

The facts will be perhaps most clearly appreciated if put in the form of a list.

1. The history breaks off very abruptly after mentioning the shower of red rain at Andely, which we know from Diceto took place on 8th May, 1198.
2. Newburgh did not know of the war in August 1198.<sup>2</sup>
3. The work was begun in or before 1196, for Roger abbot of Byland, who resigned in that year, is spoken of as still holding office when Newburgh was writing Chapter 15 of Book I.
4. Abbot Ernald of Rievaulx ceased to be abbot in 1199, and although the book was dedicated to him there is no presentation copy extant, nor does the fourteenth century catalogue of the Rievaulx library<sup>3</sup> mention one. If Newburgh had lived to complete and revise his work surely there would have been such a copy.
5. In his dedication he speaks of "indultum miseri-corditer infirmitati mea otium." He was in ill health when he began the task; he says nothing as to advanced age.

6. In writing a date in Arabic numerals such a blunder as 1208 for 1198 is almost impossible, but to write or print MCVIII. for MCXCVIII. is very easy.
7. The copy of the work belonging to Newburgh Priory, written in a beautiful hand of the end of the twelfth century, contains a considerable number of errors, and in one place (p. 172, note 2,) actually presents an alternative reading, “ novarum (vel “ novorum) rerum (vel regum).” This speaks plainly of an original in a cursive hand, and tells us also that the author could no longer be consulted as to what he had intended to write.
8. There are three cases at least in which Newburgh promises to recur to a subject and does not do so.<sup>1</sup>
9. There are manifest errors and obscure passages in all the MSS., which speak of a badly written original, e.g., “ nec non est a quibus” (p. 116, note 6). These could not have escaped the eye of the author on a revision.<sup>2</sup>

These circumstances taken in connexion seem to indicate that the present work was begun in or before 1196, and that shortly after May 1198, William of Newburgh went to his rest, leaving his work unrevised.

If our author's opportunities had been full in proportion to his abilities, abbot Ernald could have prompted no fitter man to the task of writing a history of his own times. In the position occupied by either Benedict of Peterborough or Ralph de Diceto, Newburgh might have produced a history not inferior in any respect to that of Matthew Paris. Many passages yield in force and elegance to the work of no writer of that age, and the whole is singularly free from mediævalisms. The author is perhaps a little fond of introducing rare words and startling constructions, and frequently shows that his classical reading has been quite as much among poets as among prose writers. His quotations are from Virgil and Horace, but he has evidently read Cicero and Livy.<sup>1</sup> The works of St. Gregory and St. Augustine, and translations of Eusebius and Josephus were familiar to him; and coming to later times, and historical studies, he alludes to Gildas and to Beda, whom he imitated, and, though not by name, to Symeon of Durham and Richard the Canon. These names bring us to the question, How far was Newburgh an original writer?

Hitherto in all accounts which have been given of the Sources Historia Rerum Anglicarum, it has been treated as an entirely independent production. Close analysis, however, indicates that this idea must be greatly modified. Certainly, with perhaps the exception of the first two chapters, the whole of this history might have been derived from the testimony of living men; the author, that is if he had been from early manhood a collector of historical information, might have presented us with nearly every fact from personal narratives. That this, however, is not by any means what has happened is clear, although there is great difficulty in identifying borrowed matter in this chronicle, for whatever Newburgh has used he has recast and written down in his own words. Indeed if we chance to discover a few undoubtedly borrowed words we may reasonably suspect that very much more has been drawn from the same source.

On turning to p. 22 of the present volume we find a brief sentence in which the actual words of Symeon of Durham. Durham are preserved. Thus we may assume that for the first three chapters this author has been consulted. At the end of cap. 3., p. 30, on p. 34 at the end of cap. 5, and again on p. 48 at the beginning of cap. 13, we see the actual words of Henry of Huntingdon making their way up to the surface, and what is still more important, we have the archdeacon's chronology throughout the reign of Stephen. His authority is once only neglected, the result being a wrong date for the Battle of the Standard.

The framework for almost the whole of Book I. is Huntingdon's, but there are special chapters introduced which either amplify his rather bare outlines or introduce entirely new matter.<sup>1</sup>

Though very interesting, but little of this new material strictly belongs to English political history. We have special accounts of Geoffrey de Mandeville, of Robert Marmion, of the origin of several monastic foundations, and personal accounts of certain archbishops of York and Kings of Scotland. Added to these are singular chapters as to Bishop Wimund and Éon de l'Étoile, and two more filled with some of the stories to which Newburgh seems at first to have given an unwilling ear and afterwards full credence.

For events from 1154 to 1173 we have a narrative not drawn from the work of any author whose writings have come down to us, but when we reach the latter year the account starts suddenly into an unwonted fulness. The reason of this is now plain. Our author had met with the metrical chronicle of Jordan Fantosme and had strengthened his own narrative with its picturesque details. A comparison of the episode of the messenger bearing to Henry the tidings of the capture of the Scottish king as told by Newburgh (p. 189), and by Fantosme (lines 1962 to 2040) will raise suspicions of a common origin for two versions of a story recorded by no other chronicler, which so wonderfully resemble each other.<sup>1</sup> On further comparison when both Newburgh and Fantosme are seen to confuse the separate invasions of East Anglia in 1173 and 1174, regarding them as one, and placing the sack of Norwich before the battle of Fornham St. Genevieve, the strange coincidence of error will be remarked as a stronger trace of relationship than many coincidences of truth.<sup>2</sup> Roger abbot of Byland contributed some facts, and Newburgh himself could not have been without definite memories of such stirring events, but when we notice the sudden lapse of the succeeding narrative we see that the fulness of the history for 1173 and 1174 must have had an extraneous cause.

In the fourth book we come to another source from which our author has largely drawn in his account of the Crusades. The Itinerarium Regis Ricardi of Richard the Canon has been read and summarised, by Newburgh.<sup>3</sup> If proof of this is required it may be obtained by reading the Itinerarium side by side with Book III., caps. 15–28, of the present work, remembering, while reading, the often-stated fact that Newburgh melts and recasts his information. These pages together with the opening words of cap. 15 of Book III. (see p. 249) and

<sup>2</sup> The final proof, always so difficult in Newburgh's case, is impossible when he adapts from a French poem.

<sup>3</sup> This circumstance had forced itself upon my notice before I had read p. lix of Bishop Stubb's preface to the Itinerarium. My own suspicions were first aroused by the fact that both authors, after narrating the circumstances of Barbarossa's death, burst forth into the words of the 68th Psalm, "O abyssus multa . . . ." Bishop Stubb<sup>s</sup> cites the instance noticed in note 5, p. 249. I confess that the absence of verbal coincidences, where the sense is obviously borrowed, seems to me to favour the idea that the Itinerarium was originally composed in French. If read by Newburgh in that language such would be the result.

the words referred to in note 8 on p. 329 will convince most readers. It will be well also to direct attention to the probabilities derivable from the fact that William, canon of St. Mary's, Newburgh, and Richard, canon of the Holy Trinity, London, were both Augustinians, and that, as Bishop Stubbs remarks, the Augustinian priories of this date had close relations.

It may be necessary in the preface to the succeeding volume, in which it is proposed to print Book V. of the present history and other matter, to recur to the problem presented by the circumstance that there are coincidences traceable between the language and the facts in the present chronicle and those in the later part of Roger Hoveden's history.<sup>1</sup> That the phrases in the text and those recited in note 1 on p. 388 had a common origin there cannot be the shadow of a doubt. On p. 359 and 361 we find passages obviously derived from two of King Richard's letters which are given in full by Hoveden, and by no other contemporary chronicler.

Now it is certain from the general aspect of their work that Newburgh and Hoveden never borrowed from each other. Whence then came these similarities? All these passages have close reference to Richard and his crusade: Hoveden and Newburgh have a wealth of information on this subject, each one giving details that the other omits, but both concurring in a large body of facts. Had the facts been derived from letters Hoveden would have inserted the entire documents, for such is his custom. He has not done so, but has embodied passages just as he does with his transcripts from Benedict. Can we indicate no source from which all this material has been <sup>1</sup> On pp. 305 and 306 we have two sayings of Richard's own, one as to selling London if he could find a purchaser, the other about Bishop Hugh of Durham. Each of these is given by Newburgh in practically the same words as those in which

Richard of Devizes, pp. 8 and 10, states them. In addition to this we find the puerility as to a truce between Richard and Saladin for "three years, three months, three weeks, three days, three hours," occurring also in Richard of Devizes.

 King's tongue free speech and jest, during the dangers of piled: the the crusades, in the trying days of shipwreck and of lost work wandering in Germany, and finally throughout the months of Anselm of prison and anxious negotiation which preceded the the chap-return to England. In brief he must have been “regis “comes ubique intus et foris.” We know that Anselm lain.
 the chaplain shared these dangers and enjoyed these opportunities of converse with his royal master: we are certain too, for the writer known as John of Peterborough has told us so,<sup>1</sup> that Anselm penned an account of them, now unfortunately lost. Is it not then more than merely possible that imbedded in the chronicles of Newburgh and Hoveden we have passages from Anselm's work which appear in the pages of these two writers as otherwise inexplicable coincidences? The point has an interest which may perhaps excuse a careful examination of the evidence.

The original manuscript of Ralph of Coggeshall's chronicle (Cott. Vesp. D. X.) has something to tell which probably solves this problem. It is plainly a copy of the abbot's rough draft interlined and corrected by the author himself, two whole leaves, for instance, being introduced in places where the margins allowed too little room. All, or nearly all, of this imported matter relates to the third crusade, and there is much erasure and much writing on the margins of ff. 61 b. and 62. The two lines preceding the principal erasure on fo. 61 b. run

Sources from which the history was compiled : the lost work of Anselm the chaplain. thus ; " Paucis suorum secum retentis in quibus erant " Baldewinus de Betun et magister Philippus clericus " regis" et quidam fratres templi, qui omnes in partes " Selavoniæ . . ." In the margin attached by the usual marks (") to the word regis are the words " atque Anselmus capellanus qui hæc omnia nobis, ut " vidit et audivit, retulit."<sup>1</sup>

Thus, then, we know that we are in possession of Anselm's own words so far as a verbal recital written down by an auditor can represent them. When Anselm comes to write his own history of events we must expect to find the same substance in different though equivalent words. If then we find that what Coggeshall gives us exists in Hoveden with merely verbal differences, may we not suppose that in the one case we have a reported conversation, in the other an extract from a written book ? When we trace the same story to Newburgh's pages we must expect further alterations made with a view to style of narration.

What we know to be Anselm's narrative begins with four incidents of Richard's wandering, the second being the one in which Hugh the Merchant's page, showing too much gold at a money changer's stall, and exhibiting too many of the marks of a courtier, is caught and questioned, but is allowed to go free again. The story proceeds with the appearance of the same youth in the market with the King's gloves in his belt, and narrates his capture, torture, threatened death, and confession.<sup>2</sup> Newburgh compresses this so very much that we can only say that his account is not discordant with Coggeshall's summary of “lenter et argumentose peroravit ut omnibus admirationi ac venerationi haberetur . . . . surrexit imperator, “et rege ad se accersito, osculatus est eum, deinceps blande leniterque cum eo colloquens.”

In Hoveden's account, iii. 199, we find these words:—

“Rex libere et constanter et ita intrepide respondit, quod non solum eum imperator gratia vel venia dignum, sed etiam laude judicavit. Nam inclinantem se regem erexit, et suscep“pit in osculo pacis, et confederavit eum sibi . . . . circumstante populo, et in lacrymas ruente p̄e gaudio . . . . Et tunc . . . . centum millia marcarum, “mediante duce Austriae, pro sua liberatione promisit.”

Turning now to Newburgh, p. 388, we find the following:—

Ille vero hilari fretus conscientia, constanti et libera responsione ita objecta diluit, nt imperator quoque non solnm ad misericordiam verum etiam ad reverentiam ejus flecti videretur. Multis enim p̄e gaudio in lacrimas resolutis, inclinatum regem dignanter erexit uberiorem de cetero gratiam et profusiora solatia pollicens, re autem vera ingenti summæ, mediante duce Austriae, ab ipso rege pro sua liberatione promissæ, sitibunde inhians.

It will be conceded at once that the identity between the portions of the last two passages printed in italics is not accidental. Most also will agree that the spirit, form, and substance of all three bespeak a common origin. If this be conceded it will be seen that the words of Newburgh and Hoveden are brought into direct relation with those which we know come from the lips of Anselm the chaplain. We have no reason to think that Coggeshall ceased at any point of his narration of Richard's troubles to draw from Anselm's information. It is improbable that he who could have obtained all from the best possible authority (and who in fact says of Anselm “haec omnia nobis retulit”) should have rested content with a part only of the thrilling tale; but that the abbot was summarising is clear from his obviously eclectic account of the captivity.

The above passage is on fo. 63 b. of Coggeshall's MS., and on fo. 65 b. we find an account of the death of Leopold of Austria, occupying about a page.

This is subjoined and contrasted with the corresponding passages from Newburgh (lib. v. cap. viii). Hoveden's account (iii. pp. 274-8) is omitted as superfluous, for when compared with Newburgh's it is at once seen to be identical in substance and to abound in verbal coincidences of the most striking character.<sup>1</sup>

The opinion of Bishop Stubbs (in his edition of Hoveden, iii., 275, note 1,) confirms the assertion that here we certainly have Coggeshall, Newburgh, and Hoveden drawing from the same source. What was that source? The events were later than the captivity, but happened during the stay, or rather caused the termination of the stay of the hostages. Of the three named companions of Richard's wandering, Baldwin of Bethune, Philip, and Anselm, the first was we know one of the hostages left with Leopold of Austria. It is not unnatural to suppose that Anselm was left also, but even if he returned with Richard, he, as "regis comes ubique intus et foris," would have learned everything from Baldwin of Bethune, who at the end of 1194 made a journey to England to fetch the duke's niece and the princess of Cyprus, and then (Hoveden, iii. 275, 278,) learning when abroad about the duke's death brought the ladies back again to England.

Leaving Coggeshall and taking up Hoveden, we find Sources from which the history of vol. iii. an account of the danger caused to Richard by the murder of the Bishop of Liège, and on p. 224 a version of the Ingeburga scandal, which took place during the year of Richard's imprisonment. These are virtually identical with Newburgh's accounts at pp. 368-70 and 396-8. The identity is palpable though mainly through the close correspondence of facts. Each of course has some points that the other omits, but the body of the account is in each case the same. Newburgh has with his usual skill avoided falling into the precise words of his original, but the following instance reveals the fact that he has copied.

In Hoveden (iii. p. 215), we read :—

“Et hoc juraverunt in animam imperatoris episcopi, duces,
“comites, et nobiles omnes qui interfuerunt . . .”

Newburgh (p. 398. l. 24), has :—

“Episcopi et duces eum unversa nobilitate quæ aderat jura-“verunt in animam imperatoris . . .”

Each of these tales is of the kind we should expect to derive from a man placed in Anselm's position and from no one else, and, as we have already said, Hoveden's habit of giving letters and public documents in extenso bears strongly against any idea of the news having reached our authors in that shape.

Finally if our theory is correct we may expect to find that one chronicler has included some unique story which the other has not chosen to copy from Anselm's work. Such a story may be found in Newburgh (p. 405), where we are told of the treacherous attempt to seize Richard again after his release, at the very port of embarkation.

Newburgh, who never invents anything but the form of conversations, cannot have derived this from anyone who did not know the minutest details of Richard's adventures. He only of all historians tells it, and it is therefore unlikely to have been a public rumour, least of all one so common and widely spread as to have reached Newburgh Priory.

Thus we have clear correspondences of matter and language between the writings of Newburgh and of two other historians on points relating to Richard's adventures abroad. We positively know that one of those two drew his account from Anselm the chaplain, "qui haec omnia nobis ut vidit et audivit retulit," and who was as "John of Peterborough" says, "regis comes ubique intus et foris." We know also that Anselm wrote a book on the events of the king's captivity, and we are assured that he was "gestorum regis assertor et testis,"<sup>1</sup> and the conclusion that Newburgh drew from that book seems therefore but natural and reasonable.

In various parts of Newburgh's work we detect public documents or "news letters" such as those from Terric the Templar, the letter of Henry VI. to the King of France, and of the Genoese to Pope Urban, not quoted, but fused into the general mass of the history.<sup>2</sup> This fusion is a legitimate process and by no means detracts from the character of the work, but we must now consider the question of accuracy. Unfortunately in minor matters Newburgh is not unfrequently wrong. It will be admitted that for a history written for the most part in general terms the errors detailed below are rather numerous.<sup>3</sup> Others will be found to which attention has been called in foot-notes.

<sup>2</sup> Mr. H. C. Hamilton says that cap. xxv. of lib. ii. is a summary from FitzStephen. This is exceedingly probable, but I can unfortunately adduce no proof. Similarly though St. Ailred, the famous abbot of Rievaulx, has probably been laid under contributions no sure signs can be quoted.

Other works attributed to William of Newburgh.

A few words must here be added as to other works assigned to Newburgh. We shall see (p. xlvi) that Ussher has attributed to him a treatise "De rebus Terre Sanctæ" which proves to be the early portion of the "Itinerarium Regis Ricardi." Pits does not include this, but gives the following list<sup>1</sup> :—

"In Cantica Canticorum," Liber unus: "Crebra petitionis tuæ postulatio"<sup>2</sup>

The last is in the Stowe and Lambeth MSS. and is printed in Hearne's edition, vol. iii. The theological books have not yet been identified.

This attribution of a book "De rebus Anglorum" beginning "Primum ostendenda, &c." to our author now proves to be fallacious, for on fo. 97 b. of Cott. MS. Cleop. A. 1, a compilation mainly founded on Newburgh's real work, we find, after a blank page, the words "Primum ostendenda est origo eausæ qua Willelmus dux Normannorum Angliam appetit."

Nine MSS. of Newburgh's chronicle are now extant. Mann-Sir T. Duffus Hardy enumerates eight, but he has omitted scripts of the Dublin MS. and one British Museum copy (Add. MS. New-24, 981) and has included the Bodleian MS. 712 (2619), burgh's
a mere compilation into which, however, large portions of Newburgh's work enter.

The complete list comprises the following, the letters Groups subjoined being those by which they are quoted. The into which grouping shows their relationships. The they fall.

Group 1	{ Stowe, 857 . . . . .	(xii. cent.) (S).
	{ Lambeth, 73 . . . . .	(xiii. cent.) (L).
Group 2	Cott. Vesp. B. vi. . . . .	(xiii. cent.) (C).
Group 3	{ Bodl. Rawl. B. 192 . . . . .	(xiii. cent.) (B).
	{ Trin. Coll. Dubl. E. 4. 21 . . . . .	(xiv. cent.) (D).
	{ Br. Mus. Addit., 24,981 . . . . .	(xv. cent.) (A).
Group 4	{ C.C.C. Camb., celxii. . . . .	(xiv. cent.) (G).
	{ Bodl. Digby 101 . . . . .	(xiv. cent.) (O).
	{ Bibl. Reg. 13 B. ix. . . . .	(xv. cent.) (R).

The author's original manuscript is not extant, but careful examination gives reason for thinking that S. C. and possibly B., the leading MSS. of groups 1, 2, and 3, were derived from it.<sup>1</sup> The origin of group 4 is not so certain.

<sup>1</sup> Such indications are to be seen for example in the readings given in the following notes:—1, p. 37; 3, p. 40; 7 and 8, p. 74; 4, p. 80; 11, p. 116; 1, p. 126; 2, p. 140. These instances could be indefinitely multiplied. The case of B., however, presents some difficulties.

scripts.
MS. "S." [S.] The Stowe MS. This MS., which has within the last year become once more available for study, is the one on which Hearne founded his edition of 1719. It is a beautifully written copy in a hand of the 12th cent., of small folio size, with double columnus of 32 lines.<sup>1</sup> The hand perhaps changes once or twice, though the differences of style are very slight, so slight as to induce hesitation in pronouncing a definite opinion.

Unfortunately this copy has in two places<sup>2</sup> suffered mutilation, the missing leaves, comprising in all about 34 pages of print, being supplied by a modern transcript. On the first page of the history a 14th cent. hand has written the words Liber S. Mariae de Novo Burgo, and on the preceding fly-leaf we find a small table of contents:—

- " Liber Sanctæ Mariæ de Novoburgo.
- " In hoc volumine continentur haec :—
- " Historia Anglorum.
- " Omelia super 'Cum loqueretur Jesus ad turbas.'
- " Sermo de Trinitate,
- " Sermo de sancto Albano."

There are various other mediaeval notes. One remarks that the canon who wrote the book had seen S. Godric in his old age. Another, at the end, quotes Hoveden as to the date of the death of S. William of York. Perhaps the most interesting are some notes written with a style at the back of the last written page, for these almost obliterated lines may possibly be in the hand of William of Newburgh himself. They seem to be notes of two quotations which he actually uses in his work; the first, of which the words "in bello fortis fuerint," are most easily legible, occurs on p. 11 at line 18, and is derived from Gildas; the second, "quantum cum habentur, tem-

<sup>1</sup> It contains very few errors. Most of these are misspellings, fideris (faderis), laborabat, &c. The point noticed on p. 172, note 2, shows that it was, as might be expected, taken from the author's rough draft.

“poralia hæret amōr tantum cum substrahuntur urit Mauu-
be from St. Gregory.

The volume once belonged to Sir Roger Twysden, and was bought “16 Aug. 1633, pretium 16s.” It then belonged to Sir Thomas Sebright, who lent it to Hearne. Later it passed into the Stowe collection, and then fell into the hands of the Lords Ashburnham, and did not become available for study until the summer of 1883.

[L.] The MS. No. 73 in the Archbishop's library at Lambeth is a handsome folio copy of the 13th century, written in double columns of 41 lines.<sup>1</sup> Newburgh's history extends from fo. 1 to fo. 103 a., and is followed by a sermon on the text, “Cum loqueretur Jesus ad “turbas,” which is also found in the Stowe MS. Then, introduced by the words “Tractatus ejusdem ad eundem super hunc versum, ‘Benedicamus Patrem et Filium cum Sancto Spiritu,’” follows the “Sermo de Trinitate” complete.

Only a fragment of this sermon appears in S., and a large portion of the “Sermo de S. Albano,” complete in L., has in S. lost a considerable part of the beginning.

In the Lambeth copy the “Shepherd” of Hermas concludes the volume. This is not in S. From the words “Tractatus ejusdem ad eundem,” we may conclude that William of Newburgh wrote these sermons<sup>2</sup>

and dedicated them, as well as his history, to abbot Ermald of Rievaulx.

There can be little doubt that L. is a copy taken direct from S. The reasons why it has nevertheless been quoted are these: (i.) At the time this edition was begun the Stowe MS. was not accessible, and before it became available the greater part of L. had been collated. (ii.) There are gaps amounting to many pages in S., and as L. thus remains as the basis of a small but yet not inconsiderable part of the edition, a full collation of it with S. in the other portions demonstrates its high authority for the passages in which it has to act as the foundation of the text.

MS. "C." [C.] MS. Cotton, Vesp. B. VI. This is an early 13th century copy presenting the complete text, and is a most valuable manuscript. It is contained in a quarto volume written in double columns of 32 lines.

This volume includes a miscellaneous collection of treatises, Newburgh's History occupying ff. 111 to 182 b. There is on fo. 111 the following note: "Mr. Savell gave me this book in Trinitie terme, an<sup>o</sup>. Dni. 1569<sup>o</sup>." This identifies one of the copies referred to by Archbishop Ussher (Hearne's ed. p. 806).

Many peculiarities (see p. 80, note 4) tend to show that it is derived from the author's rough draft, which would on doubt be lent by the canons of Newburgh after their own fair copy had been taken. One special point which a careful examination of this copy has elicited may be noted here. On fo. 133, at the foot of the page and in a different hand from the text are the following notes:—

"Bigodus Abbas noster, eui successit Edwardus.

"Anno Domini MCLXXVI. Impositum est silentium canonis Sanctæ Frideswide apud Oxoniam a Gileberto Londoniensi episcopo et Rogero Wigornensi episcopo ex mandato papæ Alexandri iij. ne quam ulterius controversiam adver-

“ sus ecclesiam de Oseneia moverent a qua abjudicati fuerant

On fo. 145 is a note :—

“ Anno Domini MCLXXXIII. obiit Edwardus abbas ij.
 “ Oseneiae, qui præfuit annis xvij. mense uno diebus x. Cui “ successit Hugo de Buxyngham.”

There is thus no question that this MS. belonged to the Augustine canons of Oseney Abbey, and this fact, by explaining another circumstance, brings us as it were into the actual presence of another early chronicler.

Late in the 13th century Thomas Wykes was a canon of Oseney, and if we turn to his chronicle in the Wykes. Annales Monastici,<sup>2</sup> we find that much of the earlier part of his work, necessarily for remoter times a compilation, consists of extracts from the treatise of William of Newburgh, like himself an Augustinian canon ; indeed in his preliminary remarks<sup>3</sup> Wykes has the following passage :—

 “ sissimi gesta Anglorum sufficienter conscripserunt, nihil
 “ memorabile relinquentes.”

It is hardly to be doubted then that the volume now among the Cottonian MSS. has been handled and perused by Thomas Wykes himself.

[B.] The MS. in the Bodleian Library catalogued as MS. “B.” Rawlinson B. 192 is a late 13th century copy in a cursive hand, and belongs to the group which includes the Dublin fragment and Brit. Mus. Addit. MS. 24,981. It is a quarto of 95 leaves, written in double columns of about thirty-six lines and contains no other treatise. The book formerly belonged to Sir J. Jekyll. Several points show that like C. it was derived from an ill-written cursive original.

It is amusing to notice that no less than five distinct handwritings appear in the first five and a half columns. Four monks tried to decipher the original they were set to transcribe, each in succession failing, until at the sixth column the work was handed over to the quick, capable penman who carried it through to its close, and who concluded with the astonishing couplet, Explicit, explicat : ludere scriptor eat.

Finito libro sit laus et gloria Christo.

Ascription of the history to William of Rufforth.

The copyist was certainly a clever scribe, but his swift pen is too often guilty of imperfect and blundered words. Rarely did he stop to correct his errors, trusting to a revision no doubt, but scarcely to the particular one which actually took place,—about a hundred and twenty years later.

This revision has been the source of great perplexity in using the manuscript, but unless otherwise stated all various readings refer to the work of the original hand. The perverting copy must have been as corrupt as Addit. MS. 24,981 or more so, or the so-called corrector must have been guilty of conjectural emendations on a large scale. Happily he quickly grew tired of falsifying and mutilating, and the bulk of the MS., which is valuable, is but little injured. The text is not quite complete, certain chapters having been omitted, apparently being regarded as of little interest.<sup>2</sup>

MS. "D." [D.] The Dublin manuscript (MS. Trin. Coll. Dublin, E. 4. 21), a fragment containing the 4th and 5th books only, is for several reasons specially important. It is a small quarto, written for the most part in a clear 14th century hand, and is unusually free from contractions.

<sup>2</sup> These are: Lib. ii., 14, 15, 20, 21; lib. iii., 3, 21 (partially); lib. v. is complete.

The component parts of the volume as it now stands are (i.) a metrical version of the Psalms, with a few canticles; (ii.) a metrical treatise, “De duodecim abusivis seculi”; (iii.) the 4th and 5th books of Newburgh, extending from fo. 52 to fo. 155; (iv.) a spurious chapter annexed to Newburgh, written on ff. 155 and 156; and lastly, after a blank page (v.) a chronicle of the affairs of the Holy Land, which proves to be a fragment of the Itinerarium Regis Ricardi. This, which will be further described below, extends from fo. 157 to fo. 176 a., and is in a hand which appears nowhere else in the volume.

The Newburgh manuscript belongs to the same group as A. and B. That it is not a transcript from the latter, however, is evident from several points; for instance, it contains (see p. 383, note 9) a small passage which B. accidentally omits. The group A. B. D. is the one which is represented by Picard's edition.

Turning to Hearne's edition, pp. 804–807, we find a copy of some notes by Archbishop Ussher as to the peculiarities of the MSS. which belonged to Savile, Bromley, and Josselin written in the copy which belonged to himself. We learn that the Savile<sup>1</sup> and Bromley MSS. contained the following chapters in excess of the archbishop's own copy:—Lib. iii. cap. 13; lib. iv. cap. 36; lib. v. chapters 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 29, 30, and 33.<sup>2</sup> Josselin's MS. also contained these chapters, except 22, 23, and 33; but it had, and alone had, a chapter, “De principiis Salahadini et de visione camerarii regis Ierosolimorum,” following chapter 34.<sup>3</sup> Now

<sup>2</sup> The Corpus MS. [G.] also omits chapters 6 and 7 of Book V. So also R.

<sup>3</sup> The last genuine chapter of Newburgh (De concordia, &c.) and the spurious chapter are in a 14th century hand of very peculiar character.

scripts.

the Dublin MS. contains all the chapters named, except Nos. 22, 23, 24,<sup>1</sup> and 33, and alone of all existing MS. of Newburgh it presents the chapter, “De principiis.” The archbishop further notes that the whole of the chapter except the story of the chamberlain’s vision, “ ex libro Gulielmi, Newbrigensis ‘De rebus Terra ‘ ‘Sanctæ’ desumptum est : qui in eodem Jo. Josselin MS. exemplari, ejusdem Gulielmi Anglice Historiae est subjectus.” This treatise, “De rebus Terræ Sanctæ,” is in the Dublin MS., and in that alone, and therefore, despite the no doubt accidental discrepancy as to chapter 24 of book v. noted above, we may regard Josselin’s MS. as identified with the Dublin copy.

The authorship of the early part of the Itinerarium Regis Ricardi wrongly attributed to Newburgh.

The importance of this as regards our author has now to be shown. In the above quotation Ussher speaks of the treatise “De rebus Terræ Sanctæ” as having been written by Newburgh, and in Sir T. Duffus Hardy’s Catalogue of MSS. the matter is again mentioned.<sup>2</sup> The circumstance on which this statement is grounded is one which has in many other cases given rise to similarly fallacious attributions.

The chapter “De principiis” is written in the peculiar hand of the scribe who corrected errors in the Newburgh MS., and who wrote chapter 34 of book v. It furnishes an account of the rise of Saladin, and includes a vision respecting an eagle flying over the Christian army. As an addition to Newburgh’s history this narrative is absurdly out of place, the chronicler having

<sup>2</sup> Vol. ii. p. 116. In the same sentence it is erroneously stated that Josselin’s MS. was used by Silvius for his edition of 1567. He used a MS. of the G. O. R. group, omitting all the chapters which those MSS. do not contain, and admitting readings peculiar to them, e.g., ferventibus (note 1, p. 226). See also the clause on p. 300 (note 13) : this is omitted by Silvius.

already recorded the death of Saladin (p. 381). This, however, is not the sole peculiarity, for the first part reappears verbatim on fo. 158 b., and the second on fo. 59 b. of the MS. of the treatise "De rebus Terræ " Sanctæ." Here the contents of the chapter are in their due place, but on comparison with the "Itinerarium Regis Ricardi" it will be seen that we have in this MS. no work of Newburgh's, but a hitherto unknown copy of the treatise of Richard the Canon.

It begins on fo. 147 a. with the words :—

" Solet nonnnnqnam accidere ut res quantumlibet notas et
" eximie gestas . . . "

and ends on fo. 176, col. 1, with a remarkable passage which occurs in no other extant manuscript :—

" Fidenter dicimus, quod in Domino obdormierit cujus vita
" laudabilis et labem nesciens, cuius obitus non minus mira-
" culosus exstitit quam universo exercitui nostro lugendus
" libet paulisper digredi et vocitatem stilo succinctiore per-" stringere, ut nec testis virtutibus nec longiore tractu brevi-
" tas affectata turbetur."<sup>1</sup>

This point is marked by note 2 on p. 124 of the Rolls edition of the Itinerarium. It should be observed that there is not a word in the MS. which indicates the authorship.

This is not the place to go further into the matter, but it is noteworthy that the treatise which was once attributed to Geoffrey de Vinesauf should now prove to have been also attributed to William of Newburgh. It is certain that Newburgh saw the Itinerarium, and transfused some of its contents, and it is found juxtaposed with his history in the Dublin MS. Still more, a spurious chapter has been made to act as a link between the two works. But for all this the ascription is too absurd for argument.<sup>1</sup>

MS. "A." [A.] Brit. Mus. Addl. MS. 24,981. This, like R., is an utterly degraded 15th century copy, but it belongs to the group B. D., and like those MSS. omits some chapters. It was bought recently in Paris, and may have been used by Picard. There are few ornamentations, and the lines run across the entire page.

MS. "G." [G.] The manuscript in the Parker Library at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, is a small folio volume fairly written in double columns of forty lines, and apparently completed by a single scribe. The character of the handwriting leads to the belief that the transcript was made in the earlier half of the fourteenth century. There is no other treatise in the volume.

On examination, this MS. proves to belong to the class which contains Bodleian MS. Digby 101 and B.M. Bibl. Reg. 13. B. ix. It omits the twelve chapters<sup>2</sup> which are left out of the Antwerp edition of 1587, but there is the further peculiarity that in Book I. the chapters which in all editions are numbered 14 and 15 are found in the MS. after Cap. 17.

Even apart from these imperfections of the text, there is but little to be said in favour of this MS. It contains gross mistakes, and these, though not so numerous as in the utterly degraded 15th cent. copies in the British Museum, are still abundant enough to render the copy undesirable for collation.

It is perhaps worthy of remark that the following note printed by Hearne (p. 806) among extracts from Archbishop Ussher's papers is written in the margin of Cap. 36., Lib. iv. in the Corpus MS. :—

Manu-

“ De hac expulsione conqueritur Nigellus monachus
“ Cantuar. in epistola ad Willielmum Eliensem.”

It would seem probable therefore that the Archibishop had had this copy in his hands.

Three chapters (1–3, Lib. iv.), have been collated with this copy, and a small number of selected readings from it are given at various points.

[O.] The Bodleian MS., Digby 101, referred to above, MS. “ O.” classes with the Corpus MS., and Brit. Mus. Reg. 13 B. ix. It is a fairly written 14th cent. copy in small quarto. It has been referred to in places, but is not worth collating.

[R.] The British Museum MS., Reg. 13 B. ix. is a MS. “ R.” large quarto written in double columns, and is one of those astounding productions of the 15th century, which tell eloquently of a lapse from the high purpose of the early monastic system. It is difficult to understand of what service this MS. could have been to its possessors, except as an exercise in the art of conjectural emendation. It is a degraded specimen of the G. and O. group, and omits the chapters which G. has neglected. Some of the decrees of the Lateran council are also omitted.

The omission of so many as twelve chapters from the G. O. R. group of MSS. raises the question whether we are to regard them as the representatives of a first edition put forward by the author, and the S., L., and C. groups as the revised work. Apart from the fact that in S., L., and C. the work ends abruptly there is much to negative the idea, and to show that these chapters were omitted by the deliberate choice of the transcribers:—

[i.] The A., B., D. group exhibits a considerably different series of omissions, one or all of these MSS. leaving out the chapters about the council of Tours, St. Godric, Ketell, the decrees of the third Lateran council, the epistle of Gregory, and the four chapters in the fifth book as to corpses emerging from the grave. Reasons for all these omissions can be assigned. The canon law could be better read elsewhere; Reginald of Durham had written a better account of S. Godric; and the prodigious stories were neither important nor easily credible.

[ii.] The decrees of the third Lateran council, wholly omitted from B., are partially included in R. Plainly it was a weariness to write out that which would be more satisfactorily read in special treatises on the Canon Law.

[iii.] Though each group contributes desirable corrections of isolated words, only in two or three cases of obvious interpolation does any manuscript supply a supplementary fact, in no case the correction of an historical error.<sup>1</sup> The exceptions relate to the insertions of the names of persons too vaguely indicated in the text. A. for instance inserts “ nomine Adalem” (p. 31, note 4).<sup>2</sup> These, however, are obvious interpolations from other sources of information.

Newburgh's character as a historian.

Having thus discussed the main points connected with Newburgh's chronicle, the general question of value and historical credibility remains for consideration. The authorities for the reigns of Stephen, Henry, and Richard, distribute themselves very unevenly. For Stephen we have the last portion of the Anglosaxon chronicle and Huntingdon, to whose account Newburgh adds some interesting matter. Then up to varying dates we have Ordericus Vitalis and the Hexham and Rievaulx histories, Malmesbury, the continuation of Florence of Worcester, and the “Gesta Stephani,” but from 1154 to 1170 when the clear light of Benedict's chronicle shines across the path there is little, and that little of the most uncertain character.

Diceto, Gervase, and Hoveden deal with this period, but they are not really contemporary as actual recorders of events, though all lived through the period. Newburgh's character as a historian.

The “Draco Normannicus” of Étienne de Reuen also is contemporary, but it is a poem and is vague where precision would be peculiarly welcome. Unfortunately we are not yet in full possession of the “Histoire de Guillaume le Maréchal,” though the specimens published exhibit similar faults. The poem, moreover, was not written till about 1230.<sup>1</sup>

Lastly, there is Newburgh, who was a lad of eighteen when this period commenced, and a man of thirty-four when it ended, and who, had he been in a favourable position, would doubtless have left us a luminous history.

His account of these years, “the darkest since the ninth century,” is valuable through the scarcity of material for the period. When Benedict takes up the narrative, Newburgh’s strong sense and discrimination, his righteous spirit, his eloquent pen, and his ideas in advance of the age still call for our respect and interest us in his story, though his vagueness frequently disappoints us. Of course he must be judged as a historian not as a chronicler, but then the standard must be all the more severe. When we see Benedict mistaking or misplacing, his isolated error does but rouse us to a sense of wonder at his general accuracy. When, however, our historian, our commentator and interpreter, errs in his obiter dicta, we hesitate to believe that his conclusions always rest on sound bases of fact.

<sup>1</sup> This poem gives decided support to the account given by Giraldus of the death illness of Henry II. It shows that after the treaty of Azay he went to Chinon, and that while there he lay for three days delirious, saying nothing that could be understood. (Lines 9091-4.)

En tel peine e en tel dolor
Fu travalliez tresque al terz jor.
Il parlout, mais nuls ne saveit
Prou entendre ke il diseit.

It is therefore impossible, as he died on the 6th, that he could have concluded the treaty on July 4. See p. 278, note 4.

Newburgh's character as a historian.

Assuredly we can trust Newburgh to give us the general ideas of his time. If he is not always in possession of full details, as he sometimes frankly admits, he knows the results of which they are the invisible components, and which formed the public opinion of his day, and we may thus test and regulate the opinions we derive from the detailed and sometimes, though rarely, defective or contradictory utterances of such men as Benedict and Hoveden.

Newburgh's work, though now shown to have far less of the character of an original composition than has hitherto been supposed, is one which no modern historian can afford to ignore, but it should be referred to after other chronicles for the sake of supplemental facts and for general statements fresh from a keen philosophical mind. It would occupy too much space to indicate even a small proportion of the facts as to which Newburgh is the principal authority or as to which he greatly adds to our knowledge, but as mere specimens we may cite the accounts of Archbishop Ealdred, of the siege of Rouen in 1174, of the negotiation between Longchamp and William the Lion, of the outbreak against the Jews in the first year of Richard, and of the affair of William Longbeard. Others have been already casually mentioned. Even so late as the reign of Richard I. when the national records begin to increase in fulness and variety, and Richard of Devizes and the author of the Itinerarium vie with Hoveden in giving us information, we cannot dispense with Newburgh's testimony as to home events which, overshadowed by the stirring news pouring in from the East, are not presented to us by any chronicler with the clearness and abundance we could desire. Newburgh has been called a partisan of John, but surely by some one who never studied his work, for if we remember that we are reading the writings of a man who was never to hear either of the murder of Arthur or of the villanies of John's later years we shall be surprised by merciless exposures of motives which were to lead to those deeds. Again, in his account of the Becket tragedy we are struck by the courageous independence of mind he shows. This impartiality is the more striking as we know that Becket on one occasion actively interfered on behalf of the canons of Newburgh, entreating Pope Alexander III. to save them from the oppressive action of Archbishop Roger of York.<sup>1</sup> In one special instance we may decide that Newburgh fails to help us to the real meaning of events. It is scarcely giving us a clue to the interpretation of Longchamp's acts to say, as Newburgh in effect does, that they were wholly due to a desire for personal aggrandisement.

That the prelate was ambitious and overbearing is indubitable, but there was a real faithfulness to the King and a real endeavour to do what was best for the kingdom under conditions which were overwhelmingly difficult. Working for an absent master who plied him with demands for money, and who issued private instructions annulling public documents, Longchamp stood in an unenviable position bearing the blame of Richard's duplicity on the one hand, and striving on the other to hold secure against a powerful traitor a kingdom in which there were elements apparently capable of reproducing the hideous drama of Stephen's reign. All this we see and much more, and we cannot praise Newburgh as an interpreter at this interesting point. Similarly at an earlier period he inadequately explains for us the quarrels of Henry with his sons which fill so much of the years 1173-1189. Even the story of the celebrated interview at which Richard did homage to Philip in Henry's presence, is narrated, without a hint of underlying causes. Indeed, if our knowledge of Henry's reign were confined to what Newburgh has told us of it we should never have heard of Rosamond Clifford, of the Princess Alais,<sup>1</sup> nor even of Eleanor's imprisonment.

A true delineation of policy and personal motives is, of course, essential to the classification of events. The public designs and even the private motives of a prince or powerful minister, when thoroughly revealed to us, cause detached incidents to fall into broad masses, and to become intelligible in their association as well as in their isolation. We can excuse Newburgh for not seeing how valuable posterity would have considered a detailed exposition of Henry's arrangements for the administration of justice, or an account of the industries of the twelfth century, but at a date when a king's private vices were political forces the leading facts as to the three unhappy women named above are necessary elements of a true history, and we marvel that we hear so little of them. It would be ungrateful for us, the living section of that posterity in whose service the sick canon spent his last days, to treat his nobly written pages with any approach to disrespect, but we must bend somewhat to the demand that all things should be shown in true perspective. That reverence should not exaggerate is now perhaps more loudly demanded than that criticism should not unduly diminish; still we must be cautious in both respects, and certainly in endeavouring to settle the rank among ancient historians which is to be allowed to any author no good will be done by general terms of praise. Not the worst tribute to William of Newburgh, who loved truth so well, must surely be a kindly but impartial analysis of his valuable work.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> If the omission of these two cases is attributed to modest reticence, it must be replied that the author could surely tell of a king that which he has told of Bishop Hugh of Durham (lib. v. cap. 11).

He only alludes in general terms to Henry's conjugal infidelity.

The first edition of Newburgh's history was issued by Silvins, at Antwerp, 12mo., 1567. It omits many chapters<sup>1</sup> and contains a marvellous number of mistakes. It was printed from a manuscript allied to the G.O.R. group, but apparently not now extant. This edition was reprinted by Commeline in a collection of English chronicles (Heidelberg 1587).

John Picard published an edition at Paris in 1610,<sup>2</sup> derived from a MS. of the A.B.D. type. A marginal note, p. 17, states that his manuscript adds the words "nomine Adalem" in cap. 4 of Lib. I. The words occur in Br. M. Addl. MS. 24,981, but Picard has included readings from the Antwerp edition, and has thus rendered it difficult to be certain as to his copy.<sup>3</sup>

This edition, though still not quite complete,<sup>4</sup> and though somewhat incorrect, is much better than the Antwerp volume, the editor having added some useful notes.

The first really complete edition was published by Thomas Hearne in 1719 (Oxford, 3 vols. 8vo.). The third volume contains a reprint of Picard's notes with Hearne's discursive additions, and includes the sermons attributed to Newburgh. This edition is mainly founded on the Stowe MS., the Lambeth copy being used where the former has lost pages.

toria Rerum Anglicarum. Thomas Wykes, Walter Hemingburgh, and John Brompton have more or less done this. So also have the anonymous compilers whose works are in Bodl. MS. 712, and Cott. MS. Cleop. A. 1.

<sup>1</sup> Lib. iii., 13 (though the title is duly included in the elenches); lib. iv., 36; lib. v., 6, 7, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 29, 30, 33. Cap. 3 of lib. iii. is deficient, omitting all after the point noted on p. 214, note 7. The same chapter is defective in Picard's edition.

<sup>2</sup> I have not been able to see a copy which bears the date 1632.

It is the fashion to decry Hearne's work, but so far as he has been able to use the best MS. he has made but very few blunders. For the remainder he has been compelled to trust to a friend's transcript, and there are several errors within the compass of a few pages.

Hamilton's edition, 1856. The fourth edition was published in 1856 by the English Historical Society, and was edited by Mr. Hans Claude Hamilton. The editor was evidently unable to get access to the Stowe MS., and he therefore founded his edition on the Lambeth copy, collating with Hearne's edition, the Cottonian MS. Vesp. B. VI., and with MS. Bibl. Reg. 13 B. IX.

This edition has been of the greatest service in the preparation of the present volumes.

The present edition. 5. The present edition was also originally founded on the Lambeth MS. (L.), but the basis was shifted after the purchase of the Ashburnham MSS. to the Stowe copy (S.). The text has been fully collated also with the Cottonian MS. (C.), and one of the Oxford copies. (Rawl. B. 192).

The fourth and fifth books have also been collated with the Dublin fragment, and many readings from the other manuscripts have been included in the notes.

The collation with the two principal MSS., the Stowe and the Cottonian, has been the subject of special care, but the Rawlinson and Lambeth MSS. have been only once read.

Various readings : attempts to reduce their number. In order to keep down as far as possible the rising flood of various readings, the following rules have been observed :—

1. Variations in the spelling of classical names are not recorded.

2. Errors in orthography are not noticed when it is clear what word was intended.

3. Variations in certain proper names (a full list of which is given at the foot of the present page) are not included.<sup>1</sup> Such variations as Turci, Thurci, Turchi, Willelmus, Wilelmus, Guilelmus, Gulielmus, &c. can have no interest.

The foregoing analytical statement as to the Historia Rerum Anglicarum has already run to an unexpected length, and any remarks which it may seem desirable to offer as to the times in which and of which William of Newburgh wrote must be reserved for the second volume.

I have in conclusion to express my sincere thanks to my friend Mr. Walter Rye for much assistance of a varied character. Another friend, Mr. Newenham Travers, has given me ready help in revising the proof sheets.

Verumtamen<sup>1</sup> hunc successum, quo videbatur anni praecedentis dedecus treacherously Stephen expiisse, anni sui undecimi fedavit infamia. Cum seizes enim Rannulfus<sup>2</sup> comes Cestrensis, pactis cum eo celebatis, fidelis jam illi et devotus effectus, apud Walingefordam<sup>3</sup> profusis eum juvisset auxiliis; ille post modicum eundem comitem, ad se pacifice et secure venientem, apud Norhamtonam<sup>4</sup> in curia sua, regiae in majestatis et honestatis immemor, hostiliter comprehendit, et castrum Lincolnense,<sup>5</sup> cum ceteris quae usurpasse videbatur, resignare coegit. Fontium, in bono jam<sup>1</sup> statu agentibus. Et quoniam ante annos jam plurimos Saviniacenses per eujusdam abbatis religiosam instantiam in ritus Clarevallenses transierunt; haec tria monasteria per unitatem discipline regularis, arctiori quoque animorum nexu cohærent, et tanquam tria nostræ provinciæ lumina, sacre religionis prærogativa refulgent. Quid autem sentiendum est de his et aliis locis religiosis, quæ<sup>2</sup> in diebus regis Stephani copiosius exstrui vel florere cœperunt, nisi quod castra Dei sunt hæc, in quibus, contra spiritualia nequitiae, Regis Christi excubant milites et exerceantur tirones? Eo quippe tempore, cum regiæ potentiae omissum vigor deperiisset, potentes regni, prout quisque poterat, vel ut suos tutarentur, vel ut alienos fines pervaaderent, munitiones construebant. Malis ergo sic<sup>3</sup> years. pullulantibus atque abundantibus per mollitatem regis Stephani, vel potius per malitiam discordias semper nutrientis diaboli, superabundavit et gloriose eminuit sapiens et salubris provisio Regis Magni, qui nimis tunc temporis solito propensius ad debellandum regem superbie, quales Regem Pacificum decent munitiones sibi noscitur exstruxisse. ## CAP. XVIII.

<sup>1</sup> Both Newngham and Huntington place the Lincoln coronation (at Christmas) and the beginning of the Second Crusade (1147) in the same year. From this it appears that their year, as in most English chronicles, began at Christmas, and therefore that the coronation took place in the historical year 1146. Gervase also gives Christmas 1147, that is, 25 Dec. 1146, as the date of the Lincoln ceremony.

Est Mesopotamiæ trans flumen magnum Euphraten civitas nobilis, quæ quidem vulgo Rohesia,<sup>1</sup> sed rectius et antiquo nomine Edissa, vocatur; a diebus Constantini Magni Christianæ religionis cultui dedita, et beatissimi Thomæ apostoli allatis ex India reliquiis inclita. Hujus civitatis tantus in fide Catholica fervor sub Valente imperatore Arriano fuisse memoratur, ut cum ab eodem missus advenisset præfectus, omnes qui ad Apostoli basilicam orandi studio convenienter gladio mactaturns, nullus domi resedisse referatur: sed omnes a minimo usque ad maximum, ut pro fidei veritate morerentur, illuc multo alacrius quam ad epulas concurrisse, in tantum, ut quædam muliercula parvulum secum filium trahens, dum properat, se simul et sobolem pro Christo expositura ad victimam, irrumperet officium judicis illuc cum terrore maximo properantis. Denique a multis retro annis, cum Sarraceni occulto Dei judicio supra modum in Christianos grassari permissi, captis civitatibus clarissimis, scilicet Alexandria, Antiochia, Jerusalem, Damasco, Ægyptum, Syriam, aliasque Orientis provincias in quibus Christus colebatur occupassent, atque in his omnibus Christianum nomen exterminasset, sola hæc civitas, propugnatrix non tantum murorum sed etiam finium suorum in medio hostium innumerabilium et ferocissimorum, invicta perseveravit usque ad tempus expeditionis Ierosolymitanæ prioris, qua Jerusalem et Antiochiam Christiani expugnatis obtinuere Sarracenis. Tunc enim Turcis incurvantibus laborantes Edisseni auxilium a nostro exercitu petierunt, et virum fortissimum Baldewinum,<sup>2</sup> fratrem illustrissimi ducis Godefridi,<sup>3</sup> primum Gallie generis ducem acceperunt. A.D. 1148. Cirea idem tempus Eugenius papa Romanus, ad sedis Apostolice regimen ex vitæ regularis districione assumptus, ecclesiasticae studio disciplinae in Gallias veniens, generale concilium instituit Remis. In quo dum<sup>7</sup> sederet cum omni frequentia episcoporum atque nobilium, oblatus est ei quidam vir pestifer, qui, spiritu plenus diabolico, præstigiali astutia tam multos seduxerat, ut fretus sequentium numero, per diversa loca formidabilis oberraret; ecclesiis maxime monasteriisque infestus. Diu itaque multumque<sup>8</sup> debacchatus, tandem<sup>9</sup> sapientia vincente malitiam a Remensi archiepiscopo captus est, et sancto concilio exhibitus. Eudo is dicebatur, natione Brito, agnomen habens de Stella; homo illiteratus et idiota, ludificatione dæmonum ita demensus, ut quoniam<sup>10</sup> sermone Gallico Eun dicetur, ad suam personam pertinere erederet, quod in ecclesiasticis exorcismis dicitur, scilicet, "per Eum qui venturus est xvii. 6.

Interea dum circa nostros vel a nostris in oriente A.D. 1149. talia gererentur, Anglia intestinis malis exsanguis et saucia tabescebat. Et quidem de quodam tempore <sup>Lamentable condition of England.</sup> plebis antiquae scriptum est: "In diebus illis non erat " rex in Israel: sed unusquisque quod rectum sibi " videbatur faciebat." At in Anglia sub rege Stephano pejus fiebat. Nam quia tunc impotens erat rex, et per regis impotentiam languida lex, quibusdam quod rectum sibi videbatur agentibus, multi quod insita ratione malum esse sciebant, sublato regis et legis metu, proclivius faciebant. Et primo quidem videbatur regnum Angliæ scissum esse in duo; quibusdam regi, quibusdam vero imperatrici faventibus. Non quod vel rex vel imperatrix suæ parti potenter <sup>Neither</sup> imperaret; sed quod suorum bellicis quisque studiis <sup>king nor empress</sup> pro tempore niteretur. Neuter enim in suos imperiosæ <sup>really</sup> agere et disciplinæ vigorem exercere poterat: sed <sup>ruled a</sup> uterque suos, ne a se deficerent, nihil negando mulcebat. <sup>1</sup> The high colouring of this narrative seems to be the only reason for throwing doubt upon it, and there is much to support it in other chronicles. Newburgh obtained his information, see pp. 72 and 75, direct from Wimund himself and one of his followers, and the air of romance was no doubt caught from Wimund's magniloquence. He asserted that he was a son of Angus, the Maarmor of Moray, slain at Stracathro in 1130, and he appears to have been known as Malcolm McHeth. Somerled, thane of Argyle, supported him and gave him one of his daughters in marriage. One of Wimund's sons was with Somerled in that chief's subsequent incursions. See Chron. S. Crucis (Anglia Sacra, i. 161); Fordun, viii. 2; and Wendover (Eng. Hist. Soc. ed., ii. 250). His consecration as bishop of the Isles is recorded by Stubbs (Chron. Pontif. Eccl. Ebor. Twysden, X. Scriptt., col. 1713).

ex electoribus cum ipso electo ad sedem Apostolicam A.D. 1153. pro negotio tam electionis quam consecrationis, jam dicto archiepiscopo pro se responsalem mittente, qui et electioni contrairet, et consecrationem impediret. Sed venerabili Eugenio, qui ejusdem archiepiscopi apud Clarevallem condiscipulus fuerat, ex hac luce paulo ante subtracto, invenerunt Anastasium sedi Apostolice præsidentem. Tres quippe viri memorabiles, et in vita sua amicissimi, tempore illo decedentes, in morte quoque brevibus sunt intervallis separati, scilicet Eugenius papa Romanus, Bernardus Clarevallis abbas, Henricus Eboracensis archiepiscopus. E quibus Eugenio et Bernardo prius assumptis, Henricus e vestigio secutus est. Vulgato autem duorum transitu, tertio adhuc superstite, Wilelmus olim Eboracensis archiepiscopus, qui Wintoniæ<sup>1</sup> morabatur, spe recuperationis concepta, nam prior eum depositerat, secundus ut deponeretur egerat, tertius deposito successerat, sedem Apostolicam celeriter adiit; judicium non accusans, misericordiam humiliter postulavit. Et ecce certus ex Anglia de transitu Eboracensis archiepiscopi nuntius superveniens, verecundissimas ejus preces multum adjuvit. Et quidem Dunelmensis<sup>2</sup> electus, qui prior illuc venerat, a domino papa sollemniter consecratus, illius qui posterior advenerat pendente adhuc fortuna, discessit. Sed tandem et ipse, prioris judicij rigore sublato, Apostolice manu suetudinis clementiam expertus est, miserante canos ejus papa cum cardinalibus, et satagente circa ejus negotium maxime quodam Gregorio magni nominis cardinali, homine facundissimo et profundissimae astutiae, atque animi vere Romani. De viridibus pueris.

children.

Nec prætereundum videtur inauditum a seculis prodigium, quod sub rege Stephano in Anglia noscitur evenisse. Et quidem diu super hoc, cum tamen a multis prædicaretur, hæsitavi; remque vel nullius vel abditissimæ rationis in fidem recipere ridiculum mihi videbatur: donec tantorum et talium pondere testimoniū ita sum obratus, ut cogerer credere et mirari, quod nullis animi viribus possum<sup>4</sup> attingere vel rimari.

Vicus est in Estanglia quatuor vel quinque, ut dicitur, milliariis distans a nobili monasterio beati regis et martyris Edmundi.<sup>5</sup> Juxta quem vicum quædam antiquissimæ fossæ visuntur, quæ sermone Anglo-Wylpitte,<sup>6</sup> id est, luporum fossæ, dicuntur, et vico-

He apparently places it under the reign of Henry II., and introduces the tale with the words, "aliud quoque mirum, priori non dissimile, in Sutfolke, contigit apud Sanctam Mariam de Wulpetes." The name of this place occurs three times in the chronicle of Jocelin de Brakelond (Camden S. ed. pp. 35, 36, 46), as Wlpit. It is of course Woolpit, near Bury St. Edmunds.

Ex his fossis tempore messis, et occupatis circa frugum collectionem per agros messoribus, emerserunt duo pueri, masculus et femina, toto corpore virides, et coloris insoliti, ex incognita materia veste operti. Cumque per agrum attoniti oberrarent, comprehensi a messoribus ducti sunt in vicum, multisque confluentibus ad tanta novitatis spectaculum, per dies aliquot tenti sunt cibi expertes. Cum ergo inedia jam paene deficerent, nec tamen aliquid ciborum, qui offerebantur, attenderent, forte ex agro contigit fabas inferri, quas illico arripientes, legumen ipsum in thyrsis quæsierunt, et nihil in concavitate thyrsorum invenientes, amare fleverunt. Tunc quidam eorum<sup>1</sup> qui aderant, legumen ex corticibus erutum porrexit<sup>2</sup> eis, quod statim libenter<sup>3</sup> acceptum comedenterunt. Hoc cibo aliti sunt per menses aliquot, quoisque usum panis neverunt. Denique colorem proprium, ciborum nostrorum prævalente natura, paulatim mutantes, et similes nobis effecti, nostri quoque sermonis usum didicerunt. Visumque est prudentibus, ut sacri baptismatis perciperent sacramentum, quod et factum est. Sed puer, qui minor<sup>4</sup> natu videbatur, post baptismum brevi vivens tempore immatura morte decessit, sorore incolumi permanente, et nec in modico a nostri generis feminis diserepante. Post annos vero aliquot, patre in fata concedente, paterni juris plenitudinem, id est, Andegavensem simul et Cinomannensem<sup>1</sup> comitatum, et materni juris expeditam portionem, id est, Normanniae ducatum, recepit. Nam regno Angliae, quod ad jus aequae<sup>2</sup> spectabat maternum, rex Stephanus quamvis remisse et languide, ut superius expositus est, catenus incubabat. Itaque patri succedens, Normandy, et patrem in brevi vel æquans vel etiam excedens, quoconque se vertisset, industrius strenuusque apparuit, ita ut jam illis formidabilis exsisteret, qui felicibus ejus initiis invidebant. Cumque in partibus transmarinis omnia illi quieta jam essent, regno Angliae, quod jure sibi perspicuo competebat, fraudari non ulterius patiens, tam difficili et periculo negotio animum intendit. Metuens autem ne qua post egressum suum in Normanniam fieret irruptio a rege Francorum, cuius rex Stephanus affinitate gaudebat, nam sororem ejus jampridem filio suo Eustachio uxorem accepérat, fines suos præsidii opportune dispositis cautius eredit muniendos. Quomodo rex<sup>1</sup> Henricus secundus dominica regia ad pristinum revocavit statum.

Considerans autem rex,<sup>2</sup> quod regii redditus breves A.D. 1155. essent, qui avito tempore uberes fuerant, eo quod regia dominica per mollitiem regis Stephani ad alios multosque dominos majori ex parte migrassent, praecepit ea cum omni integritate a quibusunque detentoribus resignari, et in jus statumque pristinum revocari. Et hi quidem, qui regiis oppidis seu vicis hactenus incliti fuerant, chartas, quas a rege Stephano vel extorserant vel obsequiis emerant, quibus tuti forent,<sup>3</sup> protulerunt. Sed quoniam chartæ invasoris juri legitimi principis præjudicium facere minime debuerunt, eisdem instrumentis tuti esse minime potuerunt. Itaque primo indignati, deinde conterriti et contristati,<sup>4</sup> ægre quidem, sed tamen integræ, usurpata et diu tanquam solidō jure detenta resignarunt. Cumque in cunctis<sup>5</sup> regni provinciis omnes usque ad unum, de quo post pauca dicetur, voluntati regiae paruissent, rex Transhumbernas partes adiit, comitemque Albemarlensem Wilelmum, qui ibidem sub Stephano rex verior fuerat,<sup>6</sup> de re consimili eodem quo ceteros pondere auctoritatis convenit. Rupes stupendæ altitudinis simul et amplitudinis, et præruptis fere ex omni parte seopulis inaccessa, mare irrumpit, quo tota ambitur, exceptis tanquam faucium quarundam<sup>3</sup> angustiis, quas aperit ad occidentem, habens in summo planitiem speciosam et herbidam, et spatiosam tanquam sexaginta jugerum et<sup>4</sup> eo amplius, fontiem hum quoque aquæ vivæ ex saxo profluentem. In ipsis autem fauicibus, ad quas sine labore non ascenditur, turris regia sita est; et sub eisdem fauicibus urbis initium est in<sup>5</sup> austrum et aquilonem utrumque latus spargentis, frontem vero<sup>6</sup> ad occidentem habentis: et a fronte quidem proprio muro, ab oriente vero rupe castelli munitur; porro utrumque ejus latus mari al-luitur. De subversione<sup>1</sup> Mediolani, et Magorum reliquiis.

Iisdem fere temporibus Fredericus<sup>2</sup> Teutonicus atque Italicus imperator Mediolanum,<sup>3</sup> urbem opum viriumque suarum fiducia diu rebellē, expugnavit, cepit, evertit. Et quidem Longobardi gens inquieta et bellicosa, immoderatae libertatis æmula, et tam numero urbium quam magnitudine virium superba, ante annos plurimos ab imperatore Romano magna ex parte desciverat: sed dum inter se amplissimæ civitates de prioratu disceptarent, atque aliae aliis imperare cuperent, imperatorias contra se vires auxerunt. Denique Mediolanenses, opibus viribusque præcellentes, totius Longobardiaæ affectabant imperium; jamque aliquot urbes subegerant, quasdam etiam rebelles everterant,<sup>4</sup> cum Papienses viribus quidem impares, sed tamen eorum imperium aspernantes, ad partes imperatorias se transtulerunt. Quorum exemplum sequæ urbes ceteræ, in foedus imperatoris venerunt. Aggressurus ergo Mediolanenses,<sup>5</sup> defectu omnium sociorum remissius jam agentes, imperator vires imperii contrahebat. Illi quoque dominandi libidinem<sup>6</sup> in tunc libertatis constantiam convertentes, totis se<sup>7</sup> opibus adversus imperatorios impetus muniebant. Cumque suburbana demolirentur atque diruerent, ne tantum obsesis nociva quantum obsidentibus usui forent, eadem ratione monasterium quoque antiquum et nobile, et sanctorum insigne reliquiis extra mœnia destruentes, quicquid in eo sacrum reverendumque reperatum est, in urbem transtulerunt: trium præcipue

<sup>3</sup> It is necessary here to notice Newburgh's peculiar mode of reckoning. The following are the instances in which he joins the chronological year to what is apparently the "regnal year," in his account of Henry II. (the figures in brackets give the "regnal year" as usually computed):—

Lib. II. 22. quarto-decimo: 1167
 (13th).

„ 25. septimus decimus:
 1170 (16th).

„ 26. octavus decimus: 1171
 (17th).

„ 27. vicesimus: 1173
 (19th).

Lib. III. 1. vicesimus secundus:
 (21st). 1175

„ 4. vicesimus septimus:
 (26th). 1180

„ 5. sequenti anno (following vicesimo septimo):
 (27th). 1181

„ 7. tricesimus: (29th) 1183.

R 8918.

Lib. III. 10. tricesimus primus:
 (30th) 1184.

In each of these cases the event dated fell outside the period 25th-31st December, so no confusion has arisen from the fact (see p. 57, note 1) that Newburgh, like many other chroniclers, began his year at Christmas. A glance at the above tabular statement will show that in Newburgh's mind either (i.) a portion of the period following Henry's recognition by all parties as heir to the throne (7 Nov. 1153) is, as Bonquet thinks (xiii. 105, note a), reckoned as his first regnal year—though a fact to be noted below conflicts with this assumption; or, more probably, (ii.) the two months from Stephen's death (25th Oct. 1154) are so viewed. This is confirmed by the fact that the death of pope Anastasius IV. (2 Dec. 1154) is said (lib. ii. cap. 5) to have happened in Henry's first year. Thus we must regard his "14th year" in this chronicle as

A.D. 1158. tus<sup>1</sup> est in Natali Dominico, non quidem intra moenia, (Dec. 25, 1157).

Death of Pope Adrian IV. (Aug. 30, 1159).

The majority of the sacred college elects Roland Bandinelli as Alexander III. (Sept. 7, 1159).

Sequenti vero anno Adrianus papa naturae debitum solvit; quo sublato, cardinales in summi pontificis electione discordes ecclesiam sci-lernunt, et dum in se mutuo partes sœvirent, in orbe quoque terrarum vinculum ecclesiastice pacis ruperunt. Et quidem pars major saniorque in Rollandum,<sup>3</sup> ejusdem ecclesie cancellarium, virum religiosum et literatum,<sup>4</sup> concordans, eundem ritu canonico consecravit. Pars vero non nulla, et fere nulla, in Octovianum<sup>5</sup> nobilem virum conveniens, eundem, divinum non verita judicium, execrationis elogio maculavit. Uterque in alterum excommunicationis et damnationis sententiam promul-meaning not his 14th regnal year, but the 14th chronological year (beginning Dec. 25) in which he stood forth as king de facto as well as de jure. It appears therefore that our author is not confusing dates, but is reckoning correctly on a system to which the key is given above. At the end of Cap. 26, Lib. III., it is rightly enough stated that Henry died in the 35th year of his reign, but our author is here probably reckoning the total number of years and fractions of years of which the reign was composed. This is not inconsistent with the table given above, but it disposes of Bouquet's theory, according to which Newburgh would have been compelled to attribute a reign of nearly 36 years to Henry.

<sup>1</sup> According to Newburgh's peculiar reckoning Henry's 5th year extended from Dec. 25, 1157, to Dec. 24, 1158, and the succeeding year would therefore extend to Dec. 24, 1159. His date thus agrees with the year of pope Adrian's death, a few lines furtheron ("Sequenti vero anno"), for this event certainly happened in 1159. Hoveden agrees with Newburgh as to facts, "Auno "gratia 1158 . . . idem rex Henricus secundo fecit se coronari "apnd Lincolniam extra muros "civitatis in Wikeford . . . Anno "gratiae 1159 . . . idem rex Henricus tertio fecit se et Alienor uxorem suam coronari in solemnitate "Paschali apnd Wirecestre." R. de Diecto states that Henry was crowned at Worcester in 1158, and was never crowned again. The Pipe Roll (4 Hen. II.) p. 136 confirms 1157 as the Lincoln date.

De horrenda interfectione Willelmi Trencheveil<sup>4</sup> et de ultione ejus.

Murder of Raymond Trenchevel, viscount of Béziers and Carcassonne (Oct. 15).

Sane quoniam de eodem Guillelmo incidenter facta est mentio, silendum non est quid in illum postea, exerescente supra modum malitia, sit a suis commissum, quam levis occasio piaeculare peperit scandalum, et quam terribile subsecutum sit inaudita ultiōnis exemplum. Res enim recentis memoriae est, erebro certoque mihi comperta relatu. Idem vir nobilis et magnus, juxta nomen magnorum qui sunt in illa terra, cum post Tolosanam, cui interfuit, expeditionem finibus suis per cirenitum fortiter defensis in pace ageret, causa extitit, ut nepoti incursu hostium laboranti subvenire deberet. Denique ipse cum manu nou parva praecedens, praecipit ut reliquis exercitus sequeretur. Erumpens ergo ex subjectis urbibus, Bederensi scilicet<sup>5</sup> et Carcasumensi, juventus non modica, armis animisque instructa, properabat. Eques vero toto sibi ordine equestri adjuncto in præsentia ducis acerrimam movit querelam, illatam injuriam tanquam minus damnosam, sed multum dedecorosam exaggerans. Dux vero<sup>2</sup> placare volens equites, constanter pronuntiantes quod protinus ab exercitu discederent, si Bederenses concivis sui impunitate gauderent, auctorem injuriaæ conquerentium tradidit voluntati. <sup>3</sup> This according to Newburgh's reckoning (see p. 117, note 3) would be 1161. A treaty with France was made in May 1160, and confirmed in the following October, according to R. de Monte, and the outbreak to which both authors refer, and which was caused by prince Henry's marriage (see p. 159), concluded with a truce about June 1161.

Eodem tempore Romanus pontifex Alexander de Apulia liquido itinere venit in Gallias. Cum enim illi, ut superius dictum est, praeter terras Alemanniæ cœ subditas potestati, totus, in his quæ Dei sunt, orbis parceret Latinus, vias tamen obsidentibus Octaviani<sup>2</sup> satellitibus, et vel eum adeuntes, vel ab eo redeuntes, si qui forte inciderent, rebus omnibus spoliatos carcerali quoque custodiae mancipantibus, rarissimus ad illum poterat esse accessus, unde nec ipse poterat ut volebat et decebat fungi summo sacerdotio, et longius Apostolicæ brachium extendere potestatis. Hujus rei gratia mari se credens, et cum ingenti periculo provincias adiens occidentis, occurrentibus ei præsulibus et nobilibus regionum Gallicanæ ecclesiæ, multorum desideriis exspectatus advenit. Magni quoque Francorum et Anglorum reges adventum ejus sollemni honorantes occursu, qualia regiam decebant magnificientiam, insigni exsuli hilariter obsequia præstiterunt. CAP. XV.<sup>1</sup>Decreta Turonensis concilii.

- A.D. 1163.     “ Quoniam enormis quædam consuetudo in quibusdam locis, contra sanctorum patrum institutiones, invaluit, ut sub anno pretio sacerdotes ad ecclesiaram regimen statuantur, ne id fiat modis omnibus prohibemus; quia dum sacerdotium sub hujusmodi venali mercede disponitur, ad æternæ retributionis præmium consideratio non habetur.
- Priests not to be appointed to benefices for money.     “ Non satis utiliter avaritia redarguitur in populo, si ab iis, qui in clero constituti videntur, et præcipue qui contempto seculo religiosorum nomen profitentur et regulam, modis omniibus non cavetur. Prohibemus igitur non ab iis qui ad religionem transire voluerint, aliqua pecunia requiratur; neve prioratus aut capellaniae quælibet monachorum aut clericorum annua distractione vendantur; neque ab eo, cui regimen ipsarum committitur, pro carum commissione nullum pretium exigatur. Hoc autem Simoniacum esse, sanctorum patrum auctoritas manifesto declarat. Unde quisquis hoc de cetero præsumpsit attentare, partem se cum Simone non dubitet habiturum.
- No fees to be exacted for burials, baptisms, or administration of extreme unction.     “ Pro sepultura quoque, vel chrismatis et<sup>2</sup> olei sacri perceptione, nulla eujusquam pretii venalitas intercedat, neque sub obtentu alicujus consuetudinis reatum suum aliquis tueatur: quia diuturnitas temporis non minuit peccata, sed auget.
- Deans and certain others forbidden to become deputies of bishops or archdeacons for money.     “ Quia in quibusdam episcopatibus decani vel archipresbyteri ad agendas vices episcoporum vel archidiaconorum, et terminandas causas ecclesiasticas sub anno pretio statuntur, quod ad sacerdotum gravamen, et subversionem judiciorum non est dubium redundare: id ulterius fieri districtius prohibemus. Quod qui fecerit, removeatur a clero. Episcopus quoque, qui hoc in sua diœcesi sustinerit, et ecclesiastica judicia sua patitur dissimulatione perverti, canonica distictione plectatur.

Cum autem Henricus secundus, defuncto Stephano, ut superius expositum est, regnum hereditarium suscepisset, virum coram regibus stare idoneum sibi deesse non passus, sublimitatis regiæ fecit cancellarium. Quo officio insignis, tam egregie seculo militavit, tanti apud principem amoris simul et honoris prærogativam obtinuit, ut conregnare videretur. De transitu piissimi regis Scottorum Malcolmi.<sup>2</sup>

Circa hæc tempora Christianissimus rex Scottorum A.D. 1165. Malcolmus, cuius in præcedenti libro, prout decuit, fecimus mentionem, Christo vocante hominem exuens, angelis sociandus,<sup>3</sup> regnum non perdidit, sed mutavit. Hominem angelicæ sinceritatis inter homines, et tan- quam terrenum quendam angelum, quo dignus non erat mundus, cœlestes angeli rapuerunt e mundo. Homo in ætate tenera mirandæ gravitatis, in regni fastigio atque deliciis stupenda et sine exemplo puritatis, ex corpore virgineo raptus est ad Agnum, Virginis filium, secuturus Eum quoevere ierit.<sup>4</sup> Raptus His mar- est plane morte immatura, ne mirandam ejus innocen- tiam atque munditiam, cum regnante juvenem tot in contrarium occasiones et incentiva impellerent, mufaret malitia temporum. Verum quia mirabili animæ inter virtutum insignia non deerant sordiduscule ex regiis deliciis, quas tamen tolerabat magis quam amabat, contractæ; cœlitus emissæ, non immissæ, visitatio paterno eum verbere castigavit, et excoxit<sup>5</sup> ad purum. Unde manifestum est, puerum Dei, non tantum ad purgationem, verum etiam ad probationem et incrementa virtutum, vel augmenta meritorum, severitatem paterni verberis<sup>1</sup> fuisse expertum. Dormivit ergo cum patribus suis, et sepultus est apud Dunfermelin, locum scilicet in Scotia sie dictum, regum sepulturis insignem. Successit ei frater ejus Willielmus, fratre<sup>2</sup> quidem, ut videbatur, ad usum mundi aptior, sed in regni administratione fratre<sup>3</sup> felicior non futurus. Mondo quo frater simpliciter, ideoque pie et laudabiliter, uti voluit, non simpliciter ipse uti sed frui intendens, et fratris inodum in temporali excellentia multum conatus transcendere, ejus tamen gloriam nunquam potuit vel in temporali felicitate æquare. Nuptiarum bono, cui frater piæ sanctaeque præposuit virginitatis optimum, multo quidem tempore uti, vel ad sobolem, vel pro remedio incontinentiae distulit. Tandem vero salubrioris instinetu consilii de transmarinis cujusdam primarii filiam duxit uxorem: et de cetero non solum vixit correctius,<sup>4</sup> verum etiam regnavit felicius.

Eisdem fere temporibus venerabilis heremita Godricus de Finchala, loco scilicet solitario sic dicto, non longe a civitate Dunelmensi super amnum Wirum, annis maturus et meritis, in Domino requievit. In quo plane cernere erat pium altumque Divinitatis beneplacitum, ad confusione nobilium et magnorum ignobilia mundi et contemptibilia eligentis. Cum enim idem esset rusticus et idiota, nihilque sciens nisi Christum Jesum<sup>3</sup> et hunc crucifixum, quod utique quantumlibet obtunsi et rudibus in fidei cunabulis traditur, in ingressu adolescentiae fervore coepit spiritu, totisque hausit ossibus ignem; quem Dominus misit in terram. Denique cœlibatum, quem<sup>4</sup> Deo gratum et sublimis esse meriti forte didicerat, devote amplexus, in cibo et potu, in verbo et gestu, homo simplicissimus decentem cum gravitate servare modum studuit. Velox ad audiendum, tardus autem ad loquendum, et in ipsa locutione parcissimus. Flere cum flentibus doctus; ridere autem cum ridentibus, et jocari cum jocantibus nescius. Juvenis sepulchrum Dominicum in multa paupertate, nudis incedendo pedibus, visitavit, reversusque ad propria, locum aptum ubi Deo serviret sollicite quæsivit. Accepitque in somnis, sicut aiunt, ut locum Finchala dictum quæreret, ibidem Deo volente victurus. Quem tandem post multam lustrationem inveniens, ibidem cum sorore paupercula primum, et ea defuneta solus multo tempore habitavit. Vitæ autem ejus districtio fere supra humanum modum

De quodam Ketello, et gratia divinitus illi collata. A.D. 1154-70?

Fuit et alius quidam vir venerabilis<sup>2</sup> in nostra, id est, Eboracensi provincia, apud vicum Farneham dictum, nomine Ketellus. Homo quidem<sup>3</sup> rusticus, sed innocentiae et simplicitatis merito singularem quandam a Domino gratiam consecutus. De quo sane plura memorabilia veracium mihi virorum innotuere relatu e quibus pauca retexam. Idem, cum esset adolescens, quodam die juvento sedens domum revertebatur ex agro. Et ecce in via plana<sup>4</sup> jumentum tanquam aliquod offendiculum impingens, in terram decidit, et sessorem deject. Qui exsurgens vidit duos quasi Æthiopes parvulos sedentes in via, et corridentes. Intellexit esse daemones non amplius permissos nocere, et gaudentes se vel modicum nocuisse. Accepitque tale donum a Deo, ut ab illa die et deinceps daemones haberet conspicabiles, et quantumcunque latere cuperent, eum latere non possent. Intuebatur eos, ut homines vel in modico laederent oberrantes, et si forte vel modicum laisionis intulissent, exultantes. Denique hujus sibi gratiae conscius, cœpit Deo devotus exsistere; orandi studio crebrius secretum captare; esu carnium et lineis abstinere; ecclesiam, quantum vacare<sup>5</sup> poterat, ita frequentare, ut ingrederetur primus et ultimus egrederetur. Cælibatum amplexus de nuptiis non curavit, usque ad finem vitæ in obsequio positus cuiusdam Adæ clerici de Farneham. Accepti muneris secretum tenuit, nec suas passim voluit revalere visiones, nisi forte sacerdoti tanquam confessionis mysterium, aut domino suo, sive alicui sapienti arctius

Cumque uno in loco subsisterent, et secum confabularentur, tanquam secreto deliberantes de agendis, major ille cœpit mittere binos per domos. Ipse autem cum uno fores, ubi stabat Ketellus, ingredi voluit. Tum ille, "In nomine," inquit, "Christi interdico vobis januæ hujus ingressum, et moram in vico isto: revocate socios vestros, et abite velo- citer." Paruere inviti, sacri nominis adjurationem non ferentes, et suas molitiones ab homine animadversas dolentes. Item vidi aliquando dæmones transeuntes cum carro diligenter clauso, et audiebatur foris gemitus inclusorum; porro illi ridebant. Tum ille ad eos, nam solebat impavidus cum hujusmodi spiritibus miscere sermonem, "Quid est," inquit, "hoc?" Et illi, "Animas," inquiunt, "peccatrices deceptas captasque<sup>1</sup> a nobis ad loca poenalia ducimus: illæ gemunt, et nos ridemus. Te quoque nobis tradi optamus, ut etiam super te, cum hostis noster sis, gratulantius rideamus." Tunc<sup>2</sup> ille, "Abite," inquit, "malignis- si; risus vester in luctum vertatur." Contigit autem eum<sup>3</sup> aliquando corundem paene hostium sævitiam experiri. Fessus ex agrario opere domum reversus, dum somno gravaretur, sacri se signaculi nequam impressione munivit. Dormienti loco solito soli astitere duo dæmones, sævi nimis atque terribiles, et excitatum apprehendentes; "Euge," inquiunt, "Ketelle, incidisti in manus nostras: infestos sentire habes, quos provocare minime timuisti, quorum mysteria totiens prodidisti." Ille subito casu attonitus, nomen Christi invocare et signare se voluit, nec valuit. Manus enim et lingua ejus tenebantur, ne sacri se vel

Dicebat autem idem Ketellus esse quosdam dæmones magnos, robustos, et callidos, multumque nocivos si relaxentur a superiori potestate, quosdam vero parvos ac despicabiles, impotentes viribus et sensu hebetes, omnes tamen pro modulo suo infestos hominibus, multumque lætari, si vel parum illis molestiae inferant. Videlis se quosdam tales sedentes secus vias, et facientes offendicula transeuntibus, petulanterque ridentes, cum vel hominem vel jumentum ejus pedes atterere facherent, et maxime si homo, hoc ipsum jumento imputans, maledicto in jumentum calcaribusve sœviręt. Porro si homo vel modice turbatus nomen ederet Salvatoris, ut est quorundam consuetudo valde laudabilis, tristes et confusi fugiebant. Aiebat quoque se aliquando<sup>3</sup> domum potationis ingressum vidisse hujusmodi dæmones in specie simiarum, singulos potatoriis singulis in scapula sedentes, illisque potentibus spuentes in phialas, hominumque vecordiam petulant gestu et ludicris motibus irridentes. Babylonis.<sup>1</sup> Hujus autem expeditionis causa haec fuit. Turci,<sup>2</sup> gens callida et bellicosa, sub rege Noradino regnum affectantes Aegypti, eo quod Aegyptii opulentia quidem clari, sed armis minus acres viderentur, duce Saracene, principe militiae ejusdem regis, viro in rebus bellicis experientissimo, clandestinum per extremos Christianorum fines transitum<sup>3</sup> arte moliti, Aegyptii se provinciis immersere, captisque vel deditis in brevi civitatibus aliquot, regi Babylonis terribiles intolerabilesque fuere. Qui cum videret eos virtute Aegyptia arceri abigique<sup>4</sup> non posse, regis Christiani Sarracenus postulavit auxilium, multam de cetero devotionem cum certo et annuo pollicens veetigali. Mox ille, ut erat magnanimus, regno disposito, et parte militiae ad excipiendos Noradini impetus, si forte interim irrumpere niteretur, deputata, cum parte reliqua Christiani exercitus Aegyptum ingressus, junctis sibi regis Babylonici copiis, Saracouem cum Turcis in quadam civitate obsedit, et tandem coaretatos atque infraetos Aegypti finibus expulit, concesso revertentibus<sup>5</sup> in terram suam transitu libero per fines Christianos. Dum haec in Aegypto agerentur, Noradinus non quietit, et quietem simulans arte et dolis plus nocuit. Denique quendam<sup>6</sup> ex nostris laudate fidei et fortitudinis virum, cui urbis<sup>7</sup> nostrae hostium finibus oppositae, quae nunc Belinas<sup>8</sup> dicitur, olim Cæsarea Philippi dicebatur, cura et custodia commissa erat, auro corruptum ad suas partes traduxit: quo inmittente<sup>9</sup> Turci latenter civitatem ingressi neminem quidem peremerunt, sed expulsis cum episcopo Christianis, novo urbem praesidio munierunt. Post annos vero<sup>1</sup> aliquot Tureorum fortiores sævioresque copiæ non tam dominandi libidine, quam vindicandæ repulsionis suæ stimulis incitatae, duee rursum Saracone regni Aegyptii intima penetrarunt. Ad quorum ingressum Babylonie regis fiducia omnis elanguit, unde mox per legatos, verbis ad deprecandum compositis, Christiani regis opem solitam flagitavit. De coronatione Henrici tertii, et imperfectione beati Thomæ.

Iisdem temporibus Angli sub specie militantium Hiberniæ insulae irrepserunt, eandem postea crescentibus viribus invasuri, et partem ejus non modicam armis subactam possessuri.

Est autem Hibernia, ut acceperimus, inter insulas secundæ a majori Britannia magnitudinis, sed eadem, ut ait venerabilis Beda, serenitate et salubritate aeris multo præstantior, egregie pabulosa atque piscosa, et glebæ satis uberis, si non desit industria boni cultoris;

Cujus utique<sup>3</sup> certa citoque mors est ad primu[m] Hibernici aeris attactum, si forte aliunde advehatur. Porro quicquid inde advehitur,<sup>4</sup> contra venena valere probatum est. Sane hoc quoque de hac insula mirabile est, quod cum major Britannia, æque oceani insula, nec spatio longiori sejuneta, tantos bellorum casus experta sit,<sup>5</sup> totiens exteris gentibus præda fuerit, totiens externam dominationem incurrit, expugnata et possessa primo a Romanis, deinde a Germanis, consequenter a Danis, postremo a Normannis; Hibernia, Romanis etiam Orchadum insularum dominantibus inaccessa, raro et tepide ab ulla nunquam gente bello pulsata, nunquam expugnata<sup>6</sup> et subacta est, nunquam externæ<sup>7</sup> subiacuit ditioni, usque ad annum a partu Virginis millesimum centesimum septuagesimum primum, qui fuit regis Anglorum Henrici secundi octavus decimus.<sup>8</sup> Quod enim Britones dicunt, eandem insulam suo paruisse Arturo, fabulosum est, sicut et cetera quæ de ipso mentiendi libidine petulantia quorundam confinxit. Hibernia, juxta priseum Angliae morem, in plura se regna conseindens, et consueta reges habere plurimos, eisdem plerunque disceptantibus diserpebatur; et quanto<sup>2</sup> externorum inexpertior erat bellorum, tanto interdum indigenis, tanquam propriis visceribus in mutuam cædem ruentibus, miserabilius eviseerabatur. Insistebat finitimus pertinacius, priscam tueri nitentibus libertatem, munitiones locis opportunis construens, et dominationem paulatim pretendens. Porro quantulamcunque<sup>2</sup> nationis barbarae gratiam per affinitatem affectans, federati regis filiam uxorem accepit, et partem regni plurimam nomine dotis perceperit. <sup>3</sup> Newburgh here differs from Fantosme in putting the sack of Norwich before the attempt on Dunwich, but both agree in placing these events in the sequence which led up to the battle of Fornham. R. de Diceto says that Leicester landed on Sept. 29 at Walton. The Durham MS. of Fantosme (l. 820) gives the place as "North Wales." This perhaps comes near enough to "Walton" to be understood as a much confused version of the name. Haghene was taken on Oct. 13th, 1173; and the battle of Fornham was fought on Oct. 17; the army marching, as appears from Hoveden, from Framlingham to the encounter. The Lincoln MS. of Fantosme asserts that the Earl landed at Aruelle (Orwell). Diceto (vol. I. p. 281) states that a party of Flemings landing at Airewell on May 15, 1174, joined Earl Bigod, and captured Norwich on Jane 18. Benedict says this happened in 1174, while the warfare which ended with the capture of the Scotch king was in progress. The MSS. of Fantosme thus conflicting with each other, and Newburgh differing somewhat from both, the testimony of all three as regards Norwich must be set aside.

Rebus se ita circa aquilonales Angliæ partes habentibus, Eboracensis provinciæ regii proceres ingenui indignati, quod Scotti fines Anglicos infestarent, apud Castellum-Novum super fluvium Tinum cum equitatu valido convenerunt. Urgente quippe negotio, pedestres non poterant copias congregare. Venerunt autem illuc<sup>4</sup> sexta Sabbati, longo et laborioso itinere fatigati. Ibi sane cum in commune tractarent quid esset agendum, prudentiores allegarunt, multum jam esse actum, cum rex Scottorum adventu eorum præcognito longius recesserit; suæ hoc mediocritati pro tempore debere sufficere; sibi non esse tutum, nec regi Anglorum utile, ulterius progredi, ne forte paucitatem suam devorandam sicut escam panis infinitæ barbarorum multititudini exponere viderentur; sibi non esse plusquam quadringentos equites, in hostili vero<sup>5</sup> exercitu plusquam octoginta armatorum millia aestimari. *Qualia in exercitu et terra regis Scottorum, eo capto,

A.D. 1174. — Rege igitur Scottorum in manus hostium tradito, funestissimum quoque ejus exercitum perspicua Dei<sup>1</sup> non permisit ultio abire illæsum. Regis quippe captione comperta, barbari primo<sup>2</sup> attoniti a prædis desterunt, mox, tanquam furii agitati, ferrum contra hostes sumptum, jamque innoxio sanguine ebrium, in seipso verterunt. Erat autem in eodem exercitu ingens Anglorum numerus, regni enim Scottici oppida et burgi ab Anglis habitari noscuntur. Occasione ergo temporis Scotti innatum, sed metu regio dissimulatum, in illos odium declarantes, quotquot incidebant<sup>3</sup> peremerunt, refugientibus in munitiones regias ceteris qui evadere potuerunt.

Hinimirum Fergusi, olim principis ejusdem provinciae, filii fuerant, et patri in fata concedenti, rege Scottorum, qui illius terræ principalis est dominus, hereditatem inter eos dividente, successerant. Verum Gilbertus natu major, paterni juris integritate fraudatum se dolens, fratrem semper<sup>7</sup> in corde suo oderat, cum tamen concepti furoris impetum metus regius cohiberet. Capto autem rege, liberatus hoc metu, mox fratri nihil verenti manus injecit, et non nece simpliei, sed pro exsaturando execrabilis odio exerciatum suppliciis interfecit. <sup>3</sup> In the verification of this assertion much depends on the interpretation of the words ante horam quintam (p. 184). If they bear the meaning most ecclesiasties would attach to them (see for instance the hours assigned by Gervase for eclipses) then Newburgh is wrong by about seven hours. If Mr. Stevenson (Church Historians, vol. iv., pt. ii., p. 492,) may be followed in translating them "before five o'clock," there is no noticeable diserepancy. If, however, we are to take them as meaning before the fifth hour of the march, as Dr. Lingard and M. Franeisque Michel would seem to do, the coincidence is similarly established. Taking first the events in the South it is clear that Henry reached Cauterbury on July 12, and on that day (as Newburgh and Gervase agree) was seured by the monks. Gervase proceeds to say that the king remained in the cathedral all night, that "post ma- " tutinas laudes" he made a tour of the altars and shrines, and that he then returned to the martyr's tomb in the crypt. Afterwards he heard mass. Supposing that Lauds had finished by four (sunrise), the visit to the altars, with prayers no doubt at each, the return to the crypt, and the mass which followed would naturally occupy the time till half-past five or six o'clock. If we now turn to events in the North we find that Jordan Fantosme, who was present, states (line 1751) that Ranulph de Glanville's party started in the night — Newburgh says "summo mane," which so far north and in July may mean almost the same thing — and it appears (p. 184) that before five hours had elapsed they had ridden 24 miles. They then had nine miles to traverse, and if this occupied another hour and a half we may believe that, starting perhaps at midnight, they reached the point (now marked by a stone) where the capture took place a little after six o'clock. They then hid in a thicket, but emerged and attacked the king. All was so quickly over that it is no stretch of imagination to believe, after comparing the narratives of what happened at Canterbury and Alnwick, that the space of a single hour may have included both the capture of the king of Scots and the concluding acts of Henry's penitential devotions.

At ille iteravit verbum; "Habesne," ait, "literas?" Mox ille protulit literas signatas, rei gestæ seriem contineentes. A.D. 1174. Jam hostes admotis muro scalis murum ascenderant, — jam super murum voces quasi triumphantium personabant; cum ecce fortiter impetuntur et repelluntur a civibus. Tandem illi, qui superbe ascenderant sursum, præcipites abidere retrorsum. A.D. 1177. Circa hos dies Philippus illustris Flandriæ comes, philip count of Flanders leads an expedition to the Holy Land (about May 1). He besieges Harenc (A.D. 1177). Returns (Oct. 1178). Baldwin the Leper defeats Saladin at Ramlah, Nov. 25 (A.D. 1177).
piæ devotionis instinetu<sup>3</sup> cum numerosa militia terram Ierosolymitanam ingressus, contra Saladinum aliquid agere et fines voluit Christianos dilatare. Verum offensus a Templariis, ad terram Antiochenam, invante principe, militiam Christianam traduxit, eoque cooperante, munitissimum oppidum Hareng nominatum, nihil ibidem acturus sed inglorius recessurus, obsedit. Audiens autem Saladinus, abducta militia terram Domini plus solito præsidiis vacuatam, cum infinito exercitu repentinus irruit, nec moratus in terminis, tanquam possessurus eam intima ejus illico penetravit. Tunc princeps Christianus, lepram corporis animi virtute exornans, quantulam pro tempore potuit militiam convocavit, et, præcliaturus non suum sed Domini prælium, hostium numeros non expavit. De discordia regum atque induciis.

A.D. 1187. Igitur ortum inter reges malum discordiæ multos involvit populos. Cùm enim unaquaque gens pro suo principe aemularetur, ita contra se mutuo animabantur et præparabantur, tanquam singuli vel proprium emolumen tum seu<sup>1</sup> gloriam quaerent, vel injurias proprias ulturi essent. Quid enim insanius quam pro inani nec sua sed alterius gloria ita<sup>7</sup> aemulari? et quid iniquius vel miserabilius quam pro unius hominis commodo, vel etiam fastu nudo, tot Christianorum millia periclitari? Cumque e<sup>8</sup> castris hinc inde oppositis per dies aliquot torvis se mutuo vultibus duo magni exercitus prospectarent, frustra circa vel pacem vel inducias satagentibus atque aerem tantum verberantibus viris pacificis, tandem fatalis et tremendus conserendi manus dies illuxit. Turmis ad pugnam dispositis, parum jam aberat a concursu mutuo, cum ecce! occultis magis, ut dicitur, ducum susurruiis quam proloctionibus publicis, indultæ in dies plurimos inducieæ in utroque exercitu voce præconia declarantur. A.D. 1187. Abraham illius terrae non est factus possessor sed advena: porro semen ejus, completis jam peccatis Amorreorum,<sup>1</sup> accepit in possessionem terram eorum; et ut eandem terram possideret, Deo largiente, eosdem exterminavit impios, Deo jubente. Num putamus hanc gentem peccatricem enormius peccasse quam gentes ceteras orbis terrarum, scilicet ut illæsis ceteris sola exterminium pateretur? Certe orbem universum caligo erroris involverat; et nemo respectu divini judicii, quod utique nesciebat, vetabatur facere quod libebat. Non igitur gens illa ideo sola divini severitatem judicii experta est, quod ceteris gentibus sordidior fuerit; sed terram, clarissimis divinæ dignationis suo tempore nobilitandam miraculis, incolarum suorum tunc deformatam peccatis, eorundem incolarum exterminio expiari, et populo electo, id est, semini Abrahæ, sacrae fiduci habenti<sup>2</sup> characterem, in hereditatem dari oportuit. Erant enim iam in Jerusalem et regno ejus, non ut olim, viri religiosi ex omni natione quae sub celo est, sed<sup>4</sup> ex omni gente Christiana facinorosi, luxuriosi, ebriosi, mimi, histriones, hoc genus omne in Terram Sanctam tanquam in sentinam<sup>6</sup> quandam<sup>7</sup> confluxerat, eamque obsecenis moribus et actibus inquinabat. Cumque hostes ita coactatis undique imminerent, de procerum consilio statuit rex quocumque modo erumpere, et prælio cum hostibus decertare. Quomodo Conradus Marchio munivit<sup>1</sup> Tyrum, et de interitu Comitis Tripolitani.

A.D. 1187. — Marchio igitur de Monte-Ferrato, vir inter primos Romani imperii magnus et potens, Ierosolymam orandi studio venerat, terra possessionis propriæ filio Conrado commissa. Cumque ibidem pia devotione per dies<sup>2</sup> consisteret, et omnipotenti Deo in defensione Sanctæ Terræ propriis sumptibus sedulo<sup>3</sup> ministraret, in bello, quo eadem terra tradita est in manus impii, cum aliis nobilibus captus est ab Agarenis. Ipso tempore memoratus<sup>4</sup> junior marchio, et ipse oraturus patrique astiturus, cum agmine virorum fortium Ierosolymam properabat. Factum est autem die tertio post captam Tholomaïdam, ubi naves Christianæ applicare consueverant, ut idem marchio cum suis appropians, ex alto pelago immutatam adverteret, et caute notaret faciem civitatis. Nam nec Christiana jam insignia, quæ mox abominatio hostilis abstulerat, ex templorum vel turrium fastigiis procul aspicientibus resulgebant, nec campanæ, uti mos fuerat peregrinis portui appropinquantibus,<sup>5</sup> concrepabant. Unde intellexit vir prudens eandem civitatem in manus incidisse hostiles. Flexo igitur cursu, Tyrum adiens ibidem applicuit;<sup>6</sup> invenitque omnes Tyros inconstitudine at-

“ Ad audiētiam Romanæ ecclesiae totiusque Christianitatis pervenit rumor ille miserabilis de destructione terræ Ierosolymitanæ et captione Dominicæ crucis. Unde dominus papa et ecclesia Romana volens huic miseriæ subvenire, optimum remedium omnibus qui crucem acceperint de consueta sedis Apostolicae clementia ordinavit; videlicet quod a die qua quislibet crucem acceperit, totius poenæ sibi injunctæ habebit de peccatis suis de quibus poenitens fuerit et confessus, et similiter de<sup>1</sup> oblitis, relaxationem.<sup>2</sup> Ordinante igitur providentia Dei, domini reges Fraucorum et Anglorum cum immensa multitudine archiepiscoporum, episcoporum, baronum utriusque terræ, crucem Domini suscepserunt: et de communi consilio statutum est quod unusquisque, tam clericus quam laicus, decimam omnium reddituum suorum unius anni et mobilium suorum, quæ nunc possidet, excepto blado istius anni, dabit ad subventionem terre Ierosolymitanæ; et de blado futuri anni dabit similiter decimam. Vernum ita fervente fidelium devotione principum et populorum, antiqui hostis tam<sup>1</sup> bona initia corrumperem gestientis malitia non quievit. Cum enim illustris rex Anglorum in regno proprio quietus consisteret, et, prout tantum decebat principem, ad futuram expeditionem modis se omnibus prepararet; rex Francorum, nescio unde stimulatus,<sup>2</sup> erupta fide fœderis sollemniter inter ipsos sanciti usque ad redditum utriusque a partibus Orientis, et nulla signi Dominici, quod socialiter suscepserant, reverentia habita, subito furore excanduit, et castrum nobile quod Radulfi dicitur, eratque possessio regis Anglorum, quorundam, ut dicitur, ne quis simorum proditione improvisus<sup>3</sup> usurpator intravit. Quo successu elatus, mutato vel potius exsufflato expeditionis Ierosolymitanae proposito, grandiora moliebatur. Quibus celeriter agnitis, rex Anglorum, suscepti pii propositi gratia, initius agere studuit, et mature transfretatus, viros honoratos cum verbis pacificis ad prævaricatorem præmisit. Verum<sup>4</sup> ille ad omne blandimentum inflexus et rigidus, effrenatiore superbia pestilentibus coepitis incubuit. Cumque rex Anglorum transfretasset, bonorum studio virorum ad colloquium sollemniter convenerunt:<sup>5</sup> rex quidem Anglorum querelam rupti fœderis et illatae sibi injuriae positurus, rex vero Francorum tanquam de his rationem redditurus. Pietavensis tunc comes, regis Anglorum filius, qui signum Domini, ut supradictum est, primus acceperat, Richard deserts to Philip during the Francorum, ut creditur,<sup>1</sup> astutia abstractus atque illectus, in ipso sollemni regum colloquio a patre deficiens, ad partes transivit hostiles. Quo casu conster-natus pater, eum causae malorum ingravescerent, verbis pacificis cum iis qui oderunt pacem aere inaniter<sup>2</sup> verberato discessit, nesciens penitus cui se crederet cum tam inflialem jam filium expertus esset.<sup>3</sup>

Illoco bellum utrimque instruitur sed viribus ani-misque disparibus: idem enim Ricardus, quem pater ducatui Aquitanico præfecerat, parentem sibi militiam ad partes regis Francorum traduxit; plurimi quoque potentum Normanniae et Andegaviæ, sive Britanniæ, fide exsufflata, manifeste jam a patre deficientes ad filium, in ejus gratiam Francorum auxerunt exercitum. Unde factum est, ut regi Anglorum præter stipendarios parcior assisteret numerus, et ipse quoque circa cum nutabundus. Itaque rex Francorum cum comite Pictavensi et infinitis copiis terram regis Anglorum nullo obsidente ingressus, ad urbem Cinomannensem, ubi idem rex cum suo exercitu morabatur, pertendit. Quo ille cognito, cum et instructu copiarum ad sub-eundum belli discrimen se longe imparem cerneret, et obsideri ab hostibus formidaret, incensa urbe et multa supellectile abjecta, profugit, et ipse quidem in tutiora se loca recepit: porro exercitus, qui eum sequi videbatur, defluxit. Sane idem rex et<sup>1</sup> pluribus quæ personam ornarent regiam fuisse noscitur virtutibus præditus, et quibusdam nihilominus vitiis obnoxius quæ Christianum principem plurimum dedecerent. In libidinem pronior, conjugalem modum excessit, formam quidem in hoc tenens avitam; sed tamen avo hujus intemperantiae palmam reliquit. Regina pro tempore sufficienter usus ad sobolem, ea<sup>2</sup> desinente parere, sectando voluptatem spurios fecit. Venationis delicias æque ut avus plus justo diligens, in puniendis tamen positarum pro feris legum transgressoribus avo mitior fuit. Ille enim, ut suo loco dictum est, homicidarum et fericidalarum in publicis animadversionibus nullam vel parvam esse distantiam voluit. Hie autem hujusmodi transgressores careerali custodia sive exilio ad tempus coercuit. Gentem perfidam et Christianis inimicam, Iudeos scilicet scenerantes, propter largiora quæ ex eorum percipiebat fænerationibus commoda, plus justo fovit: in tantum ut in Christianos protervi et cervicosi exsisterent, plurimaque eis gravamina irrogarent. In exquirendis pecuniis paulo immoderatior fuit: sed temporis sequentis supra modum exercens malitia<sup>3</sup> justifieavit eum in hac parte, et decentem modum ab eo innuit esse servatum;<sup>4</sup> excepto eo, quod vacantes episcopatus, ut provenientia perciperet commoda, diu vacare voluit, et ecclesiasticis potius usibus applicanda<sup>5</sup> in fiscum rededit. Hoc tamen opus minus regium tali excusatione, ut dicitur, tueri nitebatur, "Nonne " melius est ut pecuniae istae impendantur necessariis " regni negotiis, quam in episcoporum absumentur Clarissimos ex Alianore regina filios habuit: sed, ut digesta superius relatio declaravit, in filiis clarissimis infelicissimus ipse<sup>2</sup> pater fuit. Quod utique Dei judicio ex duplicis causæ merito creditur accidisse.<sup>3</sup> Eadem quippe regina regi Francorum olim conjuncta, cum ejusdem pertæsa copulæ ad illius nuptias aspiraret, causas quæsivit divertii: solutamque a lege prioris viri, in facie ecclesiæ, quadam, ut ita dicam, illicta licentia, ille mox suo accivit conjugio. Unde factum est, Deo subtiliter cuneta librante, ut ex ea in propriam perniciem præclaram sobolem procrearet. Justum quoque erat, ut qui filios nimis tenere diligens pluribus nocuisse nescitur, dum filiorum plus justo promotioni intenderet, eorum vel improbis motibus vel immaturis mortibus vapularet. Hoc autem totum accidisse manifestum est, superni utique examinis ordinatione pulcherrima. Porro quia nondum, ut credo, satis defleverat illius infelicissimæ obstinationis rigorem, quem adversus venerabilem archiepiscopum Thomam habuerat, tanti principis tam miserabilem fuisse exitum arbitror, ut dum ei Dominus in hac vita pia severitate non parceret, in alia illi vita, sicut pium est credere, misericordiam præpararet.

demate cum pompa magnifica ad convivium intravit. Contigit autem, eo discumbente cum omni frequentia nobilium, populum circa palatium observantem tumultuari. Judai siquidem turbis immixti, fores sic regias introibant. Unde indignatus, ut fertur, quidam Christianus, Judaeum palma percussum ab ingressu januae arcere curavit, regium objectans edictum. Quo exemplo plures accensi, Judaeos cum contumelia repellebant : factoque tumultu, indisciplinata cum turbine turba accurrit ; credentesque regem talia mandasse, tanquam freti auctoritate regia in multitudinem Ju-daeorum ad fores regias observantium pariter irruerunt. Et primo quidem percutiebant pugno impie, mox vero vehementius efferati sustulerunt ligna et lapides. Porro Judai fugam inierunt ; in fuga non nulli cæsi usque ad mortem, quidam etiam<sup>2</sup> prostriti perierunt. Venerant autem illuc cum ceteris duo nobiles Judæi Eboracenses, Joceus scilicet et Benedictus ; quorum prior evasit, seqnens vero, dum plagis impositis segnus fugeret, comprprehensus, ut mortem differret Christum coactus est confiteri, ductusque in ecclesiam illio baptizatus est. Interea rumor gravissimus, quod scilicet rex omnes Judaeos exterminari jussisset, totas incredibili celeritate percurrit Lundonias ; moxque infinitus indisciplinatorum populus, tam ex ipsa civitate quam ex illis quos illuc ex provinciis plurimis unctionis regiae sollemnitatis traxerat, armatus accurrit, spirans praedarum<sup>4</sup> et cædis<sup>5</sup> in populum Dei judicio cunctis inuisum. Sive autem ficte sive non ficte sacrum petierunt<sup>1</sup> lavaerum, inexcusabilis est execranda illa crudelitas lanistarum. Quorum proculdubio primum scelus est, quod ordinatam potestatem non habentes, humanum, quasi aquam, sanguinem effundere prae sumpserunt: secundum, quod livore magis malitiæ quam zelo justitiae sœvierunt: <sup>2</sup> tertium, quod Christianam gratiam potentibus inviderunt: quartum, quod miseros ut egredierentur ad victimam mentiendo fefellerunt. Horrenda plane et fœda tunc rerum erat facies in urbe, et circa arcem passim jacentibus tot misericordium cadaveribus inhumatis. Cæde vero completa, conjurati continuo cathedralem ecclesiam adeuntes, monumenta debitorum, quibus Christiani premebantur, a Judæis fœnectoribus regiis ibidem reposita, ab exterritis custodibus violenta instantia resignari fecerunt, et tam pro sua quam et<sup>3</sup> aliorum multorum liberatione eadem profanæ avaritiæ instrumenta in medio ecclesiæ flammis solennibus absumpserunt. The emperor Isaac

Interea Fredericus<sup>1</sup> imperator Teutonicus, qui anno præterito, hoc est a partu Virginis M<sup>o</sup>C<sup>o</sup>LXXX<sup>o</sup>IX<sup>o</sup>, cum filio Suevorum duce, et Germanicis copiis iter fuerat, ut superius dictum est, Ierosolymitanum ingressus, lento propter obstacula plurima gradu per superiores ducebatur regiones exercitum. Praetergressus enim Pan- nonias, et progressus ad imperatoris Constantinopoliti- tani provincias, cum ejusdem Christiani principis in negotio Christianissimo favorem optaret, eum paulo secus quam Saladinum invenit. Denique Græcus ille, nam Græci, cum sint Christiani, non secus immo ple- rumque etiam ferocius quam Sarracenos<sup>2</sup> abominari Latinos noscuntur, Græcus inquam ille, ut dicitur, post captam Ierosolymam, fœdus cum atrocissimo Christiani nominis hoste Saladino pepigerat, pollicens quod in terra vel mari ditionis suæ Latinorum in Syriam transitum inhiberet. Cumque imperator Latinus a Græco, Christianus scilicet a Christiano, per nuntios peteret quod olim Israel sub Moyse petierat a Seon rege Amorraeo: “Obseero te,” inquiens, “ut Num. xxi. transire mihi liceat per terram tuam: non declina-<sup>22.</sup>“ bimus in agros et<sup>3</sup> vineas: via regia gradiemur, “donec transeamus terminos tuos.” Græcus ille impio regi in hac parte<sup>4</sup> simillimus, et Saladino quam Christo fidelior, concedere noluit ut Christianus exer- citus simpliciter transiret per fines suos. Quamobrem Latinus imperator ad suos: “Hostem,” inquit, “Christi “Saladinum quærimus, et ecce par Saladino vel potius “plusquam Saladinus hic, qui zelando pro Saladino, Impediri autem metuens, miri acuminis, qua omne impedimentum eluderet, artem invenit. Olim enim animo et merito exutus episcopum, habi- tu quoque exuens, membris non tantum virilibus, more effeminatorum, sed etiam pontificalibus, quod a seculis non erat auditum, vestem ineptissime aptavit muliebrem, caputque et majorem faciei partem velut delicata muliereula peplo obvolutus, inter plurimos deambulabat in littore, lævo brachio telam lineaum, tanquam venalem, ulnam vero manu dextera præferens; <sup>1</sup> scilicet ut hac arte non observatus ab aliquo, navim cum ceteris transfretaturis <sup>2</sup> absque impedimento intraret. Verum a quodam forte agnitus proditusque, abstracto peplo, tanquam manifestus effeminatus ignominiose multumque <sup>3</sup> inepiscopaliter concurrentibus est indiscretus. Dehinc magistratui loci exhibitus servatusque est quousque sciretur quid super hoc decernerent regni potentes. Johannes quidem, agnito quod acciderat, hostili animo exsultavit, atque aliquid <sup>4</sup> in eum quo magis dishonestaretur sancire <sup>5</sup> voluit. At vero episcopi, justo rubore suffusi quod in persona episcopali tam foeda res accidisset, vigore ecclesiastico ut dimitteretur egerunt. Dimissus ergo, et foris quantum poterat disimulans <sup>6</sup> quo intus urebatur, transfretavit.

Turcorum ingens in regem proprium indignatio effer-

CAP. XXVI.<sup>1</sup>

Quomodo rex Francorum duxit sororem regis Dacorum, et quomodo repudiavit eam.

A.D. 1193. Igitur rex Francorum missis ad regem Dacorum viris honoratis, germanæ ejus laudatissimæ virginis nuptias sollemniter expetivit. Rex autem Dacorum magnifice legatos suscipiens, petitionem quoque, de optimatum suorum consilio, libenter amplexus est.
 The king of France seeks the sister of Knut VI. of Denmark in marriage. He asks as dowry the ancient claims of Denmark to England and the use of the Danish forces for a year.
 The king of Denmark refuses, but dieere, si quid haberent. Illi vero, exspirante petitione

A.D. 1193. Romano pontifici per responsales callidos insinuare divorce on the ground of consanguinity (November 5). curavit surreptione quadam se propriam duxisse nem, postulans vineulo minus legitimo eximi. At ille delegavit judices ex regno postulantis, forti tamen mandato astrictos, uti in hoc negotio juxta integratatem canonicæ procederent sanctionis. Qui nimirum suo regi plus justo propitii, affinitate per duorum pseudo-episcoporum, Beluaensis scilicet et Carnotensis, execrabile perjurium imaginarie approbata, divortium celebrarunt.<sup>1</sup> Et Beluacensis<sup>2</sup> quidem postea Dei judicio traditus in manus regis Anglorum, eundem<sup>3</sup> satis idoneum expertus est in severitate ultionis Dei ministrum. Carnotensis<sup>4</sup> vero, qui morum proluvie minus esse episcopus dicitur, Dei adhuc patientia sustinet, ut tarditatem penæ quantitate compenset. Sie itaque rex Francorum in facie ecclesiae exosi connubii lege solutus, ad alias paulo post nuptias aspiravit; quibus tamen<sup>5</sup> potitus non est, ut suo loco dicetur.<sup>6</sup>

<sup>1</sup> The archbishop of Rheims presided over the council at Compiègne. The two bishops, Reginald of Chartres and Philip of Beauvais, with Robert count of Drenx and others, swore to the consanguinity. The pretence (or error) was that Ingeburga was related to Philip's first wife, Isabella. The flaw was that Charles le Bon, a true descendant of Sweyn the Great, left no posterity, and that his successor, Thierry d'Alsace, Isabella's grandfather, was in no way related to the Danish kings.

CAP. XXVII.

Quomodo Eboracensis archiepiscopus præcipitavit sententiam excommunicationis in episcopum Dunelmensem.

His diebus Geofridus archiepiscopus Eboracensis et Hugo episcopus Dunelmensis sua fortius, et remissius ea quæ sunt Christi, querentes, cum multo et gravi scandalo disceptarunt.<sup>1</sup> Ille, ut praesasset; iste, ne sub-Rom. iii. 11. esset; neuter vero, ut prodasset. Ita quippe in<sup>2</sup> diebus nostris pastorale decus evanuit, ut inter pastores ecclæsiasticos admodum rarus inveniatur intelligens aut requirens Deum, dum fere omnes quæ sua sunt quærunt. Et quidem paulo ante ejusdem Geofridi electi adhuc Eboracensis pendente fortuna, Clemens Romanus pontifex, intercedentibus obsequiis, eundem episcopum cum suis omnibus ab archiepiscopi Eboracensis jurisdictione exemerat.<sup>3</sup> Porro successor ejus Cœlestinus Eboracensis ecclesiæ jura et dignitates redintegrans, eandem exemptionem cassavit. Geofridus itaque de mandato sedis Apostolice Turonis ordinatus, et ad sedem propriam cum metropolitani honore reversus, memorato episcopo, quem ante ordinationem suam infestum expertus fuerat, triumphare cupiens, canonicam ab eo professionem instanter exegit.<sup>4</sup> Ad quam ex more præstandam cum ille nullatenus inclinaretur, sed appellationis se diffugio et quorundam enormium capitulorum objectu tueri niteretur: idem archiepiscopus excommunicationis in eum sententiam præpropere, et motu magis proprio quam prudentum consilio, promul-

<sup>3</sup> Hoveden (ed. Stubbs, iii. 74) confirms this, under date 1190, but does not mention the reversal of the decree.

Sept. 30, 1191 (Hoveden, iii. 168).

Events made this an impossible date for the archbishop (see p. 341), so he must have fixed it before his arrest on Sept. 18. Newburgh must allude to the citations after Geoffrey's return to York (about Nov. 1), Bened. ii. 225.

A.D. 1191-2.

Quarrel between Geoffrey archbishop of York and Hugh bishop of Durham.

Clement III. had exempted the bishop from the jurisdiction of the archbishop, but Celestine III. reversed the decree.

Archbishop Geoffrey demanding a profession of canonical obedience from the bishop is refused.

He excommunicates him. (Dec. 1191).

A.D. 1192. gavit. Verum sicut hic appellationem et objecta, ita ille sprevit risitque sententiam. Uterque mox ad sedem Apostolicam instructos responsales direxit; hic pro confirmanda, ille pro infirmando evacuandaque sententia quæ lata fuerat. Et hic quidem cupiens experiri sinceritatem Romanam, vel potius sufficere judicans quod profusionibus obsequiis pro negotio promotionis suæ paulo ante placasset Romanos, simpliciter postulavit; ille vero sagacious, prout a Romanis postulari oportuit, postulandum putavit: tantoque factus est in causa potior quanto et pollicendo ponderosior. Denique non solum pro eo est pronuntiatum quod<sup>1</sup> sententia illa non teneret,<sup>2</sup> verum etiam ei, sive pro acceptæ injuriæ consolatione sive etiam pro insolentis adversarii humiliatione, indultum, ut illi tanquam metropolitano subesse ulterius non deberet.<sup>3</sup> Sic ergo exemptus a jurisdictione potestatis suspectæ, victoriam suam quanto gloriosius tanto et vanius ostentavit. Porro idem archiepiscopus post successus præclaros initium malorum<sup>4</sup> hoc habuit, uti sequentia declarabunt.

Both appeal to Rome, but the archbishop omits the usual bribes, and the cause is decided against him.

Hunc<sup>2</sup> exitum occulto Dei judicio habuit Christiana illa tam sumptuosa, laboriosa, periculosa<sup>3</sup> contra im- manissimum sacri et tremendi Nominis hostem Saladinum expeditio magnorum regum, inclitorum ducum, innumerabilium popolorum. Et quidem tantis sumptibus, periculis, laboribus, pro recuperanda terrena Jerusalem parum actum est, pro instauranda vero superna Jerusalem plurimum,<sup>4</sup> uti superius ostensum est. Deo enim melius quam humana erat intentio disponente, tam multa Christianorum in suscepta pro Christo tam laboriosa peregrinatione occubentium millia,<sup>5</sup> quæ quidem secundum intentionem pro recuperatione terrenæ Jerusalem frustra sudasse videntur, cum fructu pii laboris tanquam vivi lapides in illius quæ sursum est Jerusalem ædificium transierunt. Veruntamen sicut defectui temporum nostrorum, quibus utique abundante iniquitate refrigescit caritas, impunitandum est quod loca sacra, in quibus redemptionis nostræ celebrata sunt sacramenta, tradita sunt in manus impiorum : ita et<sup>6</sup> illud quod pro recuperatione eorundem locorum tantis laboribus et sumptibus Christianum minus processit negotium. Nam suo tempore proculdubio juxta morem priscum Terra Sancta spuriissimos evomet incolas; et forte per parciorem manum Christianam, ut virtus divina in negotio clarius elucescat. Unde veraciter a quodam fidei bellatore dictum est, "Facile est concludi multos in Machab.

Quod utique declaratum est, cum unus persequeretur mille et duo fugarent decem millia; cum Gedeon amota multitudo per trecentos viros, qui aquas<sup>3</sup> lambuerant,<sup>4</sup> de innumerabilibus populis triumpharet. At non est tentandus Deus, ut Christiani, pro eo quod Dominum bonum potentemque habent, petulanter et inconsulte contra multos adversarios pauci prosiliant. Ita enim suos vult Deus in se confidere,<sup>5</sup> ut tamen non negligent prudenter et provide agere. <sup>6</sup> This remark bears on the question of the date of the conclusion of our author's task. The last event which he chronicles (the red rain at Andely) occurred in May 1198. Not only did Nunant die in the previous March, but the monks of Coventry were actually restored on Jan. 11, 1198. These facts must ultimately have reached the author if living. Indeed it seems strange that news from Andely should have outstripped tidings from Coventry. There is no correction or note in S., the Newburgh Priory copy. As to the monks, see Gervase, i. 550, Hoveden, iii. 168, and Jocelin de Brakelond, p. 69.

CAP. XLI.

A.D. 1194. Igitur rex Anglorum post Alemanniae detentionis — King Richard is released in the month of January (Feb. 4?).
 He leaves the archbishop of Rouen, the bishop of Bath and many nobles as hostages. The emperor is said to have repented of the release and to have sent men to recapture king Richard.
 taedium, quod jam annum excesserat, mense tandem Januario sollemniter relaxatus est,<sup>2</sup> relictisque apud imperatorem loco obsidum Rothomagensi archiepiscopo, Batoniensi<sup>3</sup> episcopo, et nobilibus plurimis, sive pro expletione summae nondum persolutae sive etiam pro quorundam fide pactorum, portum qui Swina<sup>4</sup> dieitur adiit, inde in regnum proprium, Deo propitio, transiturus. Verum cum ibidem diuseule demorari cogeretur, sive necessarii apparatus gratia sive etiam propter flatus adversos, indultae ei gratiae, ut dicitur, imperatorem poenituit, et relaxatum ad perpetuam revocare custodiam cogitavit. Nam sicut olim<sup>5</sup> Pharao et Ægyptii, quos Deus induraverat, poententia ducti quod populum Dei, quem servitute oppresserant, tandem vel coacti dimisissent, dixerunt: “Quid voluimus<sup>6</sup> facere ut dimitteremus Israel ne Exod. xiv. “serviret nobis?” ita etiam perfidus ille imperator et Alemanni cum regem Christianum, quem sola turpis lucri gratia diutina custodia coaretarant,<sup>7</sup> sera tandem clementia relaxassent: “Quid,” inquiunt, “fe-

A.D. 1194. Diu exspectatum et jam fere desperatum principis regressum Euro velocior fama vulgavit. Mox a provincialibus congratulatorio exceptus oceursu, venit Lundonias; quae nimurum, adventu ejus praeognito, sumpsere oleum gaudii pro luetu, et pallium laudis pro spiritu ineroris. Denique ad ingressum principis ita ornata<sup>1</sup> est facies amplissimae civitatis ut Alemanni nobiles qui cum ipso venerant, et redemptione regia exinanitam bonis Angliam credebant, conspecta<sup>2</sup> opum magnitudine obstupescerent. Quorum unus in ipsa pompa sollemni, ut dieitur,<sup>3</sup> conversus ad principem:

Rejoicings at the king's return.

Sane regesso regi optimatum et procerum regni admodum pauci occurrerant, quia fere omnes de mandato regio circa oppugnandas munitiones Johannis justa necessitate occupati erant. Qui autem in alia munitione erant, quæ disparis esse firmitatis noscitur, paulo excusabilius in idem periculum et dedecus inciderunt. ## CALENDARS OF STATE PAPERS, &c.

[IMPERIAL 8vo., cloth. Price 15s. each Volume or Part.]

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although "the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world," and although "they are of the greatest value in a historical and constitutional point of view, yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper Calendars and Indexes." Acting upon the recommendations of the Committee of the House of Commons above referred to, he suggested to the Lords of the Treasury that to effect the object he had in view it would be necessary for him to employ a few Persons fully qualified to perform the work which he contemplated.

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published under the direction of the Master of the Rolls:—

CALENDARIUM GENEALOGICUM; for the Reigns of Henry III. and Edward I.
Edited by CHARLES ROBERTS, Esq., Secretary of the Public Record Office.
 2 Vols. 1865.

This is a work of great value for elucidating the early history of our nobility and landed gentry.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, DOMESTIC SERIES, OF THE REIGNS OF EDWARD VI., MARY, ELIZABETH, AND JAMES I., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by ROBERT LEMON, Esq., F.S.A. (Vols. I. and II.), and by MARY ANNE EVERETT GREEN, (Vols. III.-XII.). 1856-1872.

Vol. I.—1547-1580.	Vol. VII.—Addenda, 1566-1579.
Vol. II.—1581-1590.	Vol. VIII.—1603-1610.
Vol. III.—1591-1594.	Vol. IX.—1611-1618.
Vol. IV.—1595-1597.	Vol. X.—1619-1623.
Vol. V.—1598-1601.	Vol. XI.—1623-1625, with Addenda, 1603-1625.
Vol. VI.—1601-1603, with Addenda, 1547-1565.	Vol. XII.—Addenda, 1580-1625.

These Calendars render accessible to investigation a large and important mass of historical materials. The Northern Rebellion of 1566-67; the plots of the Catholic fugitives in the Low Countries; numerous designs against Queen Elizabeth and in favour of a Catholic succession; the Gunpowder-plot; the rise and fall of Somerset; the Overbury murder; the disgrace of Sir Edward Coke ; the rise of the Duke of Buckingham, &c. ; and numerous other subjects few of which have been previously known.

Vol. III.—1663-1664.	Vol. VII.—1667.
Vol. IV.—1664-1665.

Seven volumes of this Calendar, between 1660 and 1667, have been published.

CALENDAR OF HOME OFFICE PAPERS OF THE REIGN OF GEORGE III., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Vols. I. and II. Edited by JOSEPH REDINGTON, Esq., 1878-1879. Vol. III. Edited by RICHARD ARTHUR ROBERTS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 1881.

Vol. I.—1760 (25 Oct.)-1765.	Vol. III.—1770-1772.
Vol. II.—1766-1769.

These are the first three volumes of the modern series of Domestic Papers, commencing with the accession of George III.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS relating to SCOTLAND, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by MARKHAM JOHN THORPE, Esq., of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford. 1858.

Vol. I., the Scottish Series, of the Reigns of Henry VIII., Edward VI., Mary, and Elizabeth, 1509-1589.
Vol. II., the Scottish Series, of the Reign of Elizabeth, 1589-1603; an Appendix to the Scottish Series, 1543-1592; and the State Papers relating to Mary Queen of Scots.

These volumes relate to Scotland, between 1509 and 1603. In the second volume are Papers relating to Mary Queen of Scots during her Detention in England, 1568-1587.

CALENDAR OF DOCUMENTS relating to IRELAND, in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, London. Edited by HENRY SAVAGE SWEETMAN, Esq., B.A., Trinity College, Dublin, Barrister-at-Law (Ireland). 1875-1881.

Vol. I.—1171-1251.	Vol. III.—1285-1292.
Vol. II.—1252-1284.	Vol. IV.—1293-1301.

These volumes contain a Calendar of documents relating to Ireland, to be continued to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS relating to IRELAND, OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY VIII., EDWARD VI., MARY, AND ELIZABETH, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by HANS CLAUDE HAMILTON, Esq., F.S.A. 1860-1877.

Vol. I.—1509-1573.	Vol. III.—1586-1588.
Vol. II.—1574-1585.

The above have been published under the editorship of Mr. H. C. Hamilton.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS relating to IRELAND, OF THE REIGN OF JAMES I., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, and elsewhere. Edited by the Rev. C. W. RUSSELL, D.D., and JOHN P. PRENDERGAST, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 1872-1880.

Vol. I.—1603-1606.	Vol. IV.—1611-1614.
Vol. II.—1606-1608.	Vol. V.—1615-1625.
Vol. III.—1608-1610.

This series is in continuation of the Irish State Papers commencing with the reign of Henry VIII.; but, for the reign of James I., the Papers are not confined to those in the Public Record Office, London.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, COLONIAL SERIES, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, and elsewhere. Edited by W. NOEL SAINSBURY, Esq. 1860-1884.

Vol. I.—America and West Indies, 1574-1660.
Vol. II.—East Indies, China, and Japan, 1513-1616.
Vol. III.—East Indies, China, and Japan, 1617-1621.
Vol. IV.—East Indies, China, and Japan, 1622-1624.
Vol. V.—America and West Indies, 1661-1668.
Vol. VI.—East Indies, 1625-1629.

These volumes include an analysis of early Colonial Papers in the Public Record Office, the India Office, and the British Museum.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS AND PAPERS, FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC, OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, the British Museum, &c. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London (Vols. I.-IV.); and by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq., (Vols. V., VI., and VII.) 1862-1883.

Vol. I.—1509-1514.	Vol. IV., Part 1.—1524-1526.
Vol. II. (in Two Parts)—1515-1518.	Vol. IV., Part 2.—1526-1528.
Vol. III. (in Two Parts)—1519-1523.	Vol. IV., Part 3.—1529-1530.
Vol. IV.—Introduction.	Vol. V.—1531-1532.
	Vol. VI.—1533.
	Vol. VII.—1534.

These volumes contain summaries of all State Papers and Correspondence relating to the reign of Henry VIII., in the Public Record Office, of those formerly in the State Paper Office, in the British Museum, the Libraries of Oxford and Cambridge, and other Public Libraries; and of all letters that have appeared in print in the works of Burnet, Strype, and others. Whatever authentic original material exists in England relative to the religious, political, parliamentary, or social history of the country during the reign of Henry VIII., whether despatches of ambassadors, or proceedings of the army, navy, treasury, or ordinance, or records of Parliament, appointments of officers, grants from the Crown, &c., will be found calendarized in these volumes.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD VI., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. 1547-1553. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, &c. 1861.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF MARY, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. 1553-1558. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, &c. 1861.

The two preceding volumes exhibit the negotiations of the English ambassadors with the courts of the Emperor Charles V. of Germany, of Henry II. of France, and of Philip II. of Spain. The affairs of several of the minor continental states also find various incidental illustrations of much interest. The Papers descriptive of the circumstances which attended the loss of Calais merit a special notice; while the progress of the wars in the north of France, into which England was dragged by her union with Spain, is narrated at some length. These volumes treat only of the relations of England with foreign powers.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF ELIZABETH, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, &c. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, (Vols. I.-VII.), and ALLAN JAMES CROSBY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law, (Vols. VIII.-XI.) 1863-1880.

Vol. I.—1558-1559.
Vol. II.—1559-1560.
Vol. III.—1560-1561.
Vol. IV.—1561-1562.
Vol. V.—1562.
Vol. VI.—1563.

Vol. VII.—1564-1565.
Vol. VIII.—1566-1568.
Vol. IX.—1569-1571.
Vol. X.—1572-1574.
Vol. XI.—1575-1577.

These volumes contain a Calendar of the Foreign Correspondence during the early portion of the reign of Elizabeth. They illustrate not only the external but also the domestic affairs of Foreign Countries during that period.

CALENDAR OF TREASURY PAPERS, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by JOSEPH REDINGTON, Esq. 1868-1883.

Vol. I.—1557-1696.
Vol. II.—1697-1702.
Vol. III.—1702-1707.

Vol. IV.—1708-1714.
Vol. V.—1714-1719.

The above Papers connected with the affairs of the Treasury comprise petitions, reports, and other documents relating to services rendered to the State, grants of money and pensions, appointments to offices, remissions of fines and duties, &c. They illustrate civil and military events, finance, the administration in Ireland and the Colonies, &c., and afford information nowhere else recorded.

CALENDAR OF THE CAREW PAPERS, preserved in the Lambeth Library. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London; and WILLIAM BULLEN, Esq. 1867-1873.

Vol. I.—1515-1574.
Vol. II.—1575-1588.
Vol. III.—1589-1600.
Vol. IV.—1601-1603.

Vol. V.—Book of Howth; Miscellaneous.
Vol. VI.—1603-1624.

The Carew Papers relating to Ireland, in the Lambeth Library, are unique and of great importance to all students of Irish history.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS, DESPATCHES, AND STATE PAPERS, relating to the Negotiations between England and Spain, preserved in the Archives at Simancas, and elsewhere. Edited by G. A. BERGENROTH. 1862-1868.

Vol. I.—Hen. VII.—1485-1509.
Vol. II.—Hen. VIII.—1509-1525.
Supplement to Vol. I. and Vol. II.

Mr. Bergenroth was engaged in compiling a Calendar of the Papers relating to England preserved in the archives of Simancas in Spain, and the corresponding portion removed from Simancas to Paris. Mr. Bergenroth also visited Madrid, and examined the Papers there, bearing on the reign of Henry VIII. The first volume contains the Spanish Papers of the reign of Henry VII.; the second volume, those of the first portion of the reign of Henry VIII. The Supplement contains new information relating to the private life of Queen Katharine of England; and to the projected marriage of Henry VII. with Queen Juana, widow of King Philip of Castile, and mother of the Emperor Charles V.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS, DISPATCHES, AND STATE PAPERS, relating to the Negotiations between England and Spain, preserved in the Archives at Simancas, and elsewhere. Edited by DON PASCUAL DE GAYANGOS. 1873-1883.

- Vol. III., Part 1.—Hen. VIII.—1525-1526.
- Vol. III., Part 2.—Hen. VIII.—1527-1529.
- Vol. IV., Part 1.—Hen. VIII.—1529-1530.
- Vol. IV., Part 2.—Hen. VIII.—1531-1533.
- Vol. IV., Part 2.—continued.—Hen. VIII.—1531-1533.

Upon the death of Mr. Bergenroth, Don Pascual de Gayangos was appointed to continue the Calendar of the Spanish State Papers. He has pursued a similar plan to that of his predecessor, but has been able to add much valuable matter from Brussels and Vienna, with which Mr. Bergenroth was unacquainted.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS AND MANUSCRIPTS, relating to ENGLISH AFFAIRS, preserved in the Archives of Venice, &c. Edited by RAWDON BROWN, Esq. 1864-1882.

- |                      |                               |

| Vol. IV.—1527-1533.  |                               |

Mr. Rawdon Brown's researches have brought to light a number of valuable documents relating to various periods of English history ; his contributions to historical literature are of the most interesting and important character.

SYLLABUS, IN ENGLISH, OF RYMER'S FÆDERA. By Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. Vol. I.—Will. I-Edw. III.; 1066-1377. Vol. II.—Ric. II.-Chas. II.; 1377-1654. 1869-1373.

The "Fædera," or "Rymer's Fædera," is a collection of miscellaneous documents illustrative of the History of Great Britain and Ireland, from the Norman Conquest to the reign of Charles II. Several editions of the "Fædera" have been published, and the present Syllabus was undertaken to make the contents of this great National Work more generally known.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

[ROYAL 8vo. half-bound. Price 10s. each Volume or Part.]

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, "that an uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty's royal sanction, "would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty's reign, and conducive to "the advancement of historical and constitutional knowledge; that the House "therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He would be graciously pleased "to give such directions as His Majesty, in His wisdom, might think fit, for "the publication of a complete edition of the ancient historians of this realm, "and assured His Majesty that whatever expense might be necessary for this "purpose would be made good."

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty's Treasury in 1857 a plan for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly. In selecting these works, it was considered right, in the first instance, to give preference to those of which the manuscripts were unique, or the materials of which would help to fill up blanks in English history for which no satisfactory and authentic information hitherto existed in any accessible form. One great object the Master of the Rolls had in view was to form a corpus historicum within reasonable limits, and which should be as complete as possible. In a subject of so vast a range, it was important that the historical student should be able to select such volumes as conformed with his own peculiar tastes and studies, and not be put to the expense of purchasing the whole collection; an inconvenience inseparable from any other plan than that which has been in this instance adopted.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

Capgrave was prior of Lynn, in Norfolk, and provincial of the order of the Friars Hermits of England shortly before the year 1464. His Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (being written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

This Chronicle traces the history of the great Benedictine monastery of Abingdon in Berkshire, from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I., shortly after which period the present narrative was drawn up by an inmate of the establishment. The author had access to the title-deeds of the house; and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom. The work is printed for the first time.

3. LIVES OF EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. I.—La Estoire de Seint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Aedwardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, containing 4,686 lines, addressed to Alianor, Queen of Henry III., probably written in 1245, on the restoration of the church of Westminster. Nothing is known of the author. The second is an anonymous poem, containing 536 lines, written between 1440 and 1450, by command of Henry VI., to whom it is dedicated. It does not throw any new light on the reign of Edward the Confessor, but is valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time. The third, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written for Queen Edith, between 1066 and 1074, during the pressure of the suffering brought on the Saxons by the Norman conquest. It notices many facts not found in other writers, and some which differ considerably from the usual accounts.

4. MONUMENTA FRANCISCANA. Vol. I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. Adae de Marisco Epistola. Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londoniae. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vol. II.—De Adventu Minorum; re-edited, with additions. Chronicle of the Grey Friars. The ancient English version of the Rule of St. Francis. Abbreviatio Statutorum, 1451, &c. Edited by RICHARD HOWLETT, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1858, 1882.

The first volume contains original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of Saint Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers connected with the foundation and diffusion of this great body. It was the aim of the editor to collect whatever historical information could be found in this country, towards illustrating a period of the national history for which only scanty materials exist. None of these have been before printed. The second volume contains materials found, since the first volume was published, among the MSS. of Sir Charles Isham, and in various libraries.

5. FASCICULI ZIZANIORUM MAGISTRI JOHANNIS WYCLIF CUM TRITICO. Ascribed to THOMAS NETTER, of WALDEN, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work derives its principal value from being the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards. When written the disputes of the school, men had been extended to the field of theology, and they appear both in the writings of Wycliff and in those of his adversaries. Wycliff's little bundles of tares are not less metaphysical than theological, and the conflict between Nominalists and Realists rages side by side with the conflict between the different interpreters of Scripture. The work gives a good idea of the controversies at the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries.

6. THE BUIK OF THE CRONICLIS OF SCOTLAND; OR, A METRICAL VERSION OF THE HISTORY OF HECTOR BOECE; BY WILLIAM STEWART. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." Strict accuracy of statement is not to be looked for; but the stories of the colonization of Spain, Ireland, and Scotland are interesting if not true; and the chronicle reflects the manners, sentiments, and character of the age in which it was composed. The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this version, and the student of language will find ample materials for comparison with the English dialects of the same period, and with modern lowland Scotch.

7. JOHANNIS CAPGRAVE LIBER DE ILLUSTRIBUS HENRICIS. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

This work is dedicated to Henry VI. of England, who appears to have been, in the author's estimation, the greatest of all the Henries. It is divided into three parts, each having a separate dedication. The first part relates only to the history of the Empire, from the election of Henry I., the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, from the accession of Henry I. in 1100, to 1446, which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world. Capgrave was born in 1393, in the reign of Richard II., and lived during the Wars of the Roses, for which period his work is of some value.

8. HISTORIA MONASTERII S. AUGUSTINI CANTUARIENSIS, by THOMAS OF ELMHAM, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by CHARLES HARDWICK, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191. Prefixed is a chronology as far as 1418, which shows in outline what was to have been the character of the work when completed. The only copy known is in the possession of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The author was connected with Norfolk, and most probably with Elmham, whence he derived his name.

9. EULOGIUM (HISTORIARUM SIVE TEMPORIS): Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366; a Monacho quodam Malmesbiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. HAYDON, B.A. 1858-1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of the Abbey of Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, about the year 1367. A continuation, carrying the history of England down to the year 1413, was added in the former half of the fifteenth century by an author whose name is not known. The original Chronicle is divided into five books, and contains a history of the world generally, but more especially of England to the year 1366. The continuation extends the history down to the coronation of Henry V. The Eulogium itself is chiefly valuable as containing a history, by a contemporary, of the period between 1356 and 1366. The notices of events appear to have been written very soon after their occurrence. Among other interesting matter, the Chronicle contains a diary of the Poitiers campaign, evidently furnished by some person who accompanied the army of the Black Prince. The continuation of the Chronicle is also the work of a contemporary, and gives a very interesting account of the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. It is believed to be the earliest authority for the statement that the latter monarch died in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster.

10. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE SEVENTH: Bernardi Andreæ Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi; neenon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1858.

The contents of this volume are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Maehado during certain embassies on which he was sent by Henry VII. to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in the year 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Other documents of interest in connexion with the period are given in an appendix.

11. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE FIFTH. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in landem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhami Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by CHARLES A. COLE, Esq. 1858.

This volume contains three treatises which more or less illustrate the history of the reign of Henry V., viz.: A Life by Robert Redman; a Metrical Chronicle by Thomas Elmham, prior of Lenton, a contemporary author; Versus Rhythmici, written apparently by a monk of Westminster Abbey, who was also a contemporary of Henry V. These works are printed for the first time.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn, in archibvis Gildballæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts), Liber Custumarum. Vol. III., Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendixes, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1859-1862.

The manuscript of the Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, a large folio volume, is preserved in the Record Room of the City of London. It gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the 12th, 13th, 14th, and early part of the 15th centuries. The Liber Custumarum was compiled probably by various hands in the early part of the 14th century during the reign of Edward II. The manuscript, a folio volume, is also preserved in the Record Room of the City of London, though some portion in its original state, borrowed from the City in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and never returned, forms part of the Cottonian MS. Claudius D. II. in the British Museum. It also gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the 12th, 13th, and early part of the 14th centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa in England in 449, yet it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred, and comes down to 792, where it ends abruptly. The history is particularly valuable for notices of events in the eastern portions of the kingdom, not to be elsewhere obtained. Some curious facts are mentioned relative to the feuds in that part of England, which are confirmed in the Friesland Chronicle of Anthony Heinrich, pastor of the Island of Mohr.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1859-1861.

These Poems are perhaps the most interesting of all the historical writings of the period, though they cannot be relied on for accuracy of statement. They are various in character; some are upon religious subjects, some may be called satires, and some give no more than a court scandal; but as a whole they present a very fair picture of society, and of the relations of the different classes to one another. The period comprised is in itself interesting, and brings us, through the decline of the feudal system, to the beginning of our modern history. The songs in old English are of considerable value to the philologist.

15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c., of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.

This is the celebrated treatise—never before printed—so frequently referred to by the great philosopher in his works. It contains the fullest details we possess of the life and labours of Roger Bacon : also a fragment by the same author, supposed to be unique, the "Compendium Studii Theologicae."

16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGLICANA; 449-1298: neenon ejusdem Liber de Archiepiscopis et Episcopis Angliæ. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1859.

The author, a monk of Norwich, has here given us a Chronicle of England from the arrival of the Saxons in 449 to the year 1298, in or about which year it appears that he died. The latter portion of this history (the whole of the reign of Edward I. more especially) is of great value, as the writer was contemporary with the events which he records. An Appendix contains several illustrative documents connected with the previous narrative.

17. BRUT Y TYWYSOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

This work, also known as "The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales," has been attributed to Caradoc of Llancarvan, who flourished about the middle of the twelfth century. It is written in the ancient Welsh language, begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Rome, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. 1399-1404. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.

This volume, like all the others in the series containing a miscellaneous selection of letters, is valuable on account of the light it throws upon biographical history, and the familiar view it presents of characters, manners, and events. The period requires much elucidation; to which it will materially contribute.

19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECKOK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature can boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. While Bishop of St. Asaph, he zealously defended his brother prelates from the attacks of those who censured the bishops for their neglect of duty. He maintained that it was no part of a bishop's functions to appear in the pulpit, and that his time might be more profitably spent, and his dignity better maintained, in the performance of works of a higher character. Among those who thought differently were the Lollards, and against their general doctrines the "Repressor" is directed. Peckok took up a position midway between that of the Roman Church and that of the modern Anglican Church; but his work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards and of the arguments by which they were supported, and because it assists us to ascertain the state of feeling which ultimately led to the Reformation. Apart from religious matters, the light thrown upon contemporaneous history is very small, but the "Repressor" has great value for the philologist, as it tells us what were the characteristics of the language in use among the cultivated Englishmen of the fifteenth century. Peckok, though an opponent of the Lollards, showed a certain spirit of toleration, for which he received, towards the end of his life, the usual mediæval reward—persecution.

20. ANNALES CAMBRIC. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commence in 447, and come down to 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle, used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster. During its first century it contains scarcely anything relating to Britain, the earliest direct concurrence with English history is relative to the mission of Augustine. Its notices throughout, though brief, are valuable. The annals were probably written at St. Davids, by Blegevryd, Archdeacon of Llandaff, the most learned man in his day in all Cymru.

21. THE WORKS OF GERALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V., VI., and VII. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1861-1877.

These volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John, and attempted to re-establish the independence of Wales by restoring the see of St. Davids to its ancient primacy. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable chiefly for the racy and original anecdotes which they contain relating to contemporaries. He is the only Welsh writer of any importance who has contributed so much to the mediæval literature of this country, or assumed, in consequence of his nationality, so free and independent a tone. His frequent travels in Italy, in France, in Ireland, and in Wales, gave him opportunities for observation which did not generally fall to the lot of mediæval writers in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of these observations Geraldus has made due use. Only extracts from these treatises have been printed before, and almost all of them are taken from unique manuscripts.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland. The first in 1183, the second in 1185-6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. Curious as this treatise is, Mr. Dimock is of opinion that it ought not to be accepted as sober truthful history, for Giraldus himself states that truth was not his main object, and that he compiled the work for the purpose of sounding the praises of Henry the Second. Elsewhere, however, he declares that he had stated nothing in the Topographia of the truth of which he was not well assured, either by his own eyesight or by the testimony, with all diligence elicited, of the most trustworthy and authentic men in the country; that though he did not put just the same full faith in their reports as in what he had himself seen, yet, as they only related what they had themselves seen, he could not but believe such credible witnesses. A very interesting portion of this treatise is devoted to the animals of Ireland. It shows that he was a very accurate and acute observer, and his descriptions are given in a way that a scientific naturalist of the present day could hardly improve upon. The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about 1188 and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of acts occurring in his own days. No one can peruse it without coming to the conclusion that it is rather a poetical fiction than a prosaic truthful history. Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Cambriæ et Descriptio Cambriæ; and Vol. VII., the lives of S. Regnigius and S. Hugh.

22. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE WARS OF THE ENGLISH IN FRANCE DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY THE SIXTH, KING OF ENGLAND. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861-1864.

These letters and papers are derived chiefly from originals or contemporary copies extant in the Bibliothèque Impériale, and the Dépôt des Archives, in Paris. They illustrate the policy adopted by John Duke of Bedford and his successors during their government of Normandy, and other provinces of France acquired by Henry V. Here may be traced, step by step, the gradual declension of the English power, until we are prepared for its final overthrow.

23. THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE, ACCORDING TO THE SEVERAL ORIGINAL AUTHORITIES. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by BENJAMIN THORPE, Esq., Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

This Chronicle, extending from the earliest history of Britain to 1154, is justly the boast of England; no other nation can produce any history, written in its own vernacular, at all approaching it, in antiquity, truthfulness, or extent, the historical books of the Bible alone excepted. There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In this edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography, whether arising from locality or age.

24. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGNS OF RICHARD III. AND HENRY VII., Vols. I. and II. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1861-1863.

The Papers are derived from MSS. in the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and other repositories. The period to which they refer is unusually destitute of chronicles and other sources of historical information, so that the light obtained from them is of special importance. The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III.; correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. LETTERS OF BISHOP GROSSETESTE, ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE SOCIAL CONDITION OF HIS TIME. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The Letters of Robert Grosseteste (131 in number) are here collected from various sources, and a large portion of them is printed for the first time. They range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop.

26. DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Vol. I. (in Two Parts); Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II.; 1066-1200. Vol. III.; 1200-1327. By Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1862-1871.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. This arrangement has two advantages; the materials for any given period may be seen at a glance; and if the reader knows the time when an author wrote, and the number of years that had elapsed between the date of the events and the time the writer flourished, he will generally be enabled to form a fair estimate of the comparative value of the narrative itself. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which the original portions are distinguished from those which are mere compilations. When possible, the sources are indicated from which compilations have been derived. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice of such British authors as have written on historical subjects.

27. ROYAL AND OTHER HISTORICAL LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGN OF HENRY III. Vol. I., 1216-1235. Vol. II., 1236-1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, D.D., Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862-1866.

The letters contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from the ancient correspondence formerly in the Tower of London, and now in the Public Record Office. They illustrate the political history of England during the growth of its liberties, and throw considerable light upon the personal history of Simon de Montfort. The affairs of France form the subject of many of them, especially in regard to the province of Gascony. The entire collection consists of nearly 700 documents, the greater portion of which is printed for the first time.

28. CHRONICA MONASTERII S. ALBANI.—1. THOMÆ WALSHAM HISTORIA ANGLICANA; Vol. I., 1272-1381: Vol. II., 1381-1422. 2. WILLELMI RISHANGER CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1307. 3. JOHANNIS DE TROKELOWE ET HENRICI DE BLANEFORDE CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1296; 1307-1324; 1392-1406. 4. GESTA ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, A THOMA WALSHAM, REGNANTE RICARDO SECUNDO, EJUSDEM ECCLESIAE PRÆCENTORE, COMPILATA; Vol. I., 793-1290: Vol. II., 1290-1349: Vol. III., 1349-1411. 5. JOHANNIS AMUNDENSHAM, MONACHI MONASTERII S. ALBANI, UT VIDETUR, ANNALES; Vols. I. and II. 6. REGISTRA QUORUNDAM ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, QUI SÆCULO XV<sup>MO</sup> FLORUERE; Vol. I., REGISTRUM ABBATÆ JOHANNIS WHETHAMSTEDE, ABBATIS MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI, ITERUM SUSCEPTÆ; ROBERTO BLAKENEY, CAPELLANO, QUONDAM ADSCRIPTUM: Vol. II., REGISTRA JOHANNIS WHETHAMSTEDE, WILLELMI ALBON, ET WILLELMI WALINGFORDE, ABBATUM MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI, CUM APPENDICE, CONTINENTE QUASDAM EPISTOLAS, A JOHANNE WHETHAMSTEDE CONSCRIPTAS. 7. YPODIGMA NEUSTRIÆ A THOMA WALSHAM, QUONDAM MONACHO MONASTERII S. ALBANI, CONSCRIPTUM. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Cambridge and Oxford; and of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1876.

In the 1st two volumes is a History of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., by Thomas Walsingham, Precentor of St. Albans, from MS. VII. in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arms, London, a manuscript of the fifteenth century, collated with MS. 13 E. IX. in the King's Library in the British Museum, and MS. VII. in the Parker Collection of Manuscripts at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the 3rd volume is a Chronicle of English History, attributed to William Rishanger, who lived in the reign of Edward I., from the Cotton MS. Faustina B. IX. in the British Museum, collated with MS. 14 C. VII. (fols. 219-231) in the King's Library, British Museum, and the Cotton MS. Claudius E. III., fols. 306-331: an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol, 1291-1292, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., also attributed to William Rishanger, but on no sufficient ground: a short Chronicle of English History, 1292 to 1300, by an unknown hand, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: a short Chronicle Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi, Regis Angliae, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library, and MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., with Annales Regum Angliae, probably by the same hand: and fragments of three Chronicles of English History, 1285 to 1307.

In the 4th volume is a Chronicle of English History, 1259 to 1296, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: Annals of Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe, a monk of St. Albans, and a continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henry de Blaneforde, both from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: a full Chronicle of English History, 1392 to 1406, from MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; and an account of the Benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the 15th century from MS. VI. in the same Library.

The 5th, 6th, and 7th volumes contain a history of the Abbots of St. Albans, 793 to 1411, mainly compiled by Thomas Walsingham, from MS. Cotton. Claudius E. IV., in the British Museum: with a Continuation, from the closing pages of Parker MS. VII., in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The 8th and 9th volumes, in continuation of the Annals, contain a Chronicle, probably by John Amundesham, a monk of St. Albans.

The 10th and 11th volumes relate especially to the acts and proceedings of Abbots Whethamstede, Albon, and Wallingford, and may be considered as a memorial of the chief historical and domestic events during those periods.

The 12th volume contains a compendious History of England to the reign of Henry V., and of Normandy in early times, also by Thomas Walsingham, and dedicated to Henry V. The compiler has often substituted other authorities in place of those consulted in the preparation of his larger work.

29. CHRONICON ABBATÆ EVESHAMENSIS, AUCTORIBUS DOMINICO PRIORE Evesham et Thoma de Marleberge ABBAE, A FUNDATIONE AD ANNUM 1213, UNA CUM CONTINUATIONE AD ANNUM 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. MACRAY, Bodleian Library, Oxford, 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from its foundation by Egwin, about 690, to the year 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey, such as but rarely has been recorded. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history which will be read with much interest. This work exists in a single MS., and is for the first time printed.

30. RICARDI DE CIRENCESTRIA SPECULUM HISTORIALE DE GESTIS REGUM ANGLIE. Vol. I., 447-871. Vol. II., 872-1066. Edited by JOHN E. B. MAYOR, M.A. Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863-1869.

The compiler, Richard of Cirencester, was a monk of Westminster, 1355-1400. In 1391 he obtained a licence to make a pilgrimage to Rome. His history, in four books, extends from 447 to 1066. He announces his intention of continuing it, but there is no evidence that he completed any more. This chronicle gives many charters in favour of Westminster Abbey, and a very full account of the lives and miracles of the saints, especially of Edward the Confessor, whose reign occupies the fourth book. A treatise on the Coronation, by William of Sudbury, a monk of Westminster, fills book iii. c. 3. It was on this author that C. J. Bertram founded his forgery, De Situ Britanniae, in 1747.

31. YEAR BOOKS OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD THE FIRST. Years 20-21, 21-22, 30-31, 32-33, and 33-35. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. YEAR BOOKS, 11-12 Edward III. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle

Temple, Barrister-at-Law; continued by LUKE OWEN PIKE, Esq., M.A., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1883.

The volumes known as the "Year Books" contain reports in Norman-French of cases argued and decided in the Courts of Common Law. They may be considered to a great extent as the "lex non scripta" of England, and been held in the highest veneration by the ancient sages of the law, and received by them as the repositories of the first recorded judgments and dicta of the great legal luminaries of past ages. They are also worthy of attention on account of the historical information and the notices of public and private persons which they contain, as well as the light which they throw on ancient manners and customs.

32. NARRATIVES OF THE EXPULSION OF THE ENGLISH FROM NORMANDY 1449-1450.—Robertus Blondelli de Reductione Normanniae: Le Recouvrement de Normandie, par Berry, Hérault du Roy: Conférences between the Ambassadors of France and England. Edited, from MSS. in the Imperial Library at Paris, by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863.

This volume contains the narrative of an eye-witness who details with considerable power and minuteness the circumstances which attended the final expulsion of the English from Normandy in 1450. Commencing with the infringement of the truce by the capture of Fougères, and ending with the battle of Formigny and the embarkation of the Duke of Somerset. The period embraced is less than two years.

33. HISTORIA ET CARTULARIUM MONASTERII S. PETRI GLOUCESTRÆ. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. HART, Esq., F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863-1867.

This work consists of two parts, the History and the Cartulary of the Monastery of St. Peter, Gloucester. The history furnishes an account of the monastery from its foundation, in the year 681, to the early part of the reign of Richard II., together with a calendar of donations and benefactions. It treats principally of the affairs of the monastery, but occasionally matters of general history are introduced. Its authorship has generally been assigned to Walter Froucestre, the twentieth abbot, but without any foundation.

34. ALEXANDRI NECKAM DE NATURIS RERUM LIBRI DUO; with NECKAM'S POEM, DE LAUDIBUS DIVINÆ SAPIENTIÆ. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1863.

Neckam was a man who devoted himself to science, such as it was in the twelfth century. In the "De Naturis Rerum" are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam was not thought infallible, even by his contemporaries, for Roger Bacon remarks of him, "this Alexander in many things wrote what was true and useful; but he neither can nor ought by just title to be reckoned among authorities." Neckam, however, had sufficient independence of thought to differ from some of the schoolmen who in his time considered themselves the only judges of literature. He had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century. The poem entitled "De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ" appears to be a metrical paraphrase or abridgment of the "De Naturis Rerum." It is written in the elegiac metre, and though there are many lines which violate classical rules, it is, as a whole above the ordinary standard of mediæval Latin.

35. LEECHDOMS, WORTCUNNING, AND STARCRAFT OF EARLY ENGLAND; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. OSWALD COCKAYNE, M.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge 1864-1866.

This work illustrates not only the history of science, but the history of superstition. In addition to the information bearing directly upon the medical skill and medical faith of the time, there are many passages which incidentally throw light upon the general mode of life and ordinary diet. The volumes are interesting not only in their scientific, but also in their social aspect. The manuscripts from which they have been printed are valuable to the Anglo-Saxon scholar for the illustrations they afford of Anglo-Saxon orthography.

36. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I.:—Annales de Margan, 1066-1232; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066-1263; Annales de Burton, 1004-1263. Vol. II.:—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519-1277; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1-1291. Vol. III.:—Annales Prioratus de Dunstaplia, 1-1297. Annales Monasterii de Bermundeseia, 1042-1432. Vol. IV.:—Annales Monasterii de Oseneia, 1016-1347; Chronicum vulgo dictum Chronicum Thomae Wykes, 1066-1289; Annales Prioratus de Wigornia, 1-1377. Vol. V.:—Index and Glossary. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registrar of the University, Cambridge. 1864-1869.

The present collection of Monastic Annals embraces all the more important chronicles compiled in religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are ten in number. The extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432, although they refer more especially to the reigns of John, Henry III., and Edward I. Some of these narratives have already appeared in print, but others are printed for the first time.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. From MSS. in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and the Imperial Library, Paris. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work contains a number of very curious and interesting incidents, and being the work of a contemporary, is very valuable, not only as a truthful biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic, but as the work of a man, who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs. The author, in all probability, was Adam Abbot of Evesham. He was domestic chaplain and private confessor of Bishop Hugh, and in these capacities was admitted to the closest intimacy, Bishop Hugh was Prior of Witham for 11 years before he became Bishop of Lincoln. His consecration took place on the 21st September 1186; he died on the 16th of November 1200; and was canonized in 1220.

38. CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I.:—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II.:—EPISTOLE CANTUARIENSES; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury; 1187 to 1199. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864-1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesaut, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London. The narrative extends from 1187 to 1199; but its chief interest consists in the minute and authentic narrative which it furnishes of the exploits of Richard I., from his departure from England in December 1189 to his death in 1199. The author states in his prologue that he was an eye-witness of much that he records; and various incidental circumstances which occur in the course of the narrative confirm this assertion.

The letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, are of value as furnishing authentic materials for the history of the ecclesiastical condition of England during the reign of Richard I. They had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury, who saw in it a design to supplant them in their function of metropolitan chapter. These letters are printed, for the first time, from a MS. belonging to the archiepiscopal library at Lambeth.

39. RECUEIL DES CRONIQUES ET ANCIENNES ISTORIES DE LA GRANT BRETAIGNE A PRESENT NOMME ENGLETERRE, par JEAN DE WAVRIN. Vol. I. Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1399-1422. Vol. III., 1422-1431. Edited by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864-1879.
40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAVRIN. Albina to 688. (Translation of the preceding Vol. I.) Edited and translated by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864.

This curious chronicle extends from the fabulous period of history down to the return of Edward IV. to England in the year 1471 after the second deposition of Henry VI. The manuscript from which the text of the work is taken is preserved in the Imperial Library at Paris, and is believed to be the only complete and nearly contemporary copy in existence. The work, as originally bound, was comprised in six volumes, since rebound in morocco in 12 volumes, folio maximo, vellum, and is illustrated with exquisite miniatures, vignettes, and initial letters. It was written towards the end of the fifteenth century, having been expressly executed for Louis de Bruges, Seigneur de la Gruthuyse and Earl of Winchester, from whose cahuet it passed into the library of Louis XII. at Blois.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. Vols. III., IV., V., VI., VII., and VIII. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH RAWSON LUMBY, D.D., Norrisian Professor of Divinity, Vicar of St. Edward's, Fellow of St. Catharine's College, and late Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge. 1865-1883.

This is one of the many mediæval chronicles which assume the character of a history of the world. It begins with the creation, and is brought down to the author's own time, the reign of Edward III. Prefixed to the historical portion, is a chapter devoted to geography, in which is given a description of every known land. To say that the Polychronicon was written in the fourteenth century is to say that it is not free from inaccuracies. It has, however, a value apart from its intrinsic merits. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth. The differences between Trevisa's version and that of the unknown writer are often considerable.

42. LE LIVERE DE REIS DE BRITANIE E LE LIVERE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises, though they cannot rank as independent narratives, are nevertheless valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians, especially "Le Livre de Reis de Engletere." Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonized French. It is supposed that Peter of Ickham was the supposed author.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Esq., Assistant Keeper of Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866-1868.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is both curious and valuable. It is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country. In addition to the private affairs of the monastery, some light is thrown upon the public events of the time, which are however kept distinct, and appear at the end of the history of each abbot's administration. The text has been printed from what is said to be the autograph of the original compiler, Thomas de Burton, the nineteenth abbot.

44. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I., II., and III. 1067-1253. Edited by Sir FRÉDÉRIC MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Manuscript Department of British Museum. 1866-1869.

The exact date at which this work was written is, according to the chronicler, 1250. The history is of considerable value as an illustration of the period during which the author lived, and contains a good summary of the events which followed the Conquest. This minor chronicle is, however, based on another work (also written by Matthew Paris) giving fuller details, which has been called the "Historia Major." The chronicle here published, nevertheless, gives some information not to be found in the greater history.

45. LIBER MONASTERII DE HYDA: A CHRONICLE AND CHARTULARY OF HYDE ABBEY, WINCHESTER, 455-1023. Edited, from a Manuscript in the Library of the Earl of Macclesfield, by EDWARD EDWARDS, Esq. 1866.

The "Book of Hyde" is a compilation from much earlier sources which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde Chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify—either from tradition or from sources of information not now discoverable—the statements, which, in substance, he adopts. He also mentions, and frequently quotes from writers whose works are either entirely lost or at present known only by fragments.

There is to be found, in the "Book of Hyde," much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and Mediaeval English.

46. CHRONICON SCOTORUM: A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, from the EARLIEST TIMES to 1135; with a SUPPLEMENT, containing the Events from 1141 to 1150. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1866.

There is, in this volume, a legendary account of the peopling of Ireland and of the adventures which befell the various heroes who are said to have been connected with Irish history. The details are, however, very meagre both for this period and for the time when history becomes more authentic. The plan adopted in the chronicle gives the appearance of an accuracy to which the earlier portions of the work cannot have any claim. The succession of events is marked, year by year, from A.M. 1599 to A.D. 1150. The principal events narrated in the later portion of the work are, the invasions of foreigners, and the wars of the Irish among themselves. The text has been printed from a MS. preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, written partly in Latin, partly in Irish.

47. THE CHRONICLE OF PIERRE DE LANGTOFT, IN FRENCH VERSE, FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD TO THE DEATH OF EDWARD I. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1866-1868.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon of Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and that he lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Historia Britonum," in the second, a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, down to the death of Henry III., and in the third a history of the reign of Edward I. The principal object of the work was apparently to show the justice of Edward's Scottish wars. The language is singularly corrupt, and a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. THE WAR OF THE GAEDHL WITH THE GAILL, OR THE INVASIONS OF IRELAND BY THE DANES AND OTHER NORSEmen. Edited, with a Translation, by JAMES HENTHORN TODD, D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University, Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an undoubtedly ancient original. That it was compiled from contemporary materials has been proved by curious incidental evidence. It is stated in the account given of the battle of Clontarf that the full tide in Dublin Bay on the day of the battle (23 April 1014) coincided with sunrise; and that the returning tide in the evening aided considerably in the defeat of the Danes. The fact has been verified by astronomical calculations, and the inference is that the author of the chronicle, if not himself an eye-witness, must have derived his information from those who were eye-witnesses. The contents of the work are sufficiently described in its title. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas, with poems and fragments of poems introduced into the prose narrative.

49. GESTA REGIS HENRICI SECUNDI BENEDICTI ABBATIS. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY II. AND RICHARD I., 1169-1192, known under the name of BENEDICT OF PETERBOROUGH. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1867.

This chronicle of the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., known commonly under the name of Beoediet of Peterborough, is one of the best existing specimens of a class of historical compositions of the first importance to the student.

50. MUNIMENTA ACADEMICA, OR, DOCUMENTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF ACADEMICAL LIFE AND STUDIES AT OXFORD (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. HENRY ANSTEY, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

This work will supply materials for a History of Academical Life and Studies in the University of Oxford during the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries.

51. CHRONICA MAGISTRI ROGERI DE HOVEDENE. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868-1871.

This work has long been justly celebrated, but not thoroughly understood until Mr. Stubbs' edition. The earlier portion, extending from 732 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied little, and not always judiciously. From 1170 to 1192 is the portion which corresponds with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49) ; but it is not a copy, being sometimes an abridgment, at others a paraphrase; occasionally the two works entirely agree; showing that both writers had access to the same materials, but dealt with them differently. From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work : it is extremely valuable, and an authority of the first importance.

52. WILLELMI MALMESBIRIENSIS MONACHI DE GESTIS PONTIFICUM ANGLORUM LIBRI QUINQUE. Edited, from William of Malmesbury's Autograph MS., by N. E. S. A. HAMILTON, Esq., of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1870.

William of Malmesbury's "Gesta Pontificum" is the principal foundation of English Ecclesiastical Biography, down to the year 1122. The manuscript which has been followed in this Edition is supposed by Mr. Hamilton to be the author's autograph, containing his latest additions and amendments.

53. HISTORIC AND MUNICIPAL DOCUMENTS OF IRELAND, FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE CITY OF DUBLIN, &c. 1172-1320. Edited by JOHN T. GILBERT, Esq., F.S.A., Secretary of the Public Record Office of Ireland. 1870.

A collection of original documents, elucidating mainly the history and condition of the municipal, middle, and trading classes under or in relation with the rule of England in Ireland,—a subject hitherto in almost total obscurity. Extending over the first hundred and fifty years of the Anglo-Norman settlement, the series includes charters, municipal laws and regulations, rolls of names of citizens and members of merchant-guilds, lists of commodities with their rates, correspondence, illustrations of relations between ecclesiastics and laity; together with many documents exhibiting the state of Ireland during the presence there of the Scots under Robert and Edward Bruce.

54. THE ANNALS OF LOCH CÉ. A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, FROM 1014 TO 1590. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1871.

The original of this chronicle has passed under various names. The title of "Annals of Loch Cé" was given to it by Professor O'Curry, on the ground that it was transcribed for Brian Mac Dermot, an Irish chieftain, who resided on the island in Loch Cé, in the county of Roscommon. It adds much to the materials for the civil and ecclesiastical history of Ireland; and contains many curious references to English and foreign affairs, not noticed in any other chronicle.

55. MONUMENTA JURIDICA. THE BLACK BOOK OF THE ADMIRALTY, WITH APPENDICES. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1871-1876.

This book contains the ancient ordinances and laws relating to the navy, and was probably compiled for the use of the Lord High Admiral of England. Selden calls it the "jewel of the Admiralty Records." Prynne ascribes to the Black Book the same authority in the Admiralty as the Black and Red Books have in the Court of Exchequer, and most English writers on maritime law recognize its importance.

56. MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VI.:—OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THOMAS BEKYNTON, SECRETARY TO HENRY VI., AND BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS. Edited, from a MS. in the Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth, with an Appendix of Illustrative Documents, by the Rev. GEORGE WILLIAMS, B.D., Vicar of Ringwood, late Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. Vols. I. and II. 1872.

These curious volumes are of a miscellaneous character, and were probably compiled under the immediate direction of Bekynton before he had attained to the Episcopate. They contain many of the Bishop's own letters, and several written by him in the King's name; also letters to himself while Royal Secretary, and others addressed to the King. This work elucidates some points in the history of the nation during the first half of the fifteenth century.

57. MATTHEI PARISIENSIS, MONACHI SANCTI ALBANI, CHRONICA MAJORA. Vol. I. The Creation to A.D. 1066. Vol. II. A.D. 1067 to A.D. 1216. Vol. III. A.D. 1216 to A.D. 1239. Vol. IV. A.D. 1240 to A.D. 1247. Vol. V. A.D. 1248 to A.D. 1259. Vol. VI. Additamenta. Vol. VII. Index. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, D.D., Fellow of Trinity College, Registry of the University, and Vicar of Great St. Mary's, Cambridge. 1872–1884.

This work contains the "Chronica Majora" of Matthew Paris, one of the most valuable and frequently consulted of the ancient English Chronicles. It is published from its commencement, for the first time. The editions by Archbishop Parker, and William Wats, severally begin at the Norman Conquest.

58. MEMORIALE FRATRIS WALTERI DE COVENTRIA.—THE HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF WALTER OF COVENTRY. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the MS. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1872–1873.

This work, now printed in full for the first time, has long been a desideratum by Historical Scholars. The first portion, however, is not of much importance, being only a compilation from earlier writers. The part relating to the first quarter of the thirteenth century is the most valuable and interesting.

59. THE ANGLO-LATIN SATIRICAL POETS AND EPIGRAMMATISTS OF THE TWELFTH CENTURY. Vols. I. and II. Collected and edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A., Corresponding Member of the National Institute of France (Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres). 1872.

The Poems contained in these volumes have long been known and appreciated as the best satires of the age in which their authors flourished, and were deservedly popular during the 13th and 14th centuries.

60. MATERIALS FOR A HISTORY OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VII., FROM ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, M.A., one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools. 1873–1877.

These volumes are valuable as illustrating the acts and proceedings of Henry VII. on ascending the throne, and shadow out the policy he afterwards adopted.

61. HISTORICAL PAPERS AND LETTERS FROM THE NORTHERN REGISTERS. Edited by JAMES RAINES, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1873.

The documents in this volume illustrate, for the most part, the general history of the north of England, particularly in its relation to Scotland.

62. REGISTRUM PALATINUM DUNELMENSE. THE REGISTER OF RICHARD DE KELLAWE, LORD PALATINE AND BISHOP OF DURHAM; 1311–1316. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1873–1878.

Bishop Kellawe's Register contains the proceedings of his prelacy, both lay and ecclesiastical, and is the earliest Register of the Palatiniate of Durham.

63. MEMORIALS OF SAINT DUNSTAN, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Edited, from various MSS., by WILLIAM STURRS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1874.

This volume contains several lives of Archbishop Dunstan, one of the most celebrated Primates of Canterbury. They open various points of Historical and Literary interest, without which our knowledge of the period would be more incomplete than it is at present.

64. CHRONICON ANGLIE, AB ANNO DOMINI 1328 USQUE AD ANNUM 1388, AUCTORE MONACHO QUODAM SANCTI ALBANI. Edited by EDWARD MAUNDE THOMISON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and Assistant-Keeper of the Manuscripts in the British Museum. 1874.
 This chronicle gives a circumstantial history of the close of the reign of Edward III. which has hitherto been considered lost.
65. THÓMAS SAGA ERKIBYSKUPS. A LIFE OF ARCHBISHOP THOMAS BECKET, IN ICELANDIC. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with English Translation, Notes, and Glossary by M. EIRÍKR MAGNÚSSON, M.A., Sub-Librarian of the University Library, Cambridge. 1875-1884.
 This work is derived from the Life of Becket written by Benedict of Peterborough, and apparently supplies the missing portions in Benedict's biography.
66. RADULPHI DE COGGESHALL CHRONICON ANGLICANUM. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A. 1875.
 This volume contains the "Chronicon Anglicanum," by Ralph of Coggeshall, the "Libellus de Expugnatione Terræ Sanctæ per Saladinum," usually ascribed to the same author, and other pieces of an interesting character.
67. MATERIALS FOR THE HISTORY OF THOMAS BECKET, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I., II., III., IV., V., and VI. Edited by the Rev. JAMES CRAIGIE ROBERTSON, M.A., Canon of Canterbury. 1875-1883.
 This Publication will comprise all contemporary materials for the history of Archbishop Thomas Becket. The first volume contains the life of that celebrated man, and the miracles after his death, by William, a monk of Canterbury. The second, the life by Benedict of Peterborough; John of Salisbury; Alan of Tewkesbury; and Edward Grim. The third, the life by William Fitzstephen; and Herbert of Bosham. The fourth, Anonymous lives, Quadrilogus, &c. The fifth and sixth volumes, the Epistles, and known letters.
68. RADULFI DE DICETO DECANI LUNDONIENSIS OPERA HISTORICA. THE HISTORICAL WORKS OF MASTER RALPH DE DICETO, DEAN OF LONDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the Original Manuscripts, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1876.
 The Historical Works of Ralph de Diceto are some of the most valuable materials for British History. The Abbreviations Chronicorum extend from the Creation to 1147, and the Ymagines Historiarum to 1201.
69. ROLL OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE KING'S COUNCIL IN IRELAND, FOR A PORTION OF THE 16TH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD II. 1392-93. Edited by the Rev. JAMES GRAVES, A.B. 1877.
 This Roll throws considerable light on the History of Ireland at a period little known. It seems the only document of the kind extant.
70. HENRICI DE BRACTON DE LEGIBUS ET CONSuetudinibus ANGLIE LIBRI QUINTA IN VARIOUS TRACTATUS DISTINCTI. AD DIVERSORUM ET VETUSTISSIMORUM CODICUM COLLATIONEM TYPIS VULGATI. Vols. I., II., III., IV., V., and VI. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1878-1883.
 This is a new edition of Bracton's celebrated work, collated with MSS. in the British Museum; the Libraries of Lincoln's Inn, Middle Temple, and Gray's Inn; Bodleian Library, Oxford; the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris; &c.
71. THE HISTORIANS OF THE CHURCH OF YORK, AND ITS ARCHEBISHOPS. Vol. I. Edited by JAMES RAINES, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1879.
 This will form a complete "Corpus Historicum Eboracense," a work very much needed, and of great value to the Historical Inquirer.
72. REGISTRUM MALMESBURIENSE. THE REGISTER OF MALMESBURY ABBEY; PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vols. I. and II. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Preacher at the Rolls, and Rector of Toppesfield, and CHARLES TRICE MARTIN, Esq., B.A. 1879, 1880.
 This work illustrates many curious points of history, the growth of society, the distribution of land, the relations of landlord and tenant, national history, customs, &c.
73. HISTORICAL WORKS OF GERVASE OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I. and II. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF STEPHEN, HENRY II., and RICHARD I., BY GERVASE, THE MONK OF CANTERBURY. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, D.D.; Canon Residentiary of St. Paul's, London; Regius Professor of Modern History and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford; &c. 1879, 1880.

The Historical Works of Gervase of Canterbury are of great importance as regards the questions of Church and State, during the period in which he wrote. This work was printed by Twysden, in the "Historia Anglicana Scriptores X," more than two centuries ago. The present edition has received critical examination and illustration.

74. HENRICI ARCHIDIACONI HUNTEDUNENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM. THE HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH, BY HENRY, ARCHDEACON OF HUNTINGDON, from A.D. 55 to A.D. 1154, in Eight Books. Edited by THOMAS ARNOLD, M.A., of University College, Oxford. 1879.

Henry of Huntingdon's work was first printed by Sir Henry Savile, in 1596, in his "Scriptores post Bedam," and reprinted at Frankfort in 1601. Both editions are very rare and inaccurate. The first five books of the History were published in 1848 in the "Monumenta Historica Britannica," which is out of print. The present volume contains the whole of the manuscript of Huntingdon's History in eight books, collated with a manuscript lately discovered at Paris.

75. THE HISTORICAL WORKS OF SYMEON OF DURHAM. Vol. I. Edited by THOMAS ARNOLD, M.A., of University College, Oxford. 1882.

The first volume of this edition of the Historical Works of Symeon of Durham, contains the "Historia Dunelmensis Ecclesiae," and other Works. The second volume will contain the "Historia Regum," &c.

76. CHRONICLES OF THE REIGNS OF EDWARD I. AND EDWARD II. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, D.D., Canon Residentiary of St. Paul's, London; Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford; &c. 1882, 1883.

The first volume of these Chronicles contains the "Annales Londonienses" and the "Annales Paulini;" the second, I.—Commendatio Lamentabilis in Transitu Magni Regis Edwardi. II.—Gesta Edwardi de Carnarvan Auctore Canonico Bridlingtonensi. III.—Monachi Cujusdam Malmesberiensis Vita, Edwardi II. IV.—Vita et Mors Edwardi II. Conscripta a Thome de la Moore.

77. REGISTRUM EPISTOLARUM FRATRIS JOHANNIS PECKHAM, ARCHIEPISCOPI CANTUARIENSIS. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHARLES TRICE MARTIN, ESQ., B.A., F.S.A., 1882–1884.

These Letters are of great value for illustrating English Ecclesiastical History.

78. REGISTER OF S. OSWUND. Edited by the Rev. W. H. RICH JONES, M.A., F.S.A., Canon of Salisbury, Vicar of Bradford-on-Avon. Vol. I. 1883.

This Register, of which a complete copy is here printed for the first time, is among the most ancient, and certainly the most treasured, of the muniments of the Bishops of Salisbury. It derives its name from containing the statutes, rules, and orders made or compiled by S. Osmund, to be observed in the Cathedral and Diocese of Salisbury. The first 19 folios contain the "Consuetudinum," the exposition, as regards ritual, of the "Use of Sarum."

79. CHARTULARY OF THE ANCIENT BENEDICTINE ABBEY OF RAMSEY, from the MS. in the Public Record Office. Vol. I. 1884. Edited by WILLIAM HENRY HART, Esq., F.S.A., and the Rev. PONSONBY ANNESLEY LYONS.

This Chartulary of the Ancient Benedictine Monastery of Ramsey, Huntingdonshire, came to the Crown on the Dissolution of Monasteries, was afterwards preserved in the Stone Tower, Westminster Hall, and thence transferred to the Public Record Office.

80. CHARTULARIES OF ST. MARY'S ABBEY, DUBLIN, &c., preserved in the Bodleian Library and British Museum. Edited by JOHN THOMAS GILBERT, Esq., F.S.A., M.R.I.A. Vol. I. 1884.

These Chartularies, published for the first time, are the only documents of that description known to exist of the ancient establishments of the Cistercian Order in Ireland; two being of St. Mary's Abbey, Dublin, and one of the House at Dunbrody, Wexford. One Chartulary is in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, together with that of Dunbrody; the second is in the British Museum.

81. EADMERI HISTORIA NOVORUM IN ANGLIA, ET OFUSCULA DUO DE VITA SANCTI ANSELMI ET QIBUSDAM MIRACULA EJUS. 1884. Edited by the Rev. MARTIN RULE, M.A.

This volume contains the "Historia Novorum in Anglia," of Eadmer; his treatise "De Vita et conversatione Anselmi Archiepiscopi Cantuariensis," and a Tract entitled "Quaedam Parva Descriptio Miraculorum gloriosi Patris Anselmi Cantuariensis."

82. CHRONICLE OF WILLIAM OF NEWBURY, with an appendix. Vol. I. 1884. Edited by RICHARD HOWLETT, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

DOMESDAY BOOK, OR THE GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086 ; fac-simile of the Part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel Sir HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, under the Superintendence of W. BASEVI SANDERS, Esq., Assistant Keeper of Her Majesty's Records. 35 Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863), boards. Price 8s. to 1l. 3s. each Part, according to size; or, bound in 2 Vols., 20l. (The edition in two volumes is out of print.)

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each according to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Cnut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The Commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor; the present possessor; how many hides were in the manor; how many ploughs were in the demesne; how many homagers; how many villeins; how many cottars; how many serving men; how many free tenants; how many tenants in socage; how much wood, meadow, and pasture; the number of mills and fish ponds; what had been added or taken away from the place; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor; the present value; and how much each free man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward; who then held it; its value in the time of the late King; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., Director-General of the Ordnance Survey, Southampton. The fac-simile was completed in 1863.

* For some reason left unexplained, many parts were left unsurveyed; Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmoreland, and Durham, are not described in the survey; nor does Lancashire appear under its proper name; but Furness, and the northern part of Lancashire, as well as the south of Westmoreland, with a part of Cumberland, are included within the West Riding of Yorkshire. That part of Lancashire which lies between the Ribble and Mersey, and which at the time of the survey comprehended 688 manors, is joined to Cheshire. Part of Rutland is described in the counties of Northampton and Lincoln.

FAC-SIMILES of NATIONAL MANUSCRIPTS, from WILLIAM the CONQUEROR to QUEEN ANNE, selected under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, and Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, by Colonel Sir HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S. DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, and edited by W. BASEVI SANDERS, Assistant Keeper of Her Majesty's Records. Price, each Part, with translations and notes, double foolscap folio, 16s.

Part I. (William the Conqueror to Henry VII.). 1865. (Out of print.)

Part II. (Henry VIII. and Edward VI.) 1866.

Part III. (Mary and Elizabeth). 1867.

Part IV. (James I. to Anne). 1868.

The first Part extends from William the Conqueror to Henry VII., and contains autographs of the kings of England, as well as of many other illustrious personages famous in history, and some interesting charters, letters patent, and state papers. The second Part, for the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., consists principally of holograph letters and autographs of kings, princes, statesmen, and other persons of great historical interest, who lived during those reigns. The third Part contains similar documents for the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, including a signed bill of Lady Jane Grey. The fourth Part concludes the series, and comprises a number of documents taken from the originals belonging to the Constable of the Tower of London; also several records illustrative of the Gunpowder Plot, and a woodcut containing portraits of Mary Queen of Scots and James VI., circulated by their adherents in England, 1580-3.

FAC-SIMILES OF ANGLO-SAXON MANUSCRIPTS. Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, upon the recommendation of the Master of the Rolls, by the DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, Lieut.-General J. CAMERON, R.E., C.B., F.R.S., and edited by W. BASEVI SANDERS, Assistant Keeper of Her Majesty's Records. Part I. Price 2*l.* 10*s.*

The Anglo-Saxon MSS. represented in this volume form the earlier portion of the collection of archives belonging to the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury, and consist of a series of 25 charters, deeds, and wills, commencing with a record of proceedings at the first Synodal Council of Clovesho in 742, and terminating with the first part of a tripartite cheiograph, whereby Thurstan conveyed to the Church of Canterbury land at Wimbish in Essex, in 1049, the sixth year of the reign of Edward the Confessor.

FAC-SIMILES OF ANGLO-SAXON MANUSCRIPTS. Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, upon the recommendation of the Master of the Rolls, by the DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, Major-General A. COOKE, R.E., C.B., and collected and edited by W. BASEVI SANDERS, Assistant Keeper of Her Majesty's Records. Part II. Price 3*l.* 10*s.*

Also, separately. Edward the Confessor's Charter. Price 2*s.*

The originals of the Fac-similes contained in this volume belong to the Deans and Chapters of Westminster, Exeter, Wells, Winchester, and Worcester; the Marquis of Bath, the Earl of Ulster, Winchester College, Her Majesty's Public Record Office, the Bodleian Library, the Somersetshire Archaeological and National History Society's Museum in Taunton Castle, and the Salt Library at Stafford. They consist of charters and other documents granted by, or during the reigns of Baldred, Æthelred, Offa, and Burgred, Kings of Mercia; Uhtred of the Huiccas, Ceadwalla and Ini of Wessex; Æthelwulf, Eadward the Elder, Æthelstan, Eadmund the First, Eadred, Eadwig, Eadgar, Eadward the Second, Æthelred the Second, Cnut, Eadward the Confessor, and William the Conqueror, embracing altogether a period of nearly four hundred years. They include the magnificent Charters of Dunstan and Eadward the Confessor to Westminster Abbey, and that of the same King uniting Devon and Cornwall in one see at Exeter. Ore's Guild at Abbotbury, one of the earliest and most interesting records of these associations known in England, is reproduced in this volume, which finishes—as to date—with a charter of William the Conqueror, in the beginning of his reign, to Exeter, of great beauty and historic interest. The dates of this collection range from A.D. 693 to A.D. 1069.

This work is intended to form a comprehensive Palaeographic Series for Ireland. It will furnish characteristic specimens of the documents which have come down from each of the classes which, in past ages, formed principal elements in the population of Ireland, or exercised an influence in her affairs. With these reproductions will be combined fac-similes of writings connected with eminent personages or transactions of importance in the annals of the country to the end of the reign of Queen Anne.

The specimens are reproduced as nearly as possible in accordance with the originals, in dimensions, colouring, and general appearance. Characteristic examples of styles of writing and caligraphic ornamentation are, so far as practicable, associated with subjects of historic and linguistic interest. Descriptions of the various manuscripts are given by the Editor in the Introduction. The contents of the specimens are fully elucidated and printed in the original languages, opposite to the Fac-similes—line for line—without contractions—thus facilitating reference and aiding effectively those interested in palaeographic studies.

In the work are also printed in full, for the first time, many original and important historical documents.

Part I. commences with the earliest Irish MSS. extant.

Part II.: From the Twelfth Century to A.D. 1299.

Part III.: From A.D. 1300 to end of reign of Henry VIII.

Part IV. 1.: From reign of Edward VI. to that of James I.

In Part IV. 2.—now in the Press—the Work will be carried down to the eighteenth century.
